TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

THE COMPROMISE

IS ONLY TENTATIVE.

PARIS, Nov. 21.

It was accepted as certain in Paris last night that the entente will survive the present crisis but there was very little enthusiasm for the compromise through which the break was avoided. The provisional character of the accord so far as the details of this have transpired, is one of the reasons for the coolness. The conclusion is that both sides are only partially persuaded and that a conflict is sure to break out again when electioneering considerations have been eliminated from the situation. The only definite result that appears is that the former German Crown Prince will be allowed to drop out of the discussion. The French Government is said to have been trying to keep secret the fact that when the German charge d'affaires called on Count Peretti the French director of political affairs the other day he brought a reaffirmation of the Crown Prince's renunciation of the throne of Prussia in 1918. He also gave assurance that the German Government under no circumstances would tolerate the return of former Emperor as to the outcome of which the Earl of Balfour left some anxiety.

REPORT OF SEPARATIST

CASUALTIES EXAGGERATED.

DUESSELDORF, Nov. 21.

The Separatists in their fight with the Royalists near Bonn last Saturday lost one hundred and thirty men killed and wounded, were completely routed by the peasant loyalists who literally annihilated them, attacking them with axes scythes and other farm implements. The report is printed in the local papers but the local delegate of the Inter-Allied Commission says he has reason to believe the report is exaggerated.

DEATH OF MAJOR

NEIL MACDONALD.

MONTREAL, Nov. 21.

Major Neil R. MacDonald, known throughout Canada and elsewhere as "hog horn" MacDonald died here last night aged sixty-three.

EARL OF BIRKENHEAD PROMISES

SUPPORT TO BALDWIN.

LONDON, Nov. 21.

The Earl of Birkenhead fulfilled his promise to support the Baldwin Government in election campaign, when he addressed the Constitutional Club luncheon yesterday. He entered the luncheon room arm-in-arm with the Earl of Balfour. They were followed by Austin Chamberlain, Sir Robert Horne and Sir William Johnson-Hicks; all three with arms linked. Balfour, introducing Birkenhead delivered a somewhat pessimistic address. He said, that although for reasons imperfectly disclosed, neither Lord Birkenhead nor Mr. Chamberlain would be taken into the Council of the Party, their services were to be used on the platform. Judged from the outside, they had considerable cause for complaint, but they had not allowed personal considerations to get in the way of their promise to spend themselves to the last to help the Government in a difficult and perilous position.

HOW A CAPITAL LEVY WOULD APPLY.

LONDON, Nov. 21.

Only about 250,000 persons in Great Britain would have fortunes large enough to be touched by capital levy proposed by the Laborites according to a statement issued by that party to-day in explanation of how the levy would operate. Fortunes of five thousand pounds would be exempt, and five thousand pounds of every estate exceeding that amount would be free. The scale starts at five per cent. of fortunes of five thousand pounds and over to six thousand and increases progressively to sixty per cent. A man with capital amounting to, but not exceeding one million pounds would be forced to give over half to

The Approach of Mars

At present Mars appears as a moderately bright star, and may be found in the early morning slightly to the south of due east. It is worth while to find Mars now, for it will be possible to watch him from time to time, and see the planet gradually grow brighter as the months pass and the Earth gets nearer and nearer. Our world is actually racing after Mars. It is a long race; it will be nearly ten months, during our world will travel about two hundred and forty million miles after him, before the Earth in her orbit will "draw level" with Mars in his.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR IN PARIS

HAND WRITING.

LONDON, Nov. 21.

The late Bonar Law's will, which was written in his own hand on a plain sheet of Colonial office letter-head, appoints his sister and Lord Beverbrook executors. Beverbrook is to receive all the former premier's papers.

TOWER OF LONDON SAFE.

LONDON, Nov. 21.

The tower of London is safe for another thousand years, say the authorities, in spite of rumors that the building were badly cracked and in danger of collapse.

AMENDMENT TO QUEBEC CITY

CHARTER FOR NEXT SESSION.

QUEBEC, Nov. 13.—To allow Protestant English-speaking rate-payers of this city, numbering about 1,000 people, to be represented in the City Council, an amendment to the city charter will be presented at the next session of the Legislature providing for the election of an English alderman by a vote at large. This suggestion has been made by a number of city fathers in view of the fact that in recent years the English element being very small in each ward, no Protestant has run for civic honors, the Protestant Alderman having been Hon. Justice Gibson, now of the Supreme Court. The Irish element has, however, always been represented. There seemed to be little opposition to the projected amendment. As a result the membership of the City Council will be increased from thirteen to fourteen.

