BOYS and GIRLS

BEATEN BEFORE HE BEGAN.

ward for his envelope. The other boys were quickly paid off, and as no loitering was allowed they had all gone home when Robert came out.

"I wonder why they won't keep boys unless they have a bank account?" mused Robert on his way home. "I won't tell mother, for she would be so discouraged. It does seem too bad that just as we are Not long ago a young man came into my office to solicit a subscription for a publication. I could see at a glance, before he had fairly introduced his subject, that he was covered all over with defeat. His very attitude, his manner, said to me, "I have come in here to get your subscription for ______, but I do not expect to get it. I know you are a very busy man, and I do not wish to take your time or to impose upon you." This young man did not come in with the assurance in his manner that bespeaks victory. I could see that he was really beaten before he began.

I wonder why they won't keep boys unless they have a bank account?" mused Robert on his way home. "I won't tell mother, for she would be so discouraged. It does seem too bad that just as we are getting along so well something should happen. Well, I cannot save a cert, so there is no use to worry." "Six dollars," said Mrs. Gray, when her son held up the shining silver pieces. "Isn't that splendid? I have always heard that Palmer & Palmer were son face to their clerks, and now I know it is true." "They never said a word," said Robert, in surprise, "and I thought it was five as usual. That will help with the coal bill now." "If your father had lived we would

The important thing for the solicitor is to put the prospective customer into such a position that it will not be too easy for him to turn him down.

He should have great confidence in himself, and in the thing he has to sell. He must carry conviction in his manner. Hesitancy, doubt, indecision are fatal. Courage is as important to a solicitor as to an animal tamer, who has to guard very carefully against the slightest signs of fear. To hesitate in the cage of an untamed lion or tiger is to be lost. Even if unable to get an order, a solicitor should win a man's respect and admiration. He should, by a masterly bearing, meet customers on a plane of equality.

A friend of mine, a shrewd business man, says a solicitor came to to his office recently whose face was so radiant with interest in his pur-A friend of mine, a shrewd business man, says a solicitor came to to his office recently whose face was so radiant with interest in his pur-to his office recently whose face was so radiant with interest in his purpose, and so bubbling over with enthusiasm, that he won confidence and admiration at the very outset. My friend gave the young man an order for what he did not want, because he liked him.

The ability to size a man up at a glance is a great art, and the solicitor must learn its secret. He may not seehis prospective customer more than five minutes, and within that time he must bring all his ingenuity, all his tact, his skill and his former experience to a focus. He can not stop to do much thinking, and it does not matter how much ability he may have, if he can not concentrate it quickly and make it effective, he will not get the order.

"The boy stood on the burning deck, whence all but him had fled"—

When Tommy Gibbs stood up to speak he had it in his head, But when he saw the schoolroom full of visitors, he knew From his weak knees and parching tongue, the words had all fled, too.

"Bob Gray to have Books' place in the office?" said one of the clenks some time later. "It isn't fair to promote him over us in that high handed fashion. If anybody ought to get the place it should be Ralph, as he is senior among the boys."

"Well. I well. I will ask Billy Smith, interrupted Ralph, as he could not afford the suppose you are one of the kind that prefers to spend everything on clothes."

out of the bank and begin an account for myself. If Mr. Palmer finds out everything he'll see that I've turned over a new leaf and I can still world up to a higher place.

His line of reasoning was correct and in after years, when he became a member of the firm, he adopted the very same methods his shrewd old employer had used when he wanted to find capable and worthy boys to advance in his store.

st to find capable and worthy boys to advance in his store.

A certain beautiful and gracious woman is the admiration of all the school girls in her town. Even girls of a larger growth are ready to declare there is nobody like her.

"Why do you take such pleasure in her?" an older lady curiously asked of a plain and rather awkward girl who was especially given to the prevailing fascination.

"Why," said she, at a loss for a moment, "it isn't because she's so love ly or so nice. It's because when I'm talking with her she makes me feel just as lovely and nice as she is."

A certain young lady who gave a good deal of time to charitable work was a particular fauorite with all the children.

"Why do you love Miss Mary so?" somebody asked a devoted little boy. "I like her," he said, "because she looks as though she didn't see the holes in my stockings."

GOD'S UNSEEN PLANS.

It is not always the privilege of the servant to know exactly what is kn the mind of the Master. Moreover, the loyal servant does not insist on being fully informed concerning what the master purposes. Some one tells this story which contains a valuable lesson.

A gentleman who was walking near an unoccupied building one day saw a stone-cutter chiseling patiently at a block of stone in front of him. The gentleman went up to him.
"Still chiseling?" he remarked,

"In what part of the building does this stone belong?" asked the gen-

"I don't know," replied the stone-cutter; "I haven't seen the plans." Then he went on chiseling, chisel-ing. Now that is what we should do.

ing. Now that is what we should do. We have not seen the great plans of the Master Architect, but each of us has his work to do, and we should chisel away until it is done.

Surely, we cannot doubt the value of the design in God's mind for us. He who planned this beautiful world for us. purposes for us things better for us, purposes for us things better and more beautiful than we can now understand. We can conceive of the things God has in store for those on until he reveals to us what he has planned for us.

A LOVER OF HIS MOTHER.

Of all the love affairs in the world none can surpass the true love of a big boy for his mother. It is a pure love and noble, honorable in the high-est degree to both.

I do not mean merely a dutiful affection. I mean a love which makes a boy gallant and courteous to his mother, saying to everybody plainly, that he is fairly in love with her. Next to the love of a husband nothing so crowns a woman's life with honor as this second love, this devotion of son to her. And I never yet knew a boy to "turn out" bad who began by falling in love with his mother. do not mean merely a dutiful afto mother mother.

Any man may fall in love with a fresh-faced girl, and the man, who is gallant with the girl, may cruelly neglect the worn and weary wife. But the boy who is a lover to his mother, in her middle age, is a true knight who will love his wife as much in the scarf leaved autumn as he did in the daisied springtime.

GILLETT'S GOODS ARE THE BEST!

GILLETT'S CREAM TARTAR. When your dealer, in filling your order for any of above goods, reaches for a substitute, STOP HIM. That is the time to do it. It is too late when you get home, and the package opened, partially used and found wanting, as is generally the case with substitutes.

There are many reasons why you should ask for the above well advertised articles, but absolutely none why you should let a substituting dealer palm off something which he claims to be "just as good," or "better" or "the same thing" as the article you ask for.

The buying public recognize the superior quality of well advertised and standard articles like Gillett's goods. The substitutor realizes this fact and tries to sell inferior goods on the advertiser's reputation.
