Chemistry is Saving Millions in Fire Bills

Chemical research is saving American motorists $50,000,000 a year in fire bills alone, according to a recent statement made by William G. Geer of Akron, Ohio, to the American Chemical Society. Much of this saving, he said, has resulted from the discovery and use of organic "accelerators" in the manufacture of tires which permit them to be vulcanized in from one-third to one-fifth the time formerly required.

Other chemical research has added materially to the life of a tire. Twenty years ago the average life of a tire was only 2500 miles, whereas tires now are made that cover 15,000 and 20,000 miles before wearing out.

Mr. Lloyd George's arty Fund

PROSPECT OF A LIBERAL RUP- TURE.

The affairs of the Liberal Party, brought into prominence by a speech delivered by Vivian Phillips, chairman of the party organization, continue to excite interest in political circles.

Speculation turns on the possible outcome of a fresh pen rupture. Undoubtedly the fact that Mr. Lloyd George has considerable funds, subscribed in the days of the Coalition Government, in his personal control, is a source of friction between Mr. Phillips and the Liberal headquarters. It has been brought to a head by Mr. Lloyd George's decision to open an intensive campaign in the constituencies in support of his land policy, which has yet to be approved by the party.

It is said that the relations between Lord Oxford, who remains the titular leader of the party, and Mr. Lloyd George, who leads the party in the House of Commons, remain cordial, but rumor is busy with suggestions of feelers being extended between Mr. Lloyd George and the Socialist leaders.

At its last Convention the party decided that in future its funds must be raised by public subscription, the names of the subscribers made public, and the accounts subject to audit. It is gathered, therefore, that should Mr. Lloyd George suggest handing over his fund to the Liberal headquarters, it would be accepted only on the understanding that the names of the subscribers were disclosed and their consent obtained for their money to be used in support of any policy adopted by the party.

On the other hand, should Mr. Lloyd George prefer to keep the fund in his own control, as is probable, it is clear that the Liberal headquarters will endeavour to dissociate the party from him. Well-informed opinion inclines to the belief that Mr. Lloyd George will endeavour to forestall any such move by the breaking away with his own "wing" and joining forces with a moderate Labour combination.

An English World

Without propaganda, and although there is no deliberate or organized effort to this end, English is becoming the language of the world. The cultural value of studying other languages is not denied, but for the purpose of trade and commerce, as well as social intercourse, one does not stand in absolute need of the knowledge of any other tongue. That is becoming more evident every year to travellers.

"The whole world is talking English," writes Dr. Van Rossem, in The Hague Post, after a tour through the five continents. "You land in the French colonies in Cochinchina, and instead of 'bonjour' you hear 'good morning.' You are introduced in a French club in Madagascar, and instead of 'enchanté' you are welcomed with the words, 'How do you do?' I found that only one clerk spoke French in the French colony of Piche-la-Mer, in the Pacific. 'And what is the reason?' he asks. 'The ships are English, the money is in American hands, custom officers, military attaches, legation officials, everybody speaks English.' There is another reason—the French official in the colonies doesn't care a rap about the whole colonial business. He counts the days when he will stroll again on the Boulevard des Capucines. And then there is the well-known English attitude. An Englishman arrives in Corfu or on an island in the South Seas, and he says: 'Henceforth everybody will have to speak English; I will not understand another language.' The people might refuse, but pretty soon somebody begins to say 'good-bye' when he should say 'good morning,' and the Englishman has won again.—Sentinel.

What the Argosy Says

OF CYRIL HILLIGAN CURTIS.

Among the new students to enter Mount A. in 1912 was a Freshie-Soph, by the name of Cyril M. Curtis, who, after attending the Methodist College, at St. John's, Newfoundland, and serving as a probationer on circuit, came to study Arts and Theology. At the end of the first year Cyril was obliged to discontinue his studies through ill-health and return to his native land, where he again did circuit work. Hardly had he recovered from his illness when he fell a victim to heart disease, with the result that he married Miss Elizabeth Strong, a former L. C. student.

Returning to Mount A. in 1922 he joined the '35 Class and resumed his studies. During the summer vacation of 1924, he did supply work at Port Grenville, N.S., and continued to do so after returning to college last fall. Cyril received his B.A. degree at Convocation last spring, and accepting a unanimous invitation to return to Port Grenville, he is now stationed there, and is having a very successful year. As a college man Cyril took a keen interest in the various activities, but was especially remembered by his fellow students in the general discussion that every body in a while arose in the various meetings. Of a convincing and forceful type of speaker and seasoned with a keen sense of humor, Cyril could be relied upon to uphold his side. Nor can we forget his happy gift of relating stories, for no midnight feed would seem complete to his friends unless Cyril was there to add color to the scene with his funny anecdotes. And who can forget his knock that waked one from his peaceful slumber in the early morning, or his call to breakfast?

Our best wishes follow Cyril, and we hope that some time we will have the pleasure of hearing him describe some of his funny experiences at the end of a "feed."—Argosy Weekly.

Heavy Metals

Kill Germs by Stealing Sulphur. Compounds of the so-called "heavy metals," like gold, silver, mercury, copper, and lead, are effective disinfectants because they break down the delicate chemical balance in living matter by robbing it of its sulphur. Results of researches embodying this theory were presented recently to the National Academy of Sciences by Drs.

Carl Voegtlin and J. M. Johnson and Miss Helen A. Dyer, of the Hygienic Laboratory at Washington, D.C. The investigation was undertaken to find out the fundamental chemical cause for the poisonousness of such common disinfectants as bichloride of mercury and copper sulphate. Doctor Voegtlin and his associates learned that the greed of these metals for sulphur lay at the bottom of the violence of their attack on living matter. Dr. Voegtlin discovered further that he could neutralize the poisonous effects of compounds of the heavy metals by adding to them compounds containing the sulphur-hydrogen group. He says that though this does not go to the bottom of the chemical action of this class of disinfectants, immediate applied results can not be expected.
