Bringing It Home

"Go to the people that took the liquor away from us and get the money from them."

This was the greeting one man gave to a Navy League canvasser in the Earls Court district, a member of Mrs. F. M. Wild's team. He went on to blame "a lot of wrinkled old women" for the loss of his favorite beverage, which, he declared, never did any harm to anybody. So wrathful did he grow on the subject that the canvasser retired in dismay and went back to her captain. Mrs. Wild decided to tackle this proposition herself, so, equipping herself with a small flask of whiskey, borrowed for the occasion, and a small bottle of raspberry vinegar, she went back to the house of the ogre who had frightened her canvasser away. A lovely little bright-eyed girl came to the door, and Mrs. Wild told her to ask her mother for a cookie and a glass. Hearing voices the father appeared.

"I'm going to give baby a treat," said Mrs. Wild. "Now which bottle shall I take it out of?"

"Great heavens! what do you mean?" the father cried, in real concern.

"You told my canvasser liquor never hurt anybody," Mrs. Wild responded sweetly, beginning to uncap the flask, "and if not, why, of course, it won't hurt your little girl so I'll give her this."

"Give her the raspberry vinegar," the father said, and, as she did so Mrs. Wild went on: "You told my canvasser that a lot of wrinkled old women brought on prohibition. Well, each of those wrinkled old women, grown old and wrinkled with worry over sons like you. And if they hadn't voted liquor out somebody's child is your son, but with no father on hand to protect it, would be giving some day, the stuff that comes out of this flask."

The man's face had grown a grave as his wife talked. He listened nervously while she went on, and when she had finished apologized, and contributed $5 to the Navy League Campaign.—Toronto Press.

In Memory

He was a sunny hearted child; His youth so grasped the joy of life My thoughts could not be reconciled To have his soul debased by strife. And yet my heart was filled with pride That when ideals were jeopardized, The call for help was not denied. Though even life was sacrificed, And now he has returned to me From all that storm of shot and shell— That horror of uncertainty That changed my heaven into hell. And unto me has come content: They draped the colors o'er his breast, Acclaimed him victor, and he went A hero to his well won rest. And though the sun the sunshine Beyond my tears there dawns a joy, That I, too, helped to keep the stars In God's blue sky—he was my boy!

Very Few Deserters

The Canadian Press is officially informed that the total number of desertions in the Canadian forces since August 1914, and not accounted for, is 1,733.

When it is remembered that over 420,000 troops went overseas from Canada, this is considered below the average. It must also be borne in mind that included in this number are those who deserted from the first contingent of about 33,000 men, a high proportion of whom were men born in the British Isles.

Many of these had served in the home forces. Shortly after the arrival of the first contingent in England, a considerable number of these deserted, and in many cases, it is understood, they re-enlisted in their old British regiment. Thus, at the beginning of the war, in 1914, there was a much higher proportion of desertions than in any year since.

On an average about 14 deserters a month are being accounted for, so that number is likely to be considerably reduced.

The total number of missing in battle casualties and not accounted for since the beginning of the war is 161.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep.
