KITCHENER MUST REMAIN IN OFFICE

Standard Editorial Speaks Strongly of Criticism of War Secretary

BRITAIN FORTUNATE

Thankful They Had Such a Man Available When War Broke Out

LONDON, May 22 .- A Standard editerial says: "Kitchener must remain in the war office. He possesses the naon's confidence, and attacks made on him are bitterly resented by a great majority of his countrymen. majority of his countrymen. The allegations that he is responsible for the shortage of explosive shells are entirely unjustified and reprehensible.

Should Be Thankful. "Kitchener, it is true, has limitations, and it is idle to ignore them. No man can combine all the qualities desirable in a war minister. At a time of naemergency we may well be thankful that there was available last autumn a soldier of the enormous capacity for work, with the extraordin ary gift for organization, and with a single-minded devotion to duty. Bless ed, too, with cold masculine intellect, equally proof against self-deception and influence from without, Kitchener has succeeded in his main objects despite difficulties that can hardly be conceived much less appreciated by Remove Anxiety.

"He is simply irreplaceable and the prime minister should hasten to re-move all anxiety on this score by announcing officially that in the new cabinet Kitchener will continue to be secretary of war.

'Dispatch' or "Despatch"

"'Dispatch' or 'Despatch'? Sir Harry Poland, writing in The Times, declares the former correct and the latter a the very best care of all Point visi-corruption due to a misprint in Johnson's Dictionary. For ourselves," says
The Pall Mall, "we are content to adhere to the convenient practice of spelling a word which has acquired wo separate meanings, according as the one or the other is intended. Thus we should write of Sir John French's despatch, and of the Invincible as being sent to the Falkland Islands 'with utmost dispatch.' It may be il literate, but it is handy."
