SPEECHES WERE ENTHUSIASTIC

Grand Orange Celebration Was Marked By Splendid Orations

Prominent Speakers Give Their Views On The Aims Of The Orange Order

After the parade was over the crowd, which was one of the largest that has been in this city for some time, gathered around the grand stand in Tecumseh Park to listen to the thrilling and interesting speeches which were delivered.

The chairman, Hugh Gallagher, made several complimentary remarks as regards the enormous turnout of the men and ladies, and first called upon Mayor Stone for an address. The Mayor's address was one of welcome, and upon arising to the platform was greeted with three cheers. He extended a hearty welcome to everyone on behalf of the people of the city, and said that they were glad to have, and felt highly honored in having, such a noble body of men in the city. He spoke of the opportunity it afforded the people of Chatham to demonstrate their city's possibilities and progressive spirit which prevails among the citizens.

"We have the most up-to-date and most progressive city in Western Ontario, we have more paved streets, we have the largest carriage factory, the largest automobile works, the second largest wagon factory, the largest fanning mill works, and will shortly have the largest brass factory in Canada."

He complimented the committee and the association, saying they had done everything in their power to make the celebration a success. "It is the largest crowd of people that has been in the city for thirty years, and the Orangemen of this Order are to be congratulated," was Mayor Stone's concluding remark.

The next speech was delivered by Mr. E. T. Essary, W. G. M. of Ontario West, and was one of particular interest. He started out by saying that people wondered "who we were," "what we did," and "why we did it." Some said we were beggars, but no one dared to say that we ever raised a traitor to the King or Queen in an Orange lodge. We are the people who helped to build the Great Dominion, and when the Union Jack was in danger our men were at the front ready to fight or to die for the flag of the Empire to which we belong.

"It is the right," he continued, "of everyone to have equal protection under the law of our Empire. The worship of God according to the dictates of our own conscience, but the moment a child's religion is interfered with the Grand Master has only to blow his whistle and in 24 hours 250,000 drilled men with Orange colors will be in the field ready to face the foe and fight for our colors. Some object to our uniform, others say that our ribbons were too narrow, and our marching don't suit them, but none dare say that in the hour of danger we were not in our place to protect our principles and stand by them. Political hacks don't like it, and it is said that the Premier once said that he thanked God that no Orangeman in the Liberal party ever occupied a seat in Parliament. The Premier was wrong when he said it, for at that time John McMillan, a Liberal of the old George Brown school, was sitting on the throne, and a member of the Grand Lodge, Duncan Munro, an honor to Canada, and a true Briton, was in the Liberal party."

"By the Gods Eternal," said the speaker, "whenever a party interferes or infringes on our religious principles we'll rip them up 'til the back." We ask no favors from anyone, and if we are left right alone we won't clash with any man's religion."

"We have marching with us today our brothers from the Indian reserve, and also their wives and children. We have also a splendid detachment from the great United States of America. We have been right loyally received in the Mile City and treated like kings. The decorations are fine, and when we come back, as we surely will, we will come a thousand times stronger than we are to-day."

Albert Tobias, from the Indian reserve, was next asked to make speech. He said he was very glad to be present and thankful to see that there were no lines drawn in preference to any race of people and was glad to know that everyone may become Orangemen. He said, "I am glad to be enrolled in an Orangeman, and especially pleased to notice that we have become more conscious that it is necessary to keep order and quietness in our celebration. We look back on history and see a vast difference. We are more enlightened now to the teachings and principles of the Constitution, and trust that we shall study them more closely in the future. If a man lives up to the principles of the Order he will be considered an honorable citizen."

NO CHANGE TO BE MADE IN KINDERGARTEN STAFFS

Deadlock In The Vote To Reduce Number Of Teachers At The Board Of Education Meeting—Members Talk Economy But Do Not Agree On Question Of How To Apply It

The members of the Board of Education came to a deadlock on the Kindergarten question at their meeting last night, and as a result of a most peculiar vote, the Kindergarten staff, for the present at least, will remain as it is. There was previously much talk of economy, and other reasons for reducing the staff, but apparently some of the members were not as sincere on the economy question as they were anxious that their own pet legislation should pass.

Chairman McArthur, to whose committee the matter was referred at a previous meeting of the Board, reported that the committee had discussed the question at some length, and had decided to reduce the Kindergarten staffs to one director and one assistant in each Kindergarten. This, the committee thought, would be a fair basis on which to make the reductions. Mr. McArthur, seconded by Mr. McCorvie, moved the action of the committee be ratified.

Mr. Brackin objected. He thought that the Kindergarten staffs should be reduced by three instead of two, reducing the Central School staff to three. He held that the same teachers who took the morning classes could also take the afternoon. He made a motion to this effect.

Mr. Somerville—How much of a reduction in salaries will the reduction recommended by the committee mean?

Mr. McArthur—If the committee's report is adopted, it will mean a saving of $600 per year.

Mr. Morley favored Mr. Brackin's scheme that the morning Kindergarten teachers should also take the afternoon classes.

