RACING DRAMA, "THE COUNTY FAIR." TO BE PRESENTED AT THE GRAND ALL NEXT WEEK. Maurice Tourneur in his picturization

of the famous American rural drama, "The County Fair," at the Grand all next week; matinee, Saturday, at 2:45; evenings at 8:15; has enlarged upon the spirit of that fine old piece which Neil Burgess used for so many seasons as a stage.

The adventures and the humor which were talked about in the stage version are pictured with realism and beauty in the screen treatment, and the result is one of the most delightful stories that has graced the silver screen in years. It is a tale of simple people truthfully told with the added excitement and thrills of a real horse race and all the fanfare and liveliness of a typical county fair in full blast. Here you see Wesley Barry, the frecklefaced kid, climbing the slippery pole or chasing a greased pig, while all the types which mingle in the throngs of the fair pass before you in endless amusement.

amusement.

"The County Fair" tells a story of a kindly New England spinster who is threatened with the loss of her little farm because of a mortgage once held by the village money-lender and task-master. NEXT WEEK.

Many novel features will be introduced in connection with the presentation of Maurice Tourneur's screen version of Neil Burgess' famous rural racing drama, "The County Fair," at the Grand Opera House all next week. These include a thrilling horse race scene, in which four thoroughbred horses will compete in an actual race on the stage of the theatre, while a big midway with all its freaks and fakirs, will provide an outside extra of much attractiveness. In addition, Saw-yer's Corner prize huskin' bee silver band will render two free concerts outside the Grand Opera House each day. To top off the program there will be daily aeroplane flights over the city at noon by Jack Lindsay and Teddy Dobbins, two noted aviators, who will perfects. The second feature on this great program is Marguerite Clark's new production, "All of a Sudden Peggy," and it is a sparkling, charming and most fitting production for Miss Clark to make her return to the screen in. Her hosts of admirers will find new cause for delight in this romance of a most audacious Irish maiden in her search for a husband. Allen's always interesting News of the World, comedy specials, and a variety of entertainment will also be on the same offering.

MAY ALLISON AT LOEW'S MON-DAY IN "ARE ALL MEN ALIKE?" Voices of director and cameramen awoke strange echoes in the corridors of one of the most exclusive homes in the Berkshire Square section of Los Angeles one morning as the filming of the Berkshire Square section of Los Angeles one morning as the filming of May Allison's new special production, "Are All Men Alike" was begun within its walls.

Miss Allison as the untamed "Teddy" of the Arthur Stringer story romped out of the house in jumpers and surprised neighbors at her expert handling of the internal mechanism of an obstinate automobile. Having set these parts to rights, she sprang into it, and caused the spectators to catch their breath in amazement as she all but ran down an elderly gentleman who chanced to be standing near the rose-bordered drive.

The "elderly gentleman" was John Elliott, the veteran film actor, who plays the part of the uncle of the harum-scarum heroine of the piece. In spite of his unbounded confidence are under any and all circumstances, he showed evidences of nervousness as he picked himself up from among the roses, while her machine careened around the corner and disappeared at a speed unknown even among Los Angeles' speed-mad autoists.

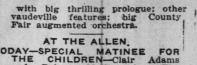

All of which is by way of showing how thoroughly May Allison enters into the part of one of screen characterizations once she is fairly launched in portraying her role. In "Are All Men Alike?" her latest vehicle will be shown at Loew's Theatre Monday.

The added film features comprise a funny Capitol comic, Loew's Screen Pictorial of World Events in pictures, and Loew's pipe organ will render another pleasing program, while the concert orchestra, under the capable direction of "Buddle" Minier, will offer a pleasing overture. The vaudeville embraces the Jean Gordon Players, who will be remembered for their ex-
