

TO GET OPTION ON BUILDING

School Board Decide To Defer Immediate Action Regarding Purchase of Rideau Hall -Not All In Favor.

At a special meeting of the School Board last evening, it was decided to make an offer to purchase the Bell building and lot adjoining the high school, provided the Common Council was agreeable.

Trustee Bullock, on behalf of the committee, said that if the board took over the building, it would cost $2,288 to fit up the first floor for their purposes; $770 for the second floor and $300 for the third floor.

The architect, Mr. Mott, stated that they could put in one large boiler, but in view of the fact that they might not want to fit up the upper floors at once he thought they could get along with a smaller boiler for a time.

Mr. Russell—If we bought the building we would have to issue bonds, wouldn't we?

The Chairman—Oh yes. That's what is worrying us.

Trustee Bullock said that while he felt the School Board needed better offices he was not ready to recommend the purchase.

Mr. Russell—Would you pay $8000 for the building?

Mr. Bullock—Yes, I think I would. But I would not run after it at that price.

Mr. Russell—We've just asked the council for an assessment of $141,000—$9,000 over last year. If we asked for $16,000 more, we might not get it.

Mr. Day said that if the Board was forced out of its present quarters he knew where they could get better quarters at a lower rent.

The Chairman pointed out that they had to vacate the Leinster street school on May 1, or pay rent for the year.

In reply to a question the Superintendent said they might find accommodation for some of the Leinster street pupils in the Bell building if fitted up, and the others could be distributed in other schools, until the new school was ready.

G. G. PHILLIPS SHOT DOWN

The six shots broke the quiet of one of the most aristocratic neighborhoods of old-fashioned New York. The Princeton Club formerly the home of the late Stanford White, fronts on Grammercy park and Phillips was sauntering through the sunshine for an hour of leisure, with his friends.

A policeman on post stood not 100 yards away. Nobody saw anything to attract attention in the well dressed Goldsborough, who was walking in the opposite direction from Phillips. There was no argument as they met, no quarrel, no opportunity for self defence. The shiny barrel of the pistol glinted in the sunshine, a thin haze of powder spat from the muzzle and the patter of the shots punctured the air almost with the rapidity of a broken volley.

One Shot For Himself. Phillips staggered, but did not fall. He lurched against the iron railing that surrounds the club house yard, with one hand to his body, and the other grasping for support. Satisfied that he had been successful, the assassin fired the seventh shot into his own brain, and toppled over before anybody could reach him. For hours his body lay there in the bright sunshine, with only a sheet to cover it. The policeman and the bystanders came up on the run. At the same moment three members of the club, Newton James, Frank Davis and Frederick Evans, rushed down the steps and carried Phillips into the house. Jacob Jacoby had already reached him, and was supporting him. "Graham, what has happened?" asked Evans. Phillips was conscious and suffering intensely. "He shot me in the bowels," he answered. "Don't bother with him. For God's sake, get a doctor."

It was some time before an ambulance arrived and in the meantime the club members were trying to identify the dead man on the sidewalk. In the pockets were cards bearing his name, and the address, 1331 K street, Washington D. C. He carried $24.70 in cash, a membership card in the American Federation of Musicians, and two manuscripts. Both of them were short stories, one entitled, "The Conquest of the Climate," and the other "For Conscience Sake."

William F. McCombs, secretary of the Princeton club, recognized the man as Fitzhugh Goldsborough, of an old and respected Maryland family. McCombs said Goldsborough had entered Harvard with the class of 1901, but left at the end of his freshman year.

Algeron Lee, secretary of the Rand School of Social Science, where Goldsborough lived, said that Goldsborough came to this city in November, 1910, and took rooms at the school, where he was not a student, and mingled little with the life of the institution. The Rand school of Social Science was founded five years ago by Dr. Geo. D. Herron, a Socialist, with money bequeathed by the will of Mrs. E. D. Rand, the widow of a millionaire lumberman.

Wrote Begging Letters. "We knew little of Goldsborough or his antecedents," said Lee. "He came to us as a Socialist and said he would like to live with us. We rent rooms, and he took one of them. He was a violinist and gave lessons. I am told that he had been writing begging letters to Mr. Phillips. We know nothing of that however."

