C. M. A. Tourists Banquetted in Paris Amid Most Cordial GERMAN-SWEDISH ALLIANGE Manifestations — Minister of Commerce Promises His Ald in Improving Treaty of 1895. (Canadian Associated Press Cable)

Paris, July 13 .- The tour of the C.M. A. closed to night, the crowning event being a banquet given by the Paris King and Kaiser Have Protracted chamber of commerce at the Palais d'Orsay, the minister of commerce, M. Dubief, presiding. It was the first banquet to a representative body of Canadians ever held in Paris. Over a hundred were present, and two hun-

The president of the republic was represented by Col. Heoulet. Among others present wees enators, members of the Fiench legisticative, prominent men of Patis in commissioner, Gen. Fabre, M. Picard, commissioner at the Paris Exposition; Col. Sir J. Roper Parkington, founder of the Association of the L'Entente Cordiale of London, established in 1896. The entente cordiale ran thru all the speeches and was the keynote of the banquet, which reached its climax when President George sent a cable to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, conveying the heartiest greetings of the Paris Chamber of Commerce.

There was the greatest enthusiasm when the minister of commerce proposed the health of King Edward. He stated that France was bound to improve the commerce treaty of 1885, and he would use his influence to effect the desired changes. The plaudits were renewed when the minister stated the example of Quebec and the other provinces had worked on the French spirit and brought about the entente cordials, which was thereby the work of Canada.
