THE WAY EVERY CANADIAN SHOULD TALK.

The Detroit News gives this interview with Major Maybury on election day, and so will other members of the Canadian-American Club.

"Yes, sir, I'm going to throw a harpoon into Mayor Maybury on election day, and so will other members of the Canadian-American Club," said Maj. Rothwell, "although the club may not take any formal stand against him as a club. We have no use for Maybury. He is not only offensive to us on account of his action in presiding at the meeting of Boer sympathizers while filling the office of mayor, but on another occasion he showed himself to be no friend of Canadian-American citizens."

"When Admiral Dewey visited Detroit we thought it would be a graceful thing for the Canadian-American club to present Dewey with a handsome bouquet of flowers by the hands of a little girl, but Mayor Maybury vetoed the proposition. He said we could give Dewey all the flowers we pleased at the hotel, but no such presentation would be allowed during the official ceremonies. This snub settled Maybury with us, and the club will knife him to a man, although perhaps not under any formal resolution."

"When the British-Americans get after a man he might as well lie down," concluded Maj. Rothwell. "There was a politician in Chicago who did something to offend the British-American club of that town. They got after him and drove him out of politics, and he's been a political dead duck ever since. That's what we propose to do to Maybury. He'll find that the influence of our club is not to be despised."

A CURE FOR YELLOW FEVER FOUND.

One hundred thousand dollars is the sum which Dr. Angel Bellinzaghi asks as the discoverer of a serum which cures yellow fever. It was offered by the Mexican government several years ago, but has never heretofore been claimed.

In June last Dr. Bellinzaghi, who is an Italian, came to the City of Mexico to try his remedies. Soon afterwards David Kilpatrick, an American, who had come from the isthmus, was taken ill with yellow fever in its most virulent form. He was taken to the American hospital, where his case was pronounced hopeless. No case of yellow fever which had developed in this altitude, having been contracted in a lower altitude, had ever been saved.

Dr. Bellinzaghi visited the patient on the fourth day of his illness. The patient had the black vomit and a temperature which was considered fatal; his system was thoroughly permeated with the disease and the action of the kidneys was entirely stopped, a symptom which is always considered fatal.

Dr. Bellinzaghi injected 20 grains of his serum on the first day, and succeeded in reducing his temperature and pulse. On the second day he injected 30 grains, on the third day 60 grains, and on the fourth day 80 grains.

On the second day the vomit disappeared, and on the fourth day the action of the kidneys was restored. Three days later the patient was discharged from the hospital.

A commission was appointed by the government board of health, which accompanied Dr. Bellinzaghi to Vera Cruz, where the fever was raging. The serum was tried in two hospitals, and in 75 per cent. of the cases it was successful. The usual mortality in yellow fever cases is 50 to 80 per cent.

All the cases which Dr. Bellinzaghi failed to save were those in very advanced stages of the disease. In all the cases in which injections of the serum were made in the first stage of the disease the patient was convalescent in from four to eight days and the recovery was complete.

In the cases taken in the second stage of the disease, when the system is permeated with the toxin, the progress of the disease was stopped in from four to eight days and the patients recovered.

The third stage of the disease is when the action of the kidneys is stopped. When the disease has reached this stage death has hitherto been regarded as certain. Dr. Bellinzaghi saved several such cases.

The commission has reported favorably on the remedy, and a part of the $100,000 prize is to be paid at once.

Mr. Tarte is encouraging unity, fraternity, and what not in Quebec by talking thus in La Patrie:—"The Orangemen—that horde nourished by prejudice and hate—are the real dregs of the Tory party. In fact, we find in Sir Charles Tupper's party all those who hate French-Canadians and who denounce the Catholic faith." But he cannot be sincere in his dislike for Orangemen, because his organizer in Eastern Ontario belongs to the order.

al in Centre Edinburgh, defeating Dr. Conan Doyle, Unionist.

The most blasphemous of all the "new Liberal" campaign expedients is a parody on the 1st chapter of Genesis, which Mr. Fielding's Halifax paper has published for the government. The thing commences thus:

"And the Dominion was without form and void. It was likewise dark. And the Elongated I took it all in. And the Elongated I said Let there be light that everybody may see Me. And there was light."

"And the Elongated I saw the light that it was highly satisfactory, inasmuch as it served to reveal Himself, and he divided the light from the darkness."

There is a good deal more of the same sort, the "Elongated I" being intended to represent Sir Charles Tupper. It is a pity that sacred writ should be paraphrased for political purposes.

COMMON HOUSE FLIES.

The Peculiarities About Their Eyes and Their Wings.

"Whoever thinks that the superior animal finds no rest for the sole of his foot in the contemplation of what he, in the sublimity of his own conceit, call the 'lower animals,'" says Harvey Sutherland in "Insects," "his general ignorance of the house fly we do not know just how foolish and no account the male is, but we may reasonably infer that he is as markedly deficient as usual, seeing that his eyes are so close together that they touch each other. That's always a bad sign. If you see anybody with eyes close together, you are entitled to think little of his intelligence."

