Lizzie Alcott pickled a hundred oysters, and her black eyed sister prepared a dish of chicken saiad, which would have made a profession nal cook turn green with envy. And the end of it all was, that the gloomy, dusty little den was transfomed, for the time being, into a perfect fairy bower, with a Java canvas tidy covering the worn leather easy chair, a bright fire of Liverpool coal in the grate, while fresh out flowers exhaled their perfume, and the sable was dressed with true feminine neatness and taste.

Will the Fifth and Final Act Be a Tragedy?
Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

"Dr. Limooln who was at the funeral of ex-Secretary Frelinghuysen, says ex-President Arthur looked very unwell. He is suffering from Bright's disease. During the past year it has assumed a very aggravated form."

That telegram is act IV. of a drama written by ex-President Arthur's physicians. In act I, he was made to appear in "Maisria," of which all the country was teld when he went to Flerida.

In act II, he represented a tired man, worn down, walking the sands at Old Point Comfort and looking eastward over the Atlantic toward Europe for a longer rest.

No, nature has not been remiss. Independent research has given an infallible remedy for this common disorder; but of course the bigoted physicians will not use Warner's safe cure, because it is a private affair and cuts up their practice by restoring the health of those who have been invalids for years.

The new saying of "how common bright's disease is becoming among prominent men!" is getting old, and as the Englishmen would say, sounds "stupid"—especially "stupid" since this disease is readily detected by the more learned men and specialists of this disease. But the "common run" of physicians, not detecting it, give the patient Epsom salts or other drugs prescribed by the old code of treatment under which their grandfathers and great-grandfathers practiced!

Anon, we hear that the patient is "comabout it she replied: "Well, your honor, I'm a dimmycrat and my old man voted for Blaine, and shure I turned him out for offinsive partisanship. Begorra, that's the shtoils now." The magistrate, being a civil service reform democrat, discharged

"We're all your cousins," added Lizzie Alcott.

"But," persisted Harry Caverley, "I think there must be some mistake."

"None in the least," said Nelly, arbitrarily. "Now sit down here at the head of the banquet, and mind you do justice to everything."

And Harry Caverley could but obey, But he thought that if this was the general method of welcoming homeless young men to New York, what a paradise it must be for bachelors!
