OSTEOPAH'S PATIENTS CUT EN MASSE TO HEAD EVIDENCE AT INQUIRY

Court Room Packed at Inquest Into Death of Mrs. McLaughlan

Evidence Shows Treatment Given Deceased by Dr. Spangler

Dr. Emery Tells of Treating Mrs. McLaughlan—Other Witnesses

The inquest into the death of Mrs. Anna McLaughlan was opened at 7.30 last evening in the municipal chamber of the Court House. Coroner D. E. Barryman presided and the following jury was empaneled: W. G. Scoville, F. W. Daniel, H. Gallagher, A. R. Campbell, T. T. Latham, John F. Morrison, C. K. Cameron.

M. G. Teed, K. C., and E. P. Raymond appeared for Dr. Spangler, and Dr. A. W. MacRae, K. C., appeared for the crown. A stenographer as well as the clerk was present to take down the evidence.

T. Fred Power, undertaker, was the first witness. He prepared the body of the late Mrs. McLaughlan and arranged her funeral. It was necessary for him to have a doctor's permit before any burial, if he could not secure one he notified the coroner and secured the permit from him.

Witness secured a certificate from Dr. Emery and leaving his office went as far as the Dufferin Hotel, where he was overtaken by the doctor. He did so, and Dr. Emery asked for the certificate and on witness giving it up said that he wanted to think it over and would give it to him in the morning. Later on Dr. Emery returned to give witness a certificate and on Wednesday he secured a permit from the coroner. Witness had identified the body.

Dr. A. F. Emery was next called. He said he was a regular medical practitioner in St. John for eighteen years. He took his degree from the Bellevue Hospital College, New York, in 1871. Was at present a member of the staff of the St. John Public Hospital.

He was first called to see the late Mrs. McLaughlan on 12th March of this year. He saw her again on the 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 21st, 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th, 29th, 30th, 31st, and the patient died on the morning of the 29th, while witness was still with her.

On the 12th he diagnosed her case as an embolism from the femoral vein. He did not examine her on the following day. He prescribed in a general way, rest and gave her an ordinary tonic. On March 12 the patient's heart was weak and irregular.

In reply to the coroner's question as to whether he gave all the attendance that was required, the witness said: "All the attendance that she would allow me until in another case of emergency she called me again."

"On the 28th it was called about ten minutes past eleven at night, and witness in a few minutes, as they said she was in a bad condition. When I got there I expected to find her very low, but she had had a rally and was very much improved."

"I remained with her until she died at about half-past twelve. My orders would be to lie down in bed and not to remove out of a recumbent position for any reason whatsoever. This order should be followed for a considerable time."

Question—"Would you expect to follow if the patient got up and moved away or if the limb was massaged?" Answer—"I would expect a clot to break off from the inside of the diseased glands and to pass through the veins of the lower extremities until it reached some organ of too small a calibre for it to pass through. If it passed on in the ordinary way it would cause more or less trouble according to its size. There it would cause what is known as pulmonary embolism. A clot might remain in the heart for a considerable length of time. This could be detected in a post mortem examination."

Witness had heard Mr. Powers tell of his giving him a certificate and talking it back. This was true.

"Mr. Powers came in about 9.30 on Monday morning with the certificate. I said I did not think I should sign it and asked, 'Why did you not go to Dr. Spangler?' He replied that he had talked it over with Mrs. McLaughlan's family and had thought that the Board of Health would not accept his certificate."

Witness then said: "I am going to give you a certificate, but it may not hold because I am putting down the cause of death and a dispute regarding this may arise."

"I told him that on this account he need not be surprised if I sent for it. When Mr. Powers went out of the room my office girl letting him out, I went to the outer office and found Dr. Murray McLaren there. In talking with him he said that I should not have given the certificate, as the matter was coming up before the coroner. Witness did not remember if Dr. McLaren said he had seen the coroner. That was about 10 o'clock a. m. I told Mr. Powers to call the next day and I would give him the certificate if the coroner did not intervene. When he returned I did not refuse the certificate, but told him that the coroner had taken charge of the case."