"The fly has four sorts of eyes, the big compound ones, 4,000 in a bunch on each side of the head, for knocking about in daylight, and three simple eyes on the top of the head, for use in a poor light, seeing and fine print. Before going into the details of admiration over the creature that has 4,000 eyes on each side of its head it might be well to remember that they are not of much account. In case of old flies kept over winter the compound eyes cave in and get broken, yet the fly seems to get along and find food. One kind gentleman varnished over the simple eyes and plucked off the wings of some flies. He found that he might hold a candle close enough to burn the compound eyes of the fly before it had a suspicion that anything out of the common was going on. In daylight he took a knitting needle and brought it up in front of the fly close enough to touch its antennae before it dodged. If the knitting needle was brought up on one side Mr. Fly picked up his sticking plasters quite lively."

"Most respectable insects have two pairs of wings, but a fly has only one pair, with a scallop on each, showing that in earlier days it had 'openers,' even if they went into the discarded later. These scallops are called 'halteres' or balancers, and it is the theory of some that they help to steer the fly. They say that when the starboard balancer is clipped off the fly goes head-a-starboard and vice versa. But under each of these scales is a globular process, with a long tube fringed with cilia, believed to be sensitive to odors. The globular processes pump air into the nerves or veins of the wings and keep them taut and stiff, for this though the wing may seem, it is really a double texture. Perhaps clipping let the air out of the air out of the wing and so disables it. A fly is able to saunter along through the air at the rate of five feet a second, but when it is in a particular hurry it can go at 35 feet a second, which is a 230 gait. Its wings beat the air at about the same rate of vibration as the piano string E, first line of the treble staff, but that is not its only means of audible expression. When it gets excited and cannot break away from the fly paper it makes its thorax vibrate at a higher pitch. You have heard that Campanini could sing high C with ease. He could not, but a fly with its feet stuck fast."

TESTED BY TRIFLES.

Man Makes an Idiot of Himself When He Upsets a Bottle of Ink.

Flies are great tests of character, son. A man may be cool as an iceberg under extraordinary circumstances of danger or times of intense excitement; he may be calm when, at another man's order, he is facing a six gun battery and getting ready to try if he can push a bayonet through a cannoner before the gunner shoots eight pounds of assorted iron-mongery through him. The immense command and act nobly and quietly when the ship is sinking; he may preserve an even mind when the hotel is on fire; he may even speak grammatically when the glow enters his room at midnight. But let that man upset a very small inkstand, with only very little ink in it, on his desk. He upsets his chair on the office cart as he leaps to his feet with a crash like a little puddle of ink that he makes a desperate grab at the inkstand and swoops it half way across the desk before he sweeps it off into an open drawer full of unanswerd letters, then he claws after his pen, he smashes it through a little puddle of ink that wasn't doing a bit of harm before he mopped it zigzag and crooked all over everything with his white handkerchief, then he finally, after he has smudged the top of the desk, his hands and his gray pantalons with ink, he discovers that at the first dash he had knocked a much larger bottle of red ink clear off the desk on to the floor, where it has lain, draining its crimson life away in the very heart of the lightest figure on a blue and white carpet.

Then he says things at the flies of life and wonders why a man always makes an idiot of himself when he upsets a little bottle of ink. And he may keep on wondering, because he will never know why. Nobody knows. He just does it; that is all—Robert J. Burdette in Los Angeles Times.

The Time Is Close

October 9th, 10th and 11th are the red letter days for the County of Kent this year.

Last year everybody said the Fair was a good Fair—this year is going to be a great deal better.

Every resident in the County is anxious or ought to be anxious to see the County prosperous. A good County Fair is the best sign of a prosperous County.

Let everybody then push it along and show the people what a really good Fair Kent can have.

The Best

The Canada Business College CHATHAM, ONT.

Is doing more for its pupils than any other business school in Canada, or, perhaps, than any other on the continent. How can we do this?

First: By giving them a practical, not a theoretical, preparation for business life.

Second: The business public has learned that there is this vast difference between the graduates of this school and those of other colleges, hence the strong demand for our graduates, which has enabled $20 to be placed in good positions between Sept. 1st and July, '00, a period of ten months.

The good work still goes on, and 72 have been placed between July 1st and Sept. 1st of this year.

We will give you half of the list this issue and the other half later on. Here is the list:

Have you noticed that this is the only school in Canada that publishes a list of pupils placed? Some other schools make great claims to be doing wonders in this direction, but never publish the list so that the public can be assured of the correctness of the claim.

RESULTS are the tests to apply in deciding as to which school is most worthy of your patronage.
