GLOOMY FINDINGS FROM SEAL FISHING FLEET OFF COAST OF NEWFOUNDLAND

ST. JOHN'S, N.F., March 27.—Gloomy findings from the seal fishing fleet off the Newfoundland coast were brought here today by the sealing steamer Grand Lake. Captain Knee of the steamer declares that this is the worst season for seals in his forty years' experience. The Grand Lake lost two blades of her propeller in an encounter with the ice and was obliged to return here. She had only 10,000 seals on board.
Captain Knee reported that at the time he left the fleet the steamer Adventure had secured but 14,000 seals, the Neptune 12,000, the Virginia Lake 8,000 and the Ranger 3,000, while the rest of the steamers were empty.
The steamer Greenland, with 180 men aboard, broke her main shaft during heavy weather on Saturday last. The master attempted to induce the captain of the steamer Diana to take 100 of the men on board that vessel, but this was not done, as there was no room on the Diana to accommodate the men. During a severe blizzard on Sunday the Greenland was driven seaward and had not since been seen by the other vessels up to the time the Grand Lake started for this port. It is feared that the Greenland has met with further trouble.
There is no vessel at this port which can be sent to search for her. The steamer Adventure, which is expected here next week, will probably be sent out, if the Greenland is not heard from before then. The Greenland has very little canvas to make sail with.
The vessel owners are discouraged over the failure of the seal hunting season, the entire fleet of twenty ships having taken only enough seals to fill one vessel. Fifteen steamers, which have been jammed in the ice packs, have taken no seals. In some parts of the hunting grounds the ice is piled forty feet high.

WHERE ST. PETER DIED The Crypt of St. Peter's Indiv- Gates The Spot

The Basilica is Erected on the Site Where Once Stood Nero's Villa — The Apostle's Tomb Walled up in the Ninth Century.

NEW YORK, March 27.—The Sun has the following cable from Rome—
Professor Marucchi, the distinguished archaeologist, who showed this year most conclusively that the death of St. Peter took place in or near the Vatican and the great church that bears his name, and not, as later tradition affirmed, on the Janiculum, where the Church of San Pietro, in Montorio, stands, has given a lecture in the crypt of St. Peter's the unquestionable site where the sarcophagus of the great apostle is to be found.
The professor pointed out that the present Basilica stands on the very spot on which once stood the great villa of Nero. Many pagan tombs have been found there, proving that the grounds of the villa contained a burying place for the use of Caesar's household. If St. Peter, the martyr, was really to be found there, as the tradition affirms, and as the remains of St. Peter, as often happened around the resting place of an illustrious pagan tomb martyr. The surrounding pagan tombs would render this impossible.
Prof. Marucchi quoted authorities which show that from early in the second century there is a continuous and undoubted chain of witnesses to the tradition which makes it certain that the body of the great apostle was really to be found there. St. Gregory of Tours, who came to Rome as a pilgrim, describes how he descended the body of the great apostle, and after the fifth century the tomb was walled up, probably in fear of the Saracens, who were then sacking the country.

TELLS JURY SISTER SHE SLEW STOLE HUSBAND

Bride, 20, on Trial for Life, Says She Only Intended to Frighten Girl.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 27.—Mrs. Josephine Kelly, 20 years old, is being tried here for the murder of her sister, Ida Gaff. There will be no attempt to convict her of murder in the first degree. The married woman's defense is that her unmarried sister slew her husband.
According to Mrs. Kelly, her husband had been too friendly with her sister for a long time, and this had caused one separation after another. After Kelly and his wife became reconciled the sister renewed her relations with Kelly, until Mrs. Kelly ordered her out of the house and told her never to return.
On the day of the shooting, Mrs. Kelly found Ida Gaff in her wife's home. She immediately demanded to know what she was doing there, when her sister openly declared her love for Kelly and started toward Mrs. Kelly with a piece of moulted.

HOPE HAGUE WILL TAKE IT UP

Each of these powers, therefore, will doubtless be glad if the approaching conference at The Hague takes up the matter and relieves them of all responsibility by declaring the Baltic an open highway under international law. That this will be proposed there is some reason to believe. It is not improbable meanwhile that the Baltic powers will confine themselves in instructions to their representatives abroad to asserting the neutrality of the ocean, and leaving the various Governments and peoples to place their own interpretations on the word "neutrality."
The United States is one of the signatories to the treaty of 1857, having paid over $300,000 for the privilege, and might make a suggestion for the internationalization of the Baltic in the time of war as a disinterested party.
Count Raben-Lexztzu expressed great displeasure with those countries. "England in the first place and then Germany, who save the Baltic of pointing the devil on the wall." In other words, of conjuring up imaginary spectres instead of minding their own business and peacefully developing their own country.
Referring to Germany, the Count said the pretense of a German fleet coming to Kiel to spy out the Danish coast was an absurd one, which had been going on for the last twenty years without suggesting a notion to anyone in Denmark. The Count remarked that the relations of Germany and Denmark had improved lately. He expressed unqualified admiration for the German character and declared he had not noticed any increase in German influence in Denmark. The treaty concluded with Germany in January simply gave the inhabitants

FATHER OF THE POOR.
At a certain point of Paris near the Halles there is every morning to be seen an instance for which it would probably be difficult to find many parallels that benevolence which combines with money expenditures the element of personal service. The New-caste Chronicle states that an old gentleman, well dressed, presents himself at an hour now well known by those concerned, and there distributes with his own hands a hundred large bowls of bouillon or soup, which he first tastes himself, to as many poor people, who, it need hardly be added, are there waiting for him. Then he withdraws, walks for some distance, and is taken up in a fine motor car, which whisks him rapidly away. "The Father of the Poor" is the only name which can be given to him.—London Globe.

In spite of this improvement the Lancet is not satisfied and demands "a standardized sausage," so as to prevent it from being loaded with cheap substitute, which is nearly always bread or broken waste biscuits. This, the Lancet says, is a palpable fraud, as the sausage is looked upon as a meaty and not a farinaceous food. Moreover, the price is approximately that of meat. The Lancet, therefore, demands a legal, authoritative definition of a sausage.

HE DIDN'T WAIT.
When Mr. Labouchere was attacked at Washington an angry Britisher came to the embassy and demanded to see the British minister. Mr. Labouchere told the irate visitor that the minister was not in.
"Well," said the man, angrily, "I must see him, so I shall wait till he comes."
"Very good," responded Mr. Labouchere, "but you must wait in a chair." He resumed his writing. At the end of an hour the visitor asked when his excellency would be back.
"I cannot say exactly," said Mr. Labouchere.
"But you expect him back?" the visitor said.
"Oh, certainly," replied Mr. Labouchere, and again went on writing.
Another hour passed, and again the visitor bounced up and demanded if the minister was likely to arrive within the next hour.
"I think not," said Mr. Labouchere, bluntly; "the fact is, he called to Europe on Wednesday, and can hardly have reached Queenstown yet. But, you know," he added, "to quell the rising wrath of the visitor, you said you would wait till he came back, and that is why I offered you a chair."—London Tit-Bits.