Mr. McArthur could not agree to this. He said that the Kindergarten teacher's work was much different from the other teachers. They had to put in the afternoon preparing for the next day's work. In the best schools throughout the country there were two sets of teachers. "I would much prefer to see the Kindergarten staff left as it is," continued Mr. McArthur, "I believe that any reduction will cripple the usefulness of our Kindergartens."

Mr. Morley at this point arose and seconded Mr. Brackin's motion.

Dr. Duncan was of the opinion that the question was one which should not be viewed from a cold financial point alone. In his belief the Kindergarten is one of the most useful departments in the school. If the proposed legislation were passed, he feared that in a year or so Chatham would be unable to get any Kindergarten teachers. Kindergarten work, the doctor said, was really harder work than common school teaching. Any medical man could vouch for it that there is no work

NOTES FROM ERIEAU

Mrs. J. G. Kerr spent the day in town.

Dr. Battisby has returned to town for Sunday.

Mrs. Frank Dell, of Lansdowne avenue, returned to the city yesterday.

Mr. Walter Elliott, of the Standard Bank, called on Erieau friends yesterday.

Miss Daniela Foreman is the charming guest of Miss Muriel Hoig at Jubilee.

Mr. W. B. Haines, of Akron, Ohio, is at the Bungalow and is enjoying the fishing.

Mr. James Dick, of Akron, Ohio, is holidaying here, and is a guest at the Bungalow.

Another large spike has made its appearance about three inches above the north sidewalk.

Mrs. Hay is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. H. D. Smith, at Minnewanka cottage.

The Friday evening band concert was most successful and was attended by a large crowd.

The Misses Calmie and Rena Merritt are two very bright visitors at Mr. W. H. Bennett's.

Dr. J. L. and Mrs. Bray and Mrs. Douglas, of Toronto, were guests of Mrs. R. V. Bray yesterday.

Mr. W. Fellows' large gasoline launch the "Togo," is in excellent condition this season for excursion parties.

The pier on the west side of the channel that was damaged some time ago by the large coal boat, is being repaired.

Among the guests at the Bungalow is Mr. H. Didham, of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, who is enjoying a pleasant holiday.

Mr. R. J. Horton, of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, who is stopping at the Bungalow, is one of the most successful fishermen on the bar.

Little Miss Mildred Punchard has returned to Chatham after a two week's visit with her aunt, Mrs. R. V. Bray, at Centerville.

The steam barge "Mt. Clemons" came into port yesterday with a load of stone for the new pier, which is under construction at Government Park.

Don't smile if J. B. Stringer begins to tell you a good fish story to-day. It's true. Early this morning he caught a fine three-foot grass pike.

Mr. J. B. Stringer, Miss Stringer and Miss Etta McLachlan, of Seattle, Wash., are comfortably settled at the Bungalow. Miss McLachlan is quite well known here, having visited Chatham on former occasions.

A party of the cottagers from Government Park came over in Mr. Weir's new gasoline boat to enjoy the band concert. Among those on board were Mrs. Rees of Detroit, and Charlie Locke of Ridgeway.

Mrs. Douglas Stevens, of Winnipeg, who has been paying an extended visit to Chatham friends, spent Friday with her brother, Mr. E. B. Northwood. Mrs. Stevens was accompanied by her sister, Miss Bertha Northwood.

Mrs. Abram is unique in having a fruit garden at the rear of her cottage, which contains one young healthy apple tree about three feet tall, and a strawberry plant. The latter bears one beautiful cluster of berries as large as any on the Chatham market. Mrs. Abram takes much pride in showing this rare specimen to her many friends.

SERIOUS COLLISION

Serious Collision at the Mouth of St. Clair River.

Windsor, July 13.—A serious collision which was luckily attended by no loss of life occurred at the mouth of the St. Clair River at daybreak yesterday between the Tuscarora of the Lehigh Valley Line and the Maryland, a coarse package freighter.

Both vessels are of the latest steel type, and when they met head-on the crash could be heard for a long distance. The bow of the Tuscarora was cut wide open, leaving a gash through which the water poured, although her water-tight bulkhead kept the vessel from sinking immediately. The Maryland was badly smashed forward, as well as losing her steering gear and having one of her anchor's torn away. Within half an hour after the collision both boats were on the bottom of the river.

The causes leading up to the accident are not yet known, but the usual misunderstanding of signals is thought to have been responsible.

The Tuscarora was bound up with a cargo of merchandise, while the Maryland was en route to Cleveland. Tugs and lighters have gone to the wreck and will endeavor to save both boats, which can probably be done if the weather continues fine.

"WHITE WINGS"; THE NEW SONG

The Planet is in receipt of a beautiful song, "White Wings," composed by Mrs. Louise McQuillan, of Blenheim. "White Wings" are described in the song as being the sails of a yacht on the waters of Erieau, and the air is particularly appropriate. It has been introduced in New York and other musical centres by the charming favorite Geneva Lawrence. It has made a decided hit wherever it has been sung, and we predict a large sale of this popular sentimental ballad.
