THE SECRET MINING DEAL.

Apprehension over the secret mining deal between the Temiskaming Railway Commission and an Ottawa syndicate will be allayed in a measure by the Attorney-General's statement that the matter will be reviewed by the Government. Under the act the commission has no authority to sell or lease mining privileges without the authority of the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.

The Ottawa Citizen, the Conservative newspaper of the capital, advises that the concession be offered again to the public on the terms which were proposed by the Ottawa syndicate, and accepted by the commission without inviting competition. Says the Citizen:
"A change was made in the terms of the sale, obviously of a nature favorable to the purchasers, and the change was made without being advertised so that any other competitors might have had an opportunity to take advantage of it. In the opinion of the Citizen while there may be nothing actually wrong in this it exposes the commission to the charge of partiality and unfair dealing, and reflects through the action of the commission on the Government."

The fact that the son and the business associate of one of the commissioners, Mr. Denis Murphy, are members of the favored syndicate, does not improve the position of the railway board. The concession consists of a strip 99 feet wide and about three miles long, included in the right-of-way of the Temiskaming Railway. The lower end runs for about one third of a mile into the famous Gilles' limit, which is supposed to be so rich in silver ores that Premier Whitney announced that it would not be disposed of, but would be developed and mined for the benefit of the people of Ontario.
It may be asked why the Government has disposed of a parcel of land in the Gilles' limit, which the Premier declared to be so rich that it would be preserved as the heritage of the people. It may be asked also why the terms for the lease of the right-of-way, which Mr. Whitney declared were the lowest the Government would accept, were modified in the interest of a favored syndicate. Perhaps some light will be thrown upon these matters by the Government itself when it reviews the secret deal.

SUMMER FOOD.

The superlative term presents the problem of what diet is best for one at this season, and nature unerringly indicates in her profusion of fruit and vegetables the food which is best for the average human system, with the further advantage of furnishing it in such plenty as to permit the poorer people to enjoy the boon.

In an editorial on summer foods, the New York Herald points out that during the heated term nature wisely tempers the appetite for meats and other solids and contents us with lighter garden stuffs in their season, which in torrid zones constitute the bulk of the diet. "Eggs, milk, cereals and fish," it says, "supply most of our needs for substantial nourishment, while the fruits and vegetables do the rest." The Herald continues:

The food value of fruit depends mainly upon the amount of sugar, salts and vegetable acids they contain. The relative proportions of these ingredients vary greatly and have a corresponding influence on nutrition and digestibility.
"The orange is perhaps the leading favorite, combining substance, flavor, sweetness and due acidity. The apple ranks next, but in its raw state is sometimes indigestible. It is perhaps the only common fruit that is improved by cooking.

"Peaches are comparatively poor in sugar, have very small nutritive value, being mostly composed of gum, vegetable jelly and acid juices.
As a rule they are easily digested.

"The banana is the most substantial of all fruits, has the highest sustaining properties and is generally easily assimilated.
"Cherries and the various berries are particularly reliable, because of the large quantity of sugar they contain.

"Pears, grapes and melons, delicious in their way, have also little more than flavor to recommend them as articles of diet. Of course, none of these should be eaten unripe or overripe, as in either case they may cause digestive derangements. Their ideal state is when they are fully matured and freshly picked.

"Among vegetables the potato, although composed of starch, is the all-round standby, but it owes its reputation more to its agreeable combination with meats, beans, peas, and other protein foods than to any intrinsic virtue of its own. The various other roots, such as the carrot, beet, turnip, and radish, are also quite poor in proteins and contain but a small amount of other nutrients. All are however, valuable, not only in providing a variety that stimulates appetite, but are of distinct service in preventing that particular form of mal-nutrition known as scurvy, at one time the scourge of army and navy.

"Cabbage is a veritable bugbear to many who might enjoy an otherwise relishable dish. Raw, boiled or fermented, it is the horror of the dyspeptic, but to the Teutonic stomach it is more than a welcome guest.

"Boiled spinach, however, an equally German dish, has no such objections and is now much in fashion with the medical profession as a combined food and medicine for torpid digestion.

"The cooling salads are deservedly popular. The lettuce family, cresses and the like are wholesome, digestible and agreeable to the system. Asparagus is rightly prized for its delicious flavor. Even the onion, the despised interloper, is a most honest contributor to any feast and by its volatile salts acts as a sufficient stom-achic stimulant. The tomato ranks equally high as a relish, but is most unjustly under the ban as a provoker of rheumatism.

"Thus for the summer feeder there is truly an embarrassment of opportunities. The best of all is that fruit and vegetables in the raw state retain their original flavor and are all within reach when we appreciate and need them most.

