

to participate in these spiritual favors cannot be suspected of seeking temporal interests.

2nd. If a person in easy circumstances associates with nine poor persons, and engages to furnish the contribution required, these nine persons may gain the indulgences granted to the Association for the Propagation of the Faith, providing they comply with all the other conditions prescribed.

---

RULES.

ART. I. The Association may begin in each Parish by the first person who may wish to promote the object in view ; and in order to this it will be sufficient to associate him (or herself) with nine other persons who will correspond with and remit to him or her their contributions, either weekly or monthly. There may thus be formed in each Parish as many sections as there are tens of persons willing to become members. The person presiding over each section may, if desirous, keep a list of his or her associates, and will see that the vacancies occasioned by death, absence, or otherwise, be filled up.

ART. II. In every place where the number of sections will amount to ten or more, parties of 100 may be formed, the heads of which shall be chosen from among the persons presiding over the