Ben Tillet and Labour

HAMILTON, Sept. 25.—Counselling wisdom and patience in an address dealing with labor problems in Canada, Ben Tillet, the British Labor M. P., addressed the Trades and Labor Congress this morning dealing with the great growth of the labor movement in Great Britain. Mr. Tillet declared that the Trades Union movement embraced 5,000,000 workers whose power was increasing rapidly. Events in the Old Country, he said, were driving the various elements in the movement together. He then detailed the programme adopted by the so-called unskilled workers union, including the dockers. After a reference to the trials of the pioneer of the dockers' organization, Mr. Tillet declared, "and now we have the temerity to go before representatives of the Government and talk with an air of wisdom and confidence. We are inspiring a very healthy respect on the part of the other side, too. In fact it might be called a two-in-one movement."
