PARLIAMENT'S TRIBUTE

Upon a motion by Premier Asquith, seconded by A. J. Balfour, leader of chamber in his affliction and in which also were expressed the congratulations of the House. The address proceeds:

"We will ever remember with grateful affection the zeal and success with which our late sovereign labored to consolidate the peace and concord of the world, to aid every merciful endeavor for the alleviation of human suffering, and to unite in justice and freedom all races and classes of his subjects. "We beg to offer your majesty our loyal congratulations upon your auspicious accession, and we assure your majesty of our devotion to his royal person, and our sure conviction that his reign will, under the favor of divine providence, be distinguished by unswerving efforts to promote the virtue and contentment of the realm, and to guard the rights and liberties of his majesty's faithful people." The Premier's Tribute.

Speaking on the motion, Mr. Asquith referred to the reign "of the Great King suddenly taken from us," as years crowded with moving events hroughout the empire. He contin

"In our relations with foreign counries they have been years of growing friendships and new understandings, strong and sure safeguards of the of mankind.

"Within the Empire the sense of interdependence, the concentration of common interests and common risks, and of the ever-tightening bonds of co-operative unity, has been developed as never before. "Here at home, and by way of contrast, controversial issues of the gravest kind, economic, social and constitutional, have ripened with rapid maturity. In all of these multiform manfestations of our national and imperial life, history will assign a part of particular dignity and authority to the great ruler whom we have lost. In external affairs his powerful personal inwars, but the causes and pretexts of wars and he well earned the title by which he will always be remembered.

The Peacemaker of the World." The Premier then moved an expression of the House's condolence to the Queen-Mother Alexandra on the loss which she had sustained, and assuring the nation would ever preserve toward her sentiments of unalterable reverence and affection.

While he was speaking, Mr. Asquith was obviously deeply affected. When he expressed the feeling which the House felt for the queen mother, he all but broke down.

Speaking along similar lines in the House of Lords, the Earl of Crewe was well-nigh overcome with emotion, and oncluded his remarks only with difficulty.
