THE ROYAL MILITARY REVIEW HELD IN QUEEN CITY

Magnificent Spectacle in Toronto—Flower of the Canadian Militia
March Past the Duke and Duchess—The Dominion's Heroes Rewarded.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—The great review on the garrison common this morning, at which some twelve thousand men, including the flower of the militia of Ontario, and hundreds of the veterans of the imperial army and of the campaigns of 1866-1885 and South Africa, marched past the Duke and Duchess in the presence of fifty thousand spectators, was one of the most stirring spectacles seen by the royal couple since the shores of the Isle of Wight faded from their view in May last. The master was very complete, the various brigades having their ambulance wagons and all the accessories save transport.

THE MARCH PAST.

His Royal Highness rode onto the grounds shortly after 11 o'clock, accompanied by Lord Minto, and attended by a glittering suite, in which the Duke of Roxburghe and Lord Crichton, in the cuirassiers of the Horse Guards' blue, were the most conspicuous figures. The Duke wore the uniform of the 7th Fusiliers, with a huge bearskin hat. The Duchess had arrived some time in advance, and with a party of her ladies, sat in the royal stand. The morning had been so misty as to almost obscure the movements of the troops, but it soon began to clear, and the march past was seen by the spectators to advantage. His Royal Highness on his arrival was received by a guard of honor, composed of Upper Canada College cadets and the band of the St. Catharines 19th Batt. At a signal, the long line of troops, with the colors of over twenty regiments showing, and cavalry and artillery massed behind, gave the royal salute. The glittering staff then passed the lines on a general inspection, the massed bands of over 500 pieces playing "O, Canada."

SOUTH AFRICAN HEROES IN EVI- DENCE.

Returning to the saluting base, where the royal standard was flying, and immediately in front of the portion of the grand stand where Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. G. W. Ross and the members of the Dominion and South African war medals to Ontario soldiers. This was very quickly over, each recipient saluting as he came forward in line and received his medal from the Duke's own hand.

A MAGNIFICENT SIGHT.

When this portion of the ceremonies was completed, the long lines of men who had stood on the common for two hours, swung into line and came down to the saluting base. The cavalry marched past first with jingling bridle and flashing sabres, over 1,500 of them, a magnificent sight. The artillery went past by batteries, six guns abreast and keeping admirable alignment. The Kingston Battery of regulars, who had almost to a man been decorated a few minutes before for South African services, were cheered to the echo by the spectators, who remembered how they had fought the Boer war. The infantry streamed along with the Guards Brigade at the head of the column. The Foot Guards, of Ottawa, and 48th Highlanders, the Halimand Rifles, with its Indian companies, was another popular corps. The last division was the recently organized A. M. C. corps, under Lt. Col. Nelson, splendidly drilled and equipped. It too won the applause of the spectators.

The Duke and Duchess, on passing through the streets on their way to Government House, were cheered by 40,000 spectators along the route. The actual parade was 10,055 and 250 men were on guard duty. The review consisted of slightly over 11,000 men. The Duke, before leaving the grounds, expressed to General O'Grady-Henley his deep admiration for the splendid turnout and the steadiness of the men. Several members of the staff said the parade was the largest of the whole tour.

After dinner many of the corps broke camp and by three o'clock four Highness saw the members of the brigade. The next stop was Bishop Strachan's school, where the Duchess was presented with a huge bouquet. Another stop was made in Queen's Park, where the Duke and Alexander Muir, the author of "The Maple Leaf," planted a maple tree. Through the park the royal party then proceeded to the university, where an address of welcome was read by Sir Wm. Meredith, on behalf of the faculty. This was the students' special function, and the reception accorded was one of the heartiest of the visit.

HIS FIRST JOKE.

In his reply to the address his Royal Highness made the first joke of the visit at the expense of a former undergraduate:—"I deeply appreciate the name of my dear father—(applause)—and further notice has remained in that position more than forty years." (Applause and laughter). When he returns home His Royal Highness will be able to lord it as a graduate over the "freshies" of 1890.

The evening was devoted to a state dinner party and a public reception in the building at which about 2,000 persons, the most prominent people, not only of Toronto, but of Central Ontario, passed before their Royal Highnesses, while thousands waited on the lawn outside, which was transformed into a veritable fairland with electric lights and Chinese lanterns. The party leave for a flying trip to Western Ontario to-morrow morning at nine o'clock.

NOTES OF THE DAY.

There were many guesses why the 45th Regiment, of Victoria, of which Sam Hughes, M. P. P., is the gallant Colonel, wore a tartan on their helmets in the royal review to-day. It was the MacKenzie tartan, and there were those, who, knowing the political proclivities of its commanding officer, saw in this upon the headgear of the soldiers of the King honor for a former Canadian Premier and political leader of the colonel. But there are other Mackenzies. There is one, Mr. Malcolm Mackenzie, president of the Toronto Railway Co., who incidentally is honorary colonel of the 45th Regiment of his native county. He it was who a year or so ago presented the regiment with these tartans and this is why they wore them before the Duke to-day.

As Gen. O'Grady-Henley rode to the parade grounds this morning by the west end of the grand stand he passed a group of military. Apparently they were to receive the commander-in-chief of the Canadian forces, for not a hand was raised in salute. The Major-General passed, apparently nothing was going to happen, but one of the knot was smoking a cigar. "Take your cigar out of your mouth when your superior officer passes," came gruffly from the mounted chief. "Haven't you any manners?"