Irish Author Wins

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 14.—(Associated Press).—The Nobel prize for literature has been awarded to William Butler Yeats, the Irish author, was announced to-day.

Sport

Morning Post: There is something of the boy in the most venerable of English sportsmen, and our sports men, and our sports would lose half their value and all their charm if, instead of playing the game, we calculated too finely on results. It will be a sad day for England when we prepare for our sports in the way the Germans prepared for their wars.

Little Known Island

Very few people have ever heard of the little French island of St. Pierre de Miquelon. It is almost lost in fog and icebergs off the coast of Newfoundland, and yet it is a most interesting history. It is a French possession and the first authentic visit of a Frenchman to Newfoundland was that of Johan Denys in 1606; and in 1638, Jacques Cartier records that he had sailed several ships from France and England "at the islands of St. Pierre de Miquelon." In the first half of the sixteenth century, Normans, Bretons and Basques competed in daring expeditions for France's fishery. From January to March, 1644, at least two ships a day left Havre, Rouen, Bordeaux or Dieppe for Newfoundland and St. Pierre de Miquelon. In the autumn everyone returned to his port of embarkation, where he passed the winter, and St. Pierre was only a fishing station.—Family Herald.

Carried Unanimously

Daily Express: Woman is Nature's masterpiece and as long as the majority of the men in the world return a unanimous vote to this effect the beauty of woman, in America or elsewhere, will not alter. Once Man becomes sick and says, "Give me a chance," Nature, who works always with one eye on to-morrow, will have to consider the application. The time is not yet!

Reciprocation

Rich caller (who is making the round of the tenement district): Well, I must go now. Is there anything I can do for you, my good woman. The other (of the submerged): No, thank ya, mem. Ye mustn't mind it, mem. I don't return the call. I haven't any time to go slummin' me self.

U. S. Policy

Boston Transcript: What is certain is that the United States will not submit the Monroe Doctrine to alien jurisdiction, any more than the Constitution or the Declaration of Independence; and therefore we shall never be party to a treaty by whose terms we would be compelled, as France is now doing, to kick over the traces after we have got between them.

"Rum Row" Will

be Much Smaller

NEW ARRANGEMENT BETWEEN

U. S. AND BRITAIN WILL SHUT OUT SMALL SCHOONERS.

Small schooners have had their day on "Rum Row," off the American coast, is the opinion of local Customs Officials, if the contemplated arrangements between Great Britain and the United States, whereby the three mile limit is extended to twelve miles, are put into force. So far as the local Customs have yet been advised, the twelve mile limit is not specifically mentioned in the convention now being prepared between the two countries, but the distance under which a vessel under the British flag carrying contraband liquor for the United States may be safe against seizure by the Americans is the distance of one hour from the American shore. This means if a British boat was sufficiently fast to elude its pursuer for one hour it might be twenty-five miles from the shore, all according to its speed.

This regulation will practically bar the small sail vessel. As to its effectiveness in lessening the amount of liquor smuggled into the United States, there is a grave question among men who have become fairly well acquainted with the rum-running trade. It is believed that the large amount of money which was behind the ownership and control of the vessels will simply be syndicated and fast steamers purchased, with a slight increase in cost of liquor to the American consumer.

There is another way out of the restrictions for the rum runner, and that is to transfer his vessel to another flag, as the convention now with the United States is only for ships of British register. There would be some difficulties in this regard as, for instance, change of register to the French flag would mean that the vessel would then have to carry a French captain and two-thirds of the crew of that nationality.

CONCESSION TO BRITISH.

One of the factors behind the British Government's willingness to grant the small concession of the 12-mile limit in the specific case of contraband liquor, in a policy which is one of the bulwarks of the British Empire, and that of obtaining from the United States in return the right of British ships carrying liquor when in American ports. About six months ago the American Government issued instructions that no foreign ships were to bring liquor for their own use into American ports. One of the ships to protest against this ruling was the Megantic of the White Star line, and her stock of liquor was seized at New York on her first trip in after the regulation had gone into force. On her recent call at Boston, the complete amount of liquor seized several months ago was restored to the ship by the American authorities, one of the first results of the new convention between the two countries.

Religious Education

The Times: There is a growing conviction that no education can be satisfactory which is not definitely religious, and that no care in the compilation of a syllabus of religious instruction, or fidelity in teaching it, can be satisfactory if it fails to inspire a desire for the Christian ideals of life. Moreover it is becoming more generally recognized that religious education requires for its fullest efficiency a consciousness of fellowship with others which cannot be secured apart from membership in an organized Church and participation in its worship.
