Hot Water Remedies.

Buffalo Erenny News: Hot water is so simple a remedy, and so easily obtained that its value is not half appreciated. It is one of the best restorers of nervous energy; it rests the weary, and it relieves pain, not only as an outward application, but us a renesly to be taken internally. A sudden and wearing attack of coughing often needs immediate attention, es-pecially in consumptives, and those chronically ill. In an emergency, that ever useful remedy will often provo effective. It is much better than the erdinary cough mixtures, which disorder the digestion and smit the appetito. Water, almost boiling, should be sipped when the paroxy susceme on. A cough, resulting from irritation, is relieved by hot water through the promotion of secretion, which moistens the irritated surfaces For the trying dry cough, hot water is also excellent, as it promotes expectoration, and brings reliof. When one have sudden attack of indigestion it is a good plan to take a cup of hot water as nearly boiling as it can be borne. Persons suffering from dyspepsia will find a relief by drinking a cup of hot water on rising in the morning. When one comes home at night after a fatiguing day, nothing is more restful than bathing the head and back of the neck with a towel wrung out of water as hot as can be borne. It soothes the nerves and rests body and brain. The same trent ment relieves a nervous headacho as nothing ciso does. When one is overheated and there is a rush of blood to the head, a hot towel applied to the face and head is a great relief. In heat of summer this same hot towel refreshes and cools theskin, and gives it a feeling of lightness and comfort that cold water never gives.

Mischievous Monkeys.

At Benares, ledia, there is a temple belonging to the nearboys who are held sacred by the people and a party of Americans visited this temple not long

We had provided ourselves with popeom and goodles, writes one of the party, which we intended to offer the monkeys, but they did not give us a chance to give them the dainties. They sustehed them from our hands, and when our supplies were gone they amused themselves by mocking us.

One of our party, who had a bad cold, blow his nose very londly. Scarcely had he replaced his bandkerenot in his people to the angle of the angle. pocket when a monkey seized the end, illed it out, and gave a time imitation of the act. Then of course, some of us had kodaks, and after we had taken several pictures another little imp picked up a little block of wood which lay upon the ground, and with it took several snap shotsatus. A third mischievoussimism, a valu mother monkey, who deserted her infant for the purpose, grabbed from my shoulders a red searl, and in a few flying lears carried it to a julty minaret. There she put it on, and seemed to be quito proud of her looks. But she was not allowed to keep her prize. In about three minutes at least 40 monkeys had bit a piece off my precious scart. our native guide informed me that the monkeys were very land of searls, and that they captured a great many on the stone "ghats" near the temple while their owners were bathing in the river.

Love the Living.

Do not keep the alabaster boxes of your tore and tenderness scaled up until your triends are dead. Fill then lives with sweetness. Speak approving cheering words while their ears can hear them, and while their hearts can be thrilled and made happler by them. The kind things you mean to say when they are gone say before they go. The flowers you mean to send for their collins, send to brighten and sweeten their homes before they leave them. If my friends have alabaster boxes faid away, friends have diabeter invested in way, full of fragrant perfumes of sympathy and affection, which they intend to break over my dead body. I would rather they would bring them out in my weary and troubled hours, and open them, that I would be freshed and closered by them. may be refreshed and cheered by them while I need them. I would rather have a plain coffin without flowers, a funeral without a enlogy, than a life without the sweetness of love and sympathy. Let us learn to anomt our friends beforehand for their burial. Post mortem kludness does not cheer the burdened spirit Flowers on the collin cast no fragrance backward over the weary way.

Conversation Eliquette

Do not always begin a conversation by remarking on the weather.

Do not talk loudly or fast. A clear, stinct voice has great power.

Do not argue or appear to notice other people's maccuracies in speech.

Do not speak mockingly of personal detects. Somebody present may have the same.

Do not, when narrating an incident, keep on saying," You see," " You know,"

Do not talk of your private and family affairs except to intimate friends, and then be careful not to do so often.

Do not cross question people. It is but form to force a confidence, but if one is made to you, you are bound to respect it. Do not find fault needlessly even with the weather. The liabit of grambling at either people or things is most disagreeable.

Do not whisper. If you have anything to say that the general company may not hear, re-erve it till you and the person to whom you desire to impart it are alone.

Do not talk of things which the company present cannot be interested in. By so doing you may show yourself a clever and superior person, but you will be voted a bore.

Learning to Bo a Centleman.

Two boys stood at a well getting a drink. They were both nice looking, well-dressed high school boys. A woman approached to get a pail of water. One boy stepped back to make way for her, but the other took her pail and filled it.

"You were a simpleton to do that," said the first boy; "why, she didn't even thank you for it."

"I didn't do it for thanks," said the other, good humoredly. "Besides, you'd have done the same thing if it had been Bessio or some of the other girls from

"Of course," said the first, "one has to wait on young ladies, but I don't see why a fellow should put himself out to pump water for any one like that.

"Well," said the second boy, "my mother taught me to treat every woman as if also was a larly, whether she deservod it or not. I've always done it, and have never been sorry. I guess I'll keep on? - Christian Standard.