Harrison Phillips, David's younger brother, said that Goldsborough had been bothering David with letters and telephone calls to the Princeton Club for a month or six weeks, but that his brother had never been able to learn what the man's grievance was. He thought perhaps they had met at some Socialist gathering and that Goldsborough had insisted Phillips ought to "do something for the cause."

Mrs. Caroline A. Forrester, Phillips' sister, who lived with him at the National Arts Club, doubted if David had ever met the man, although she too said he had been bothered with notes and telephone calls demanding appointments in dark and out of the way corners.

David Graham Phillips was born in Madison, Ind., on Oct. 31, 1867. His first literary work was done as reporter for the New York Sun, which he left to become an editorial writer for the New York World. While still with the World he published in 1901, his first novel, "The Great God, Success." It brought him royalties and he resigned from newspaper work to devote his time to fiction and the magazine.

GRAND CARNIVAL, FEB. 6th. Under Auspices of Trades and Labor Council.

The most important event at the Victoria this winter will doubtless be the grand carnival being held under the auspices of the trades and labor council, Feb. 6th. Five thousand tickets have already been distributed by Secretary C. M. Stevens, who with a large committee is throwing great zest into the work of making this the equal of the last event of this nature managed by them seven years ago. Forty dollars in gold will be given away and a door prize of $10 to the lucky ticket holder. Carnival suits are to be procured from Manager Anderson of the Opera House, and the Nickel Theatre. Many elaborate creations are expected, and all will do well to put the date, Feb. 6th, under their hat, as it will be a bad one to miss.

FAIL TO FREE P. CHARLTON

Young American Accused Of Murdering Wife In Italy Still Held In Hudson County Jail—Can Be Extradited.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 23.—Judge Reilstab in the U. S. circuit court after an argument lasting all of today, refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus asked for on behalf of Porter Charlton, whose extradition had been requested by the Italian government, to answer a charge in Italy of having murdered his wife, Mary Scott Castle Charlton in that country last summer.

Charlton, who is about 21 years old, is a citizen of the United States, and after the murder of his wife, came to this country and was arrested as he landed in Hoboken. Before the committing magistrate, counsel for Charlton sought to prove that the young man was insane at the time of the commission of the crime, and subsequently there was a hearing before Secretary of State Knox on the application of the Italian government for Charlton's extradition.

The secretary decided to grant the extradition and then a writ of habeas corpus was sued out in the United States circuit court on an appeal from Secretary Knox's decision. The case was heard here before Judge Reilstab who, after a lengthy argument, refused to grant the writ. Young Charlton was in court in custody of Under Sheriff Wedine, of Hudson county and after the decision was taken back to the Hudson county jail in Jersey City where he has been confined since his arrest upon his arrival in this country last summer.

WHAT IT COSTS FOR UPPER CHAMBER

Increase Of More Than $60,000 On Expenses Of Senate In Last Few Years—Travelling Expenses Light.

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—A return presented to the Commons today in reply to an address moved by Hon. G. E. Foster, shows that the cost of the Senate for the fiscal year 1909-1910 was $311,096.90 as against $248,847.82 in 1896-1897.

An analysis shows that while the indemnity paid was sued out in the United States circuit court on an appeal from Secretary Knox's decision. The case was heard here before Judge Reilstab who, after a lengthy argument, refused to grant the writ. Young Charlton was in court in custody of Under Sheriff Wedine, of Hudson county and after the decision was taken back to the Hudson county jail in Jersey City where he has been confined since his arrest upon his arrival in this country last summer.

The cost of the staff has grown from $48,588 to $69,041 while the expenditure for stationery has decreased from $11,824 in 1896-1897 to $7,348 last year. The high water mark for stationery expenditure was in 1907-08 when the Senate expended $16,207 on that item.

MORGAN'S NEW RECORD IN RAILROAD TRIP

Philadelphia, Jan. 23.—What is believed to be the fastest railroad trip ever made between Washington and New York, occurred today when J. Pierpont Morgan, the financier, was whisked from one city to the other over the Pennsylvania railroad, in the unparalleled time of 3 hours, 54 minutes.

All the way the special train on which Mr. Morgan made the trip averaged more than a mile a minute. The distance between the two cities is 224.7 miles and express trains make it in five hours. The special train was ordered in a hurry and the purpose of Mr. Morgan's visit was not made known to the railroad officials.
