FEW ANXIOUS MOMENTS

A Park street resident had rather in exciting experience this morning which un-nerved not only himself but his relatives, friends and family surgeon.

When the gentleman in question retired last evening, he omitted to take a couple of false teeth out of his mouth and place them in their accustomed place on the dresser. When he awoke this morning, he looked for them on every piece of bedroom furniture he could find, and bedroom furniture he could find, and then suddenly remembered his thoughtlessness of the night before. The artificial molars were nownere to be found, and a decided pain in the vicinity of his belt strengthened the conviction that he had swallowed them during the night. The more he thought of it, the stronger the pain became, until at last his suffering was unbearable. Having no desire to masticate his food in future in his stomach, he immediately went n his stomach, he immediately went to his surgeon and explained the to his surgeon and explained the situation. Stomach pumps and surgical instruments of all kinds were got in readiness and with the help of the X-rays, the operation was to have been performed this afternion. The strain of suspense was relieved, however, when he went home and learned that the maid had found the missing tooth when the was arranged.

Mrs. Milton Bogart, Raleigh street, entertained a few of her musical friends last evening in honor of Miss Parker, the newly appointed soprano soloist and leader of the Park street Methodist choir. A very enjoyable time was spent in music. Miss Parker gave several solos, which were thoroughly enjoyed and much appreciated. This talented young lady has a remarkably sweet, clear and true soprano voice, her high tones being the best in her voice. Park street is indeed fortunate in securing her services. Miss Addic Lilywhite, of London, who was present, also sang very sweetly. Miss lilywhite is the soloist and leader of a London choir. She has a fine mezzo-soprano voice, which she uses with wonderful effect. The evening passed off very pleasantly indeed, Mr. and Mrs. Bogart proving excellent entertainers.
