

in all fairness to him, though I believe it to be wholly mistaken and wrong, he has, ^{maintained with stubborn consistency} ~~nevertheless, held to con-~~
^{up to this very moment.}
~~sistently throughout.~~

(2) Reference to Characteristics of Prime Minister as a Political Leader.

Just here, ^{May 7 1922} ~~if he will allow me, may I say,~~ ^{as in this attitude} ~~wherein~~ I believe, lies one of the real ^{perils} dangers, not to speak of ^{clangers} ~~weaknesses~~, of my right honourable friend as a political leader. His faith in himself and his own judgment is so supreme that he is not prepared to accept counsel from any source, in particular the counsel of those around him however near their political relationship may be.
Having decided, without sufficient counsel, upon a course,
even where the subsequent events prove it to be unwise, futile, or wrong, his bent of mind and nature causes him to pursue it to the bitter end, even though by so doing, to use his own words so graphically expressed on many occasions, he may "perish in the attempt".

The Liberal Method of Securing British Market -
^{in Parliament}
Illustrated by the Dunning Budget.

The method by which the Liberal Party sought to maintain and expand the market for Canadian wheat in the British Isles was exemplified in the budget introduced in this House on the 1st of May of last year by the Honourable

W. L. Mackenzie King Papers

Speeches-1922 - 1932

PUBLIC ARCHIVES
ARCHIVES PUBLIQUES
CANADA