

A Gold Medal for French.

Merchant (to clerk) — What is that medal for?
 Clerk — For French.
 Merchant — I didn't know you could speak French.
 Clerk — Neither I can, but I was the best in my class.

This is only a little joke, but it represents an actual state of affairs. We have at present for a pupil a graduate of Harvard University who made a specialty of Latin and Greek at college, and who is now taking our Latin course. He studied Latin for years; he is now learning Latin. There is a vast difference between studying and learning. Students, do not trifle away your time with crude methods. The royal road to languages is by The De Brisay Analytical Method.
