Motion for the opinion, advice or direction of the court upon certain questions existing in the administain questions arising in the adminis-tration of the estate. Judgment (G.). The claim of the widow on her own behalf, and on behalf of her children —Maurice and Madeleine—to share in the estate as upon an intestacy may properly be disregarded by the admin-istrator. As to the daughter Harriet's claim to the whole estate under provi-sion in marriage settlment, giving her $8000, apart from the presumption of law against double portions, the will itself indicates that no advantage in sharing in the estate shall be had by one child over another, and therefore held that Harriet is entitled but to one-fourth of her father's estate. As to whether shares of the infants—Mau-rice and Madeleine—are to abate by the amount of their respective shares of the property, real and personal, now held in trust for them by their mother.

If a trust is validly created by the deed in respect of these shares it is a trust not for Maurice and Madeline only but for Challes and Madeline. leine only, but for Charles and Harriet also. . . It was the intention of the testator that each of his four named children shall have an equal share, and so the shares of Maurice and Madeleine are not subject to abatement. . . Editor World: I have noticed with considerable interest and sympathy letter in your issue to-day signed by "Citizen," in which he gives more evidence of what the suffering public have to undergo at the hands of the street railway company in Toronto. His complaint is nothing new, because I have had to undergo the same treatment very many times myself when traveling on East King-street not only having been turned out of the car at the sheds, with instructions to "take the car behind," but dropped off a second time at the Woodbine, and the car behind being invariably packed like unto sardines.

There is some consolation, however in the announcement that I read in The World a little over a week ago, I think, that we are before very long to have a line of motor buses. This will undoubtedly relieve the present state of affairs, because, as I understand it the policy of the bus company will be that everybody traveling on the buses will have a seat, and there will be none of this miserable business of hang-ing on to straps and the embarrassing position that ladies are often placed in with the present street car system. Your paper has always been devoted and I sincerely hope you will open your olumns so that we may hear from following officers were elected: Presi-

The government say they will have to deport his family now at Quebec next Saturday afternoon if he dies not raise the $100. We hope some good Samaritans will be good enough to contribute something towards this family. The setablished by the clerical party in St. Pierre-Miquelon, says: "The news is significant, but not unexpected. The abandonment of our fishing rights on the French shore of Newfoundland struck them a blow they will feel to something towards this family. Sens Valu