"But for all that can be said in favor of mostly vegetable diet for some months, a meat food in some shape is required by the body workers. One meal of meat, fish or poultry is usually sufficient for such, unless the bodily labor is very severe. In this, as in other matters of feeding, the appetite has a rule of its own that defies all theories and is a law unto itself."

Is it the calm before or after the storm in Russia?

Kipling's latest shows that politics is spoiling a good poet.

King Edward has had an interview with Mr. Bryan, who may become a bigger autocrat than any British sovereign dares to be.

The papers are discussing the merits of alcohol as fuel. It would be well for tipplers to bear in mind in hot weather that alcohol is a fuel.

Apparently the simple folks in Newfoundland are ready to believe that Earl Grey is conspiring to carry away the island in his vest pocket.

There are two reasons for doubting the report of Dr. Reaume's retirement.
First, Dr. Reaume denies it. Second, his putative successor, Hon. Mr. Hendrie, would probably be defeated in West Hamilton, because of the Government's violation of his anti-prison labor pledges.

A GAME OF CHANCE.

[Philadelphia Ledger.]
Doctor Phaker—Take this prescription; it will either kill or cure you.
Patient—But suppose it kills me?
Doctor Phaker—Nothing ventured, nothing gained. My motto is, "No cure no pay," so I'm taking a chance as well as you.

A TRAGEDY.

[Milwaukee Sentinel.]
The man lay prone upon the pavement. Blood trickled from a ragged gash in his throat and formed in a little pool near his head.

There were no marks of violence—nothing to show how the man had come by the accident. For a minute the great detective was baffled. Suddenly a strange light shone in his keen gray eyes, while a smile of satisfaction played about his lips.

"Have you discovered how the man's throat was cut?" they asked.
"Yes, he's wearing a collar that's been to the laundry twice."

AT THE CALL OF THE ROAD.

[New York Sun.]
Let's go out on the road today.
Out on the winding wide vistas shine, Wide and wonderful, yours and mine.

Time there was when we were not free; Custom trailed us, you and me, Old Convention bade us bide In stuffy stalls of a house inside.

But by the eager spirit's stroke All the chains at last we broke;
And the leash and curb the bond At the call of the road souring fond.

Now there is none to say us nay!
Let's go out on the road today!
Staff in hand, let us take the road,
And travel far to the gods' abode.

Staff in hand and soul aglow, Over the halcyon hills we go; Over the hills and up the heights Where the road dips down in a bath of light.

THERE ARE OTHERS.

[Exchange.]
"I am proud to say that my grandfather made his mark in the world."

"Well, I suppose he wasn't the only man in those days who couldn't write his name."

INCREASING THE VISION.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]
Little streams of seltzer, Little lumps of ice,
Colored up with bourbon,
Make a man see twice.

FREE HAIRCUTS.

[Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.]
M. Nosskoff, a South Side barber, will open his second annual free hair-cutting period next Monday morning, and all boys and girls under 16 years and his assistants cut the hair of 2,000 children last year. It is expected that the rush will be even greater this year.
The first day last year it was necessary to provide police protection in line for their turn, and in order that no one be kept waiting long four new barbers have been added to the staff.

THE SPOILS SYSTEM.

[Hamilton Times.]
Political exigencies and not geographical boundaries were the reasons which guided Mr. Whitney in the selection of places for these normal schools. Hamilton is to get one as a sort of consolation for losing the Normal College. Stratford is to get one because Mr. Monteth has the pull, and Kingston loses one because it sent a Grit to the Legislature. The spoils system is in force in the education department, just as it is in the license department, and all other branches of the provincial service.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

[Toronto Star.]
Race suicide is such a serious matter that Crown Attorney Corley should inquire if the rules of apartment-houses are not accessories before the fact.

EPITAPH.

[Eden Philopolls.]
When the dust of the workshop is still,
The dust of the workman at rest, May some generous heart find a will To seek and to treasure his best!

From the splendor of hopes that deceived;
From the wonders he meant to do;
From the glories he nearly achieved;
From the dreams that nearly came true,
From his struggle to rise above earth On the pinnacles that would not fly; From his sorrows; oh, seek for some worth To remember the workman by.

If in vain; if Time sweeps all away,
And no laurel from that dust springs;
"His enough that a loyal heart say,"
"He tried to make beautiful things."

HOW DID SHE KNOW?

[Megendorfer Blatter.]
Mrs. Dash—I don't understand, dear, why you can't get along with your husband. He's such a charming man! Perhaps you haven't been sufficiently—Mrs. Rash—Yes, I have!

NOT TO BE TRIFLED WITH.

[Royal Magazine.]
The colonial wife is not to be trifled with. When her husband goes "up country" and neglects to return within a fair and reasonable time she simply advertises for him.

Here is a record advertisement from an Australian paper:
"If my husband, A. B., does not answer this advertisement in three weeks I intend to get married. Signed C. D."