The coroner then asked: "Did you visit the office of the coroner and state that you could give a certificate and that the coroner should do so?" "I did not."

Question—"Had the coroner intimated that he wished to intervene?" Witness said he got his information from Dr. McLaren and could not say. He continued: "On the 28th, when I got to Mrs. McLaughlan's house, I found her in such a critical condition that I asked Dr. T. D. Walker to call. He came and was present until she died."

Apart from the patient getting up there was always a danger that a clot might break away. If it does not break away it is absorbed in some cases and in others blood vessels grow around it.

As a rule the clot breaks away at the time of excessive exertion. It would not be unusual for a patient to touch the heart. It might, however, loosen and break away later. In a post mortem it would be difficult to tell how long it was since the clot had been loosened.

In reply to Mr. MacRae witness said that he told the patient that his treatment was different from that of Dr. Spangler and warned her that movements of any kind would be dangerous. He knew that the patient understood what he meant, which was that she should have absolute rest.

Miss Minnie Thompson, Princess street, was next called. She said that she had known the deceased and saw her about eight o'clock on the evening of her death. Mrs. McLaughlan identified then lying on the body, an outer gown on.

This was about ten minutes to eight. The deceased was very weak, but recovered. Dr. Spangler came in later. He said that she was better, but would be all right. He put her pulse and put her hand on her head and told her to keep still. He did not touch the patient's feet or legs. She was there about forty minutes and left when Dr. Spangler said the patient was all right. While she was there Dr. Spangler did not offer any suggestions to help the patient or prescribe anything for her.

Mrs. Clarence W. de Spat was then called. She deposed that she had known the deceased and had seen her almost every day during her illness. She knew of Dr. Emery being called on the 12th of March. Mrs. McLaughlan's regular doctor was Dr. Spangler, who attended her almost every day. Witness knew that Dr. Spangler treated the patient, but did not know what the treatment was. She knew that he attended her from the 12th to 28th March. During this period witness had seen the deceased sitting up in a chair. She had complained to witness of a pain in her heart. The patient was taking medicine prescribed by Dr. Emery during this time. Witness did not know whether or not she had dismissed Dr. Emery.

Mrs. W. A. Lockhart was next called. She had known the deceased for about a year and four months, but only intimately during her last illness. She saw her on the second day on which Dr. Emery attended her, but not while she was there. She knew Dr. Spangler was her regular attendant and had met him at the house. Witness did not know what treatment he used. She was in the room with the deceased on the night of her death while Dr. Spangler came later. He said that when he came he thought she was normal, but that she had had a faint. Witness had not seen her deceased get out of bed.

Dr. Spangler was there on the evening of the 28th for about fifteen or twenty minutes. He spoke to Mrs. McLaughlan and said she would soon be better. He touched her, but gave her no treatment. Witness gave deceased brandy, but Dr. Spangler gave her no treatment whatever. From the time that Dr. Spangler came until Dr. Emery came the patient was somewhat better. She was lying on the bed with a dressing gown on. When Dr. Emery came he felt Mrs. McLaughlan's pulse and said she was normal. When he went out witness slipped the dressing gown off and pulled the bedclothes over the patient. She then had an ill turn and witness called Dr. Emery.

Dr. H. B. her mother gave Mrs. McLaughlan a dose of medicine which witness thought she had been taking. Mrs. Lockhart was then allowed to stand down and the coroner announced the inquest would be adjourned until Tuesday evening at 7.30.

BUILDING BOOM IN WINNIPEG NOW

TORONTO, April 5.—A report from Winnipeg says the agents of Lord Northcliffe, who is already heavily interested in Winnipeg property, have received one hundred and twenty thousand pounds from his lordship for investment in western property. Building is extremely busy in city structures. In the course of erection or plans for this season on Portage alone will exceed three million dollars, and besides Lord Northcliffe, other old country capitalists are sending large sums to be invested in Winnipeg or western property. Another indication of the building boom is the advance of a dollar a thousand on lumber which went into effect today.
