Amusements

GAVE A GOOD SHOW

Henry Woodruff received a vociferous welcome when he made his appearance in "The Prince of Tonight" at the Grand Opera House last evening. A well-filled house saw the performance, which was one of the best musical comedies seen here this season. Considering the prices of admission, no show has been seen here this season which gave so much value for the money. The leading actors and actresses are clever people, the chorus is well drilled and its members both pretty and vivacious, and the scenery magnificent. Henry Woodruff's reputation is well known, and but for a rather poor voice, he is as good as any of the stars seen here this season. Ruth Peebles, as Virginia Stuart, gave a clever impersonation of the heartless coquette. She has sweet, clear voice, and was one of the popular members of the company. Viola Hopkins, in the role of Bonnie Stuart, made a big hit with the audience. The remaining members of the cast were good, and a thoroughly satisfied audience left the Grand at the conclusion of the show. Matinee and evening performances will be given to-day.

JESSIE IRVING'S RECITAL

A splendid programme has been arranged for the recital by pupils of Miss Jessie Irving, assisted by Mr. J. Parnell Morris, the popular tenor of London, in an evening. The programme numbers of Mr. Morris will include "O Loss of Sight" and "Total Eclipse" (Handel). AMATEURS AT SAVOY. Wearing a suit of black and yellow and holding in his hand a tiger pennant, Jack Taylor, a lad about seven years old, walked on the stage at the Savoy Theatre last night, carrying a football one-third the size of himself, and gave a demonstration of his ability as a back dancer. The cleverness of his work for a lad of his age and size brought out much applause. At the conclusion of his dance he made a "kick off" and his big football, tied up with the good old boys, went sailing out over the audience. Messrs. St. Clair Rouse and N. Reid showed some talent as musicians, and after a little more experience they will be able to step into the professional line. Both received much applause. The cash prize had to be equally divided. Drink a wonderful film taken from Emil Zola's great novel, is well worth seeing.

HAMILTON LADIES' STRING ORCHESTRA

One of the musical events of the season will be the concert to be given by the Ladies' String Orchestra in the Conservatory of Music Hall Dec. 8. This orchestra was organized in June, 1908, and gave a very successful concert last March under the able direction of Miss Jean Hunter, who is well known in musical circles, and who obtained such excellent results with her orchestra of Hamilton's leading lady players. The orchestra has been enlarged this season and no work spared in their efforts to make their second concert one that will meet with the approval of all music lovers. An excellent programme has been arranged, and no doubt one of the most pleasing numbers will be the harp solo by Mrs. Aldous. The ladies have again made a happy choice in securing Mrs. Margaret McCoy-Hamilton, soprano, to assist, and also will have Miss Kathleen Snider, who made such a hit with her cornet solo last season. Subscription lists are in the hands of members of the orchestra and also at Northumberland and Anderson's music stores, and it is hoped that Hamilton's music lovers will show their appreciation of the efforts of the ladies and give them hearty support.

FRIVOLITY.

Novel Event at Alexandra Rink Last Evening.

Beating the dazzling of electric lights and colors, over three hundred people skated at the Frivolity Carnival, held at the Alexandra Rink last night. The Frivolity Carnival originated in the Metropolitan Rink, New York, and this was the first time it has been tried in Hamilton. Its success was proved by the comments of appreciation which were heard on all sides. An excellent programme was made arrangements for the distribution of many and various noise producers, including pop-corn, clip-claps, anti-cool, pom-pom, and rackets, all direct from New York, with a result that each of the skaters contributed to the programme and enjoyment of the evening.

Bass and Durk in North Carolina. Letters received at this city from North Carolina report that the outlook for catching bass in the waters of that State is poor. The bass season in North Carolina opens on October 20, and in Virginia five days later. As yet the indications in Carolina waters for a good bass year are poor, and it is made more so by the fact that many of the streams in which bass were formerly caught in haul seines are now so full of grass as to prevent the working of the nets, making the catch of the fish dependent on hook and line fishing.

The outlook for wild ducks and geese in Carolina waters, however comes most of the supply used here, is said to be good, as the recent cool weather is causing the birds to appear in numbers on their feeding grounds in the south. —Washington Star.

COULD NOT STAND BABY.

Illinois Professor Suicided Because of Domestic Life.

Could Not Stand Its Annoyances and Baby's Cries.

Kissed His Wife Good-Bye and Took Dose of Poison.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 20.—Prof. Wilfred C. Wheeler, of the chemistry department of the University of Illinois, took poison and killed himself to-day because, it is declared by his friends, he could not endure the "petty annoyances" of married life.

The crying of a baby so wrought on his mind that he left home three times a day rather than be disturbed at meals by the infant, and the university neighborhood commented on the spectacle of a husband dining at a downtown hotel while his wife and child at their meals elsewhere.

A man of high attainments, out of debt, and on the way to higher things in his profession, there seemed to be no reason for Wheeler to kill himself. His associates simply shake their heads as they discuss this strange tragedy.

"Tired of living" was the cause assigned by the chemist in a matter-of-fact note tremblingly opened by his widow this afternoon.

Wheeler's suicide was the culmination of months of brooding, dating from the birth of his child fourteen months ago. Even Dr. L. T. Towell, a local physician, went to the bedside of his wife at the hospital.

"Come over and see your baby and your wife," urged the physicians and the nurses. "Your wife needs you."

"I don't want to," replied the scientist.

Later, when urged to send a carriage, that if his wife might come home, Wheeler, it is said, replied that she might wait until she was able to walk. And she did.

Mrs. Wheeler, who was Miss Sarah Hiatt, of Lawrence, Kan., met her husband when he was a student in the Kansas University. They were married three years ago. She explains her husband's idiosyncrasies as the result of extreme nervousness.

Psychologists here admit that the case of the chemist is baffling. There appeared to be no reason at all, except his peculiar hypersensitiveness, that he should not live happily.

Wheeler kissed his wife good-bye yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, and she never saw him alive again. She thought he had gone to the city to buy a new suit, but he had a habit of dining out. Last night Wheeler wrote to the chemical laboratory and wrote a letter to his wife, explaining what she should do about financial matters and how she could collect $2,500 life insurance. The letter ended:

"I am tired of living, so good-bye. There is no use trying to find out what happened to me, as I have no more to say. K.C.N. is potassium cyanide and "G" means grains. Wheeler knew well the easiest route to eternity. He left the laboratory and walked to South Campus, where his body was found. His features were composed. The acid killed him almost instantly. A verdict of suicide was returned at an inquest.

The body was taken to Lawrence, Mrs. Wheeler and her baby were accompanied by Prof. Parr and Prof. Barto.

Simply and loosely tossing the arms about is of very little use. One should try to reach as high as one can, then bring the finger tips to the floor. Naturally walking and outdoor games are the most beneficial, with always the deep, regular breathing. But, even sweeping and dusting may be turned to account, providing one holds oneself well, has a heavy veil over the nose to keep out the dust and the windows open to let in the fresh air.