OUR DAILY JOKE.

[Puck.]
Nothing is serious in our eyes:
We are a laughter-loving folk, Our prayer each morning when we rise—"Give us this day our daily joke." Lead us not into boredom's thrall; Deliver us, now and hereafter, From serious thoughts. And should we fail Forgive us, Mousie, God of Laughter."

TAUGHT.

[Puck.]
He taught her how to skate, He taught her how to swim—They're married now and she is teaching lots of things to him!

A HOLLER FROM HIGHER UP.

[Cleveland Plaindealer.]
There is going to be a lot of trouble when some almsman refuses to come down.

HIS FIRST VACATION.

[Atlanta Journal.]
Russell Sage has gone on his first vacation.

IT WAS TO LAUGH.

[Pele Mele.]
Mother—What are you crying for?
Boy—Father's hit his fingers with the hammer.

Mother—That's no crying matter, my boy; laugh over it.
Boy—That's just my misfortune, I did laugh.

WASTING ITS FRAGRANCE.

[Ally Sloper.]
Mr. Monk—What are you so miserable about, old chap?
The Giraffe—My best girl plinned a rose in my buttonhole and I'm so high up I can't smell it.

THE WIND AND SEA.

[Bayard Taylor.]
The sea is a jovial comrade; He laughs and sings and His merriest shines in the dimpling lines That wrinkle his hale repose; He lays himself down at the feet of the sun,
And shakes all over with glee And the broad-backed billows fall faint on the shore
In the mirth of the mighty sea.

But the wind is sad and restless, And cursed with an inward pain, You may hear as you will by valley or hill
But you hear him still complain, He wails on the barren mountains,
And shrieks the windy sea, He sobs in the cedar and moans in the pine,
And shudders all over the aspen tree.

Welcome are both their voices, And I know not which is best—The laughter that slips from the ocean's lips,
Or the comfortless wind's unrest, There's a pang in all rejoicing, A joy in the heart of pain, And the wind that saddens, the sea that gladdens,
Are singing the self-same strain.

YUKON STATISTICS.

[Dawson News.]
A correspondent asks the News to secure reliable data. By the courtesy of the administration the News is able to give the following brief official figures: Area of Yukon territory, 125,649,500 acres or 220,300 square miles. Gold output from 1869 to December 31, 1905, estimated at $130,000,000. Royalty or tax was paid on $107,004,218.75. The census of 1901 gave Yukon a population of 27,219. The present official estimate of the population is 8,000.

A MATTER OF TASTE.

[Exchange.]
"Can any little boy," asked the new teacher, "tell me the difference between a lake and an ocean?"
"I can," replied Edward, whose wisdom had been learned from experience.
"Lakes are much pleasanter to swallow when you fall in."

WHAT IT LOOKED LIKE.

[Megendorfer Blatter.] Bootblack (to cabman driving a starved-looking horse)—Say, Bili, what's that you've got in front of your cab?
Cabman—That's my new horse, you fool.
"Oh, I thought it was an X-ray photograph."

NOT BEAUTIES,
SAYS GAEKWARAmerican Women Attractive,
But Not Pretty.

VULGAR CURIOSITY OFFENDED

And the Scenery Only Impressed Him in a Few Spots of Good Hilly Country.

New York, July 30.—Oh, Gaekwar of Baroda, how could you say those cruel words!

After all the kind things America has said of him and of her charming highness, the Maharane, the second most mighty potentate and richest noble of India, on sailing away yesterday set down American women from the head to the foot as "not beauties."
"The America woman is not beautiful," said his highness, with Oriental frankness.

With the Maharane, his brother, Sampatras Gaekwar, his secretary, suite and servants, the Gaekwar had traveled over this country from seashore to seashore—from down east to the Panhandle—and he couldn't find one beautiful woman.

There is, of course, only one explanation, and that is the Gaekwar's growth, my friends, and you are growing. On every side I have been struck with the rapid development of your resources—educational, social and commercial.

Your development can be seen in the unfading envy of your people and the great prosperity that is here.
Somebody asked him what he thought of American society, and his reply was still like Gorky's.

"As in any country as new as this," he said, "one of the things that strikes me here is bound to be somewhat crude.
What you call the higher class, as well as the lower class, we found exceedingly kind and hospitable.
"I must admit, however, that we have very frequently met with a spirit of curiosity which in my poor opinion verged almost upon vulgarity. I will not use the word 'vulgar' in connection with the curiosity of your best families.
"In certain cities even the people seemed determined to regard us as curiosities, to be stared at rather than as interested equals—a party of ladies and gentlemen from another country traveling among them for pleasure and profit.

Her Highness Annoyed.
"Her Highness the Maharane had to submit to a good deal of this, possibly because she dresses as ladies of her rank always do. But she is a woman of sense and she enjoyed herself greatly, and she has the kindest of feelings for the friends she made in America."