This afternoon the Duchess of York visited the Bishop Strachan school for young ladies, on her way to the university. The carriage passed through the east entrance beneath an arch of red and white bunting up to the verandah, where the members of Council and their wives with the staff of the college were assembled. The Princess was received by the Bishop of Toronto, and the principal of the school. The Duchess expressed his pleasure and gratitude at the honor done the Bishop Strachan School, and their appreciation of her graciousness in acceding to their request that she should visit them on her way to the University of Toronto. Miss Marjorie Holcroft, the baby of the school, presented her Royal Highness with a bouquet of purple orchids tied with white ribbon. The Duchess then signed her name in the visitor's book after the signatures of Louise, 21st Sept. 1879, on which date the Princess Louise with the then Marquis of Lorne, visited the school. The Duchess was heartily cheered on her entrance and departure.

The Duke and Duchess reviewed 156 men of the fire brigade with 25 pieces of apparatus on University Hill while on the way to the University this afternoon. An immense throng was present. After the march past and exhibition, consisting of the raising of aerial crucks, and the water tower, completed the event.

H. H. McConnell, of this city, is one of many local Canadians who think Canada needs a flag which is more suggestive of a federation of provinces. He has therefore designed a flag along that line. It is among the many decorations of the corner of Carlton and Yonge streets. The design consists of a Union Jack and two rows of green maple leaves, four in the top row, and three in the bottom, representing the seven provinces, thus leaving a vacancy in the lower row to be filled when Newfoundland enters the Dominion. The new flag has been favorably commented on by a large number of citizens.

The Canadian and foreign correspondents, who have accompanied the Duke on his tour through Canada were tendered a luncheon by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Canadian Press Association at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. A number of short speeches were made, after which the visiting press men were driven around the city. The decorations were much admired.

Just after he had mounted his horse in front of the Parliament buildings, this morning, Lord Minto had the misfortune to run down a small boy, who made a dash across the road at a most inopportune moment. The lad was pretty badly shaken up and His Excellency gave orders that he should be attended to, and that a report of his condition should be sent to him.

"We were very much pleased with the design you sent. It was beautiful and appropriate." The Victoria Ave. Greenhouses receive such words of commendation every day. Telephone No. 181.

MEMBERS OF CITY COUNCIL ON HEALTH INSPECTOR MATTER

Some of the Aldermen Express Their Views on the Appointment—Seem Inclined to Dispute Authority of Health Board.

"I wonder if the Board of Health will really resign or are they only joking?" queried Ald. Edmundson this morning. "The aldermen are elected by the city of Chatham to do the business of the city. If the Board of Health, however, want the power to appoint the Health Officer let them have it. They will, then, be an independent body. Under the present law, however, the council have the power of appointment and a perfect right to exercise it. The council has to take the responsibility of dismissing a civic official, and if there be any honor in selecting a successor, the council should have it."

"Every applicant was entitled to a fair show and it was only right that the council should consider the names of all the applicants."

Ald. Fleming—The way I feel about the matter is this: I supported the man recommended by the Board of Health, but as the balance of the council have seen fit to appoint another man I think that the Board should give him a trial and if he is not a competent man they can ask him for his resignation."

Ald. McColg—I think that the whole matter was a little premature. All the council had to work on was hearsay. I am neither commending or condemning Mr. Guttridge, but I think that the reason for Mr. Guttridge's dismissal should be investigated and that Mr. Guttridge should be given a hearing. At the meeting of the council I voted to lay the matter over until a full meeting of the council, when Mr. Guttridge should be present and heard within the bar. He is a man who has served the city for about 20 years both on the fire department and the police force and he ought to be given a chance to explain his actions. If a new man was to be appointed and I had it to do over again I would support the choice of the council. I have nothing against Mr. Thompson, but I think an old resident should have the preference over any new comer. I think it is also more necessary to have an inspector of meats sold on the market and the Board of Health should have carefully considered each of the applications before obligating themselves to Mr. Thompson.

Ald. Taylor—The council are not called upon to do everything recommended by the Board of Health. It is their privilege to appoint any man they see fit for this position. If the man they appoint is not competent they can recommend his dismissal.

The Board of Health are not responsible to the people for their actions in this way, that they do not have to go before the people to answer for their mistakes. But the council do bear the brunt with the people. The Board of Health ask to dismiss a man, the council does it, but they are not called upon to appoint the man selected by the Board of Health, although possibly theirs might be the better man. If the Board of Health get hot and resign it is no fault of ours. Even if they did resign there are plenty of men to fill their places. I was not present at the meeting but if I had been there I would have supported the choice of the council.

DEADLY FIREWORKS.

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 11.—There was a serious if not fatal accident at the T. W. Hand Fireworks Company's factory in West Hamilton to-day. The explosion occurred in a building which Prof. T. W. Hand, secretary of the firm, was experimenting with explosives, and he was very seriously injured. He was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where the attending physicians say they have but slight hopes for his life. The building in which the explosion occurred and another adjoining it were consumed, together with the contents. It is less than a year ago since Mr. Teal, a junior member of the firm, was blown to atoms in an explosion of a similar nature at this factory.
