

THIS BROKER IS A COOLIDGE MAN

Lays Great Stress Upon
Speeches of President and Sen. Borah.

New York, April 25.—Out over the oil-befuddled-dead-sea of politics, says W. W. Price, were waited on Tuesday two currents of freshening expression that may truly give thought to those who have felt that the ship of state is hopelessly becalmed. One was the impressive utterance of President Coolidge in New York, wherein he stated that the danger to America lies not in its failure to maintain its economic position, but in its inability to maintain its ideal.

"A nation," said he, "that is morally dead will soon be financially dead, and the progress of the world rests on courage, honor and faith."

In keeping with the spirit of this remarkable address, Senator Borah, in one of the most patriotic and statesmanlike appeals that have been made in a long time, said that the present situation calls for something more than the cancellation of a few illegal contracts and the removal of a few officials from office.

"Economies," he said, "in public expenditures is the most vital question in American politics. It is no question, but rather a problem of how a curtailment of expenditures and appropriations can be made in order that the people of the country may be relieved from the burden of taxes which they are now carrying."

The average man may think that such expressions reflect an academic rather than an economic sense on appreciation, but they represent truly the school of the fundamentalist in politics, and that the American people unquestionably are registering their appreciation of this form of appeal as being daily, recorded in the primaries of the United States. State after state continues to record itself overwhelmingly as supporting the utterances of President Coolidge, while in the Johnson, who has been shouting for the last 12 years about 100 per cent. Americanism, the big stick and the malcontent, great wealth has precipitated a reactionary resentment that is indeed impressive. The public have not only recorded the fact that he has no party in their sympathies, but, on the other hand, have practically expelled him from any consideration as a candidate.

A discussion of such matters may seem irrelevant to the stock market. Such is not the case. The more essential to successful economic development than a sound government, and day by day there are evidences that the people are discerning truth from falsehood, and certainty from doubt; for, after all, ideals in politics are the only force which history regards as producing effective development.

Many times in the past small minority of thinking men of the type which Coolidge, Borah and Mellon today represent have been threatened by the adverse forces of blind thinking majorities, but their sustained resistance, their frequent recoveries and their final success in the struggles which have at the time seemed hopelessly desperate, have recorded the truth of what Anthony Froude, I believe, said regarding the public's ability to discern truth from falsehood and certainty from doubt; that right and wrong are real distinctions; and that, while opinions alter, manners change, creeds rise and fall, the moral law is written on the tablets of eternity, and periodically the convictions of mankind record themselves as appreciative of that fact.
