

improved; and the brethren entrusted with its management will require the hearty, untiring assistance of every section of the church. It is proposed to open its rooms to the young men of our church upon very liberal terms, giving them the advantage of a religious tutorship, with the skill and precision of a classical education, for the small acknowledgment of twenty dollars a-year over and above the cost of board, which will be furnished at reasonable rates. The young men on their probation for the ministry, who need the aids of this institution, claim the liberal support and the enterprising ability of all the members and friends of our church. Ministers are affectionately solicited to seek out pupils for the secular department, and to take an active part in obtaining aid for their younger brethren. The Conference throws itself upon the loyalty, as well as the Christian sympathy, of the entire church, to come up cheerfully to aid in carrying out this important plan successfully. As it is a measure which has been necessitated by the convictions and appeals of our people, we are sanguine that we shall not ask in vain for a united, cheerful effort on the part of the church generally, to support this undertaking liberally.

Let us not forget to sympathise with those dear brethren who have become enfeebled by the visitations of affliction, or the warning voices of those speaking to us from the shores of the spirit land. We are going up to the great gathering of the sons of God, beyond the cloudland, the storm clime, and the realm of death. Far away from the paths of thorns, trials, and tears, where the light of Jesus glorified shines softly on happy hearts, without shade or sadness, and the long, loud hallelujah hymn rises up from perfected spirits, with thrilling majesty, without cessation, "Unto him that loved loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God, and his Father, to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen." If we would give a good account of our stewardship, and be the recipients of the Redeemer's welcome, let us "Work while it is day, for the night cometh, when no man can work."

Yours in behalf of the Conference,

R. BOYLE, PRESIDENT.

WM. BEE, SECRETARY.