The Maharajah's opinions of the American newspapers are again similar to those of the Russian Socialist.

"The newspaper is a mighty force," said the Gaekwar, "but I do not think your newspapers devote enough of their energies to educating their readers."
"Also they have the national habit of acute inquisitiveness highly developed.
Many times when we had arrived at some city late at night and tired out, the reporters would insist on having me out of the car, and that was interesting, but I might have regarded it as better taste had they waited a few hours."

"I do not want to put a critic of your journalism, but I think the papers here err in devoting too much space to the details of divorces, family scandals, murders and crimes in general. Your 'yellow press' is doing harm."

Asked what part of the country had impressed him the most, his reply showed that he was not wholly pleased with American scenery.

"More than anything else," he said, "I was impressed by the park of the Yellowstone. I was also greatly impressed by the Grand Canyon, the Thousand Islands and the great lakes. To my mind these are the greatest things on your continent."

"Since we came here in May, we have ranged from Boston to Galveston, and from Washington to Portland and Seattle.

"Much of what we saw was beautiful beyond description, and the immensity of the distances is often most stunning, but, if you gentlemen will pardon me for my boldness, I must confess that, with the exception of the Rocky Mountain Range and some other ranges, your land is too flat to please me. It lacks the grandeur of the Himalayas, that one finds in mountainous countries."

Warren Belcher, for 53 years postmaster at Winthrop, Mass., has resolved to be succeeded by his son, David Belcher. In time of service he was the oldest postmaster in the United States.

Next to Lari Charles Beresford, Prince Louis of Battenberg is the most popular officer in the British navy. He is a stern disciplinarian, but always scrupulously just, thoroughly up-to-date in his profession and with a knowledge of mechanics which almost ranks him as an expert.
He speaks English like a native except when excited. Then his favorite exclaim-ation is, "Ach himmel!"

WOE IN "DE FIFTEENT"

Laundryman Leaves Entire Ward Without Clean Shirts.

New York, July 30.—There was blood on the face of the moon last night when it rolled over the fifteenth assembly district, where "The McManus rules. Hop Sing, the neighborhood's laundryman, had skipped, and if the cohorts of Mc-Manus could have laid hands on him they would have strung him up by his queue.

Hop Sing could not have chosen a worse time to disappear, for it is "de fifteent's" day to wear boiled shirts and highly starched skirts at the annual picnic and dance of "The Mc-Manus Association. All of these things are locked up in the Chin-aman's wash-house at No. 508 West Fifty-second street, where they were sent a week ago to be "done up" for the outing. At midnight, with all returns in, it looked as if "de fifteent" will have to turn out today in overalls and gingham aprons.

An appeal was made to McManus yesterday afternoon and he had the police send out a general alarm for Hop Sing. Chinatown was dragged and the plain-clothes men who were assigned on the case from the West Forty-seventh street station even went so far as to visit the aquarium in the hope of finding Hop Sing watching the new consignment of Chinese carp.

"He was a good Chinik," said "The McManus last night, and he had the confidence of my constituency, although he had no vote. But it's a dirty trick he played on us, laundry-man thought he be. The district's wild, and if it could lay its hands on the yellow peril it would tear him limb from limb. I've had the coppers on it, and the most they can learn is that Hop beat it on Wednesday. He'd better keep on going."

Some of the wild spirits of the district were for breaking into the laundry and taking their clothes, but "The McManus said he wouldn't stand for burglary.

Pearson, the London magazine and weekly paper publisher, is beginning to regret that he froze T. P. O'Connor out of M. A. P. Mr. O'Connor's new weekly started out with a sale of 300,000 for the first number, and seems destined to cut heavily into the Pearson field.

Rupture

THE MOST RELIABLE and Successful—Greatest success in the treatment of Hernia (Rupture) Varicocele (False Rupture) of all known agencies in modern times. He who makes a specialty of one department must certainly be more experienced and capable than those having many lines in the line. Don't put off your case, believing it to be simple—Remember neglect often proves fatal. Have your case attended to now, and thus avoid danger. Stop waiting time and money elsewhere but come to one whose life-long study has taught him what to do. Do not despond or be deterred from seeking further advice, or because of repeated failures consider your case incurable. Because others failed in your case you have become discouraged. This is the very time you should consult me as my reputation has been made in curing hopeless (so-called) cases.
LADIES suffering from Navel or any form of Rupture should not hesitate in having their case attended to at once. Everything strictly private and professional.
MOTHERS—Look to your children—Now is the time to have them cured, while young.
Don't allow them to grow up handicapped in the race of life, with rupture.

MY CHARGES are within reach of all, the poor man as well as the rich. Terms can be satisfactorily arranged, no reason why you should not consult me at once, during this visit.
