POLITICAL.

Welland Young Liberals elected Mr. J. E. Coburn as their president. Hon. L. H. Davies, with other Liberal speakers, will hold a series of political meetings in Nova Scotia, beginning with a meeting at Halifax on Dec. 3.

WEST HURON PATRONS.
GODERICH, Nov. 26.—A large meeting of the Patrons of Industry of West Huron was held at Carleton on Saturday afternoon to select a candidate for the Dominion House. David Forrester, of Clinton, was the man chosen.

In Want of Rain.
ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 26.—A special from Topeka, Kan., says three-fourths of the wheat crop sown in the western part of Kansas this fall has been ruined by the continued drought. In the central belt the ground is very dry, and the plant will die if rains do not come soon.

Lost $2,000,000 Net!
NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The Erie annual report will be published tomorrow for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30. It is understood it will show approximately a gross loss of $5,000,000 and a net loss of $2,000,000. The statement will be the poorest ever issued by the company, and radical changes have been made. Reorganization will likely follow.

A Celery Bouquet.
HAMILTON, Nov. 26.—E. L. McArthur, local agent for the Mail newspaper, was fined $20 and costs by Police Magistrate Jells today on a charge of assaulting Malcolm Stuart, a clerk in Clime's store. McArthur was charged with performing the amateur theatrical "Billie Taylor," in the Grand Opera House on Saturday, and some people in the audience presented him with a bunch of celery. McArthur says it was Stuart who threw the bouquet of celery, and after the performance he met Stuart and punched his left eye. In court he made a full and free confession, as the police magistrate said earlier, that he would have given him a term in jail.

King's Noises.
In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood.

Hood's Pills are the best after dinner pills, assist digestion, prevent constipation, and in the textile trades and mines of Austria a week of 72 to 90 hours is not uncommon.

Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general correctives, Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of any other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, catarrh, bruises, cuts and cures succumb to its action.

If we did as much good as we want other people to do, the millennium would be next door.

How to Cure All Skin Diseases.
Simply apply "SWAIN'S OINTMENT." No internal medicine required. Cures tetter, eczema, itch, all eruptions on the face, hands, nose, etc., leaving the skin clear, white and healthy. Its great healing and curative powers are possessed by other remedies. Ask your druggist for SWAIN'S OINTMENT. Lyman, Sons & Co., Montreal, wholesale agents. ywt

Talmage's Travels

Utilized as the Basis of Several Sermons.

Lessons Drawn From the Siege of Lucknow.

Some of the Reasons Why Christians Should Be Advocates of Peace.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 26.—Rev. Dr. Talmage Sunday began his series of "Around the World" sermons through the press, the first subject selected being Lucknow, India. The text was, "Destruction, xx, 19.—When thou shalt besiege a city a long time in making war against it to destroy it, thou shalt not destroy the trees thereof by forcing an axe against them."

The wisest thing in war is a besiegement, for to the work of deadly weapons it adds hunger and starvation and plague. Besiegement is sometimes necessary, but my text commands mercy even in that. The fruit trees must be saved, because they afford food for man. But in my recent journey around the world I found at Lucknow, India, the remains of the most merciless besiegement of the ages, and I proceed to tell you that story for four great reasons. To show you what a horrible thing war is, and to make you all advocates of peace; to show you what genuine Christian character is under bombardment; to put a coronation on Christian courage, and to show you how splendidly good people die.

In the early part of 1857 all over India the natives were ready to break out in rebellion against all foreigners, and especially against the British and military representatives of the English Government. A half-dozen causes are mentioned for the feeling of discontent and insurrection that was evidenced throughout India. The most of these causes were mere protests. The simple fact was that the natives of India were a conquered race, and the English were the conquerors. For 100 years the British scepter had been waved over India, and the Indians wanted to break it.

It was evident in Lucknow that the natives were about to rise and put to death all the Europeans they could lay their hands on, and into the Residency the Christian population of Lucknow hastened for defense from the tigers in human form which were growing for their victims. The occupants of the Residency, or fort, were, military and non-combatants, men, women and children, in number about 1,602. I suggest in one sentence some of the children who were with them, and they were, I say that these people were in the Residency five months without a single change of clothing; some of the time the heat at 120 and 130 degrees; the place black with flies, and all a-squirm with vermin; being of the enemy upon them coming neither day nor night; the hospital crowded with the dying; smallpox, scurvy, cholera adding their work to that of shot and shell; women, brought up in all comfort and never having known want, crowded and sacrificed in a cellar where nine children were born; less and less food; no water except that which was brought from a well under the enemy's fire, so that the water obtained was the price of blood; the stench of the dead horses added to the effluvia of corpses, and all waiting for the moment when the army of 60,000 shrieking Hindoo devils should break in upon the garrison of the Residency, now reduced by wounds and sickness and death to 976 men, women and children.

There was a solemn stillness as we approached the gate of the Residency. Battered and torn is the masonry of the entrance. Signatures of shot and shrapnel are cannon ball all up and down everywhere.

Here, said our guide, is the building that was used as a hospital. At this part the amputations took place, and all such patients died. Lucknow heat was so intense that the food so insufficient that the poor fellows could not recover from the loss of blood; they all died. Amputations were performed without chloroform. Yonder was Dr. Fayrer's house, who is now Queen Victoria's doctor. This upper room was the officers' room, and there Sir Henry Lawrence, our commander, was wounded. While he sat there a shell struck the room, and someone suggested that he had better leave the room, but he smiled and said, "Lightning never strikes twice in the same place." Hardly had he said this when another shell tore off his thigh, and he was carried dying into Dr. Fayrer's house on the other side of the road.

As soon as Sir Henry was told that he had not many hours to live he asked the chaplain to administer to him the holy communion. He felt particularly anxious for the safety of the women in the Residency. He charged the officers to say to the men, "Make no treaty or compromise with the desperadoes. Die fighting." He dictated his own epitaph. "Here lies Henry Lawrence, who tried to do his duty."

May the Lord have mercy on his soul, said, "I would like to have a passage of Scripture added to the words on my grave, such as, 'To the Lord our God belong mercies and forgivenesses, though we have sinned against him.' So was only one as England or India ever saw expired." All of which I state for the benefit of those who would have us believe that the Christian religion is fit only for women in the eighties and children under 7. That is a glory enough in that departure to halo Christendom.

"Had you made up your minds what you and the other sufferers would do in case the Residency actually became a 'P' I don't know," said my escort, "we had it all planned. You must remember it was 1,600 against 60,000, and for the latter part of the time it was 800 against 60,000, and the Residency and the earthworks around it were not put up for such an attack. It was only from the mercy of God that we were not massacred soon after the besiegement. We were resolved not to allow ourselves to be taken into the hands of these desperadoes. If unable to hold out any longer we would have blown ourselves up and all gone out of life together."

Then we went down into the cellar of the Residency, where 622 women and children had been crowded until the whole floor was full. The women within the Residency were kept on the smallest allowance that would maintain life. No opportunity of privacy. The death angel and the birth angel touched wings and passed. Our escort told us again and again of the bravery of these women. They did not despair. They encouraged the soldiers; they waited on the wounded and dying in the hospital. They endured without complaint. They prepared their own children for burial. They were inspiration for the men who stood at their posts fighting till they dropped.

They had received a letter from Havlock rolled up in a quill and carried in the mouth of a disguised messenger—a letter telling them he was on the way—but the next news was that Havlock had been compelled to retreat. It was constant vexation between hope and despair. But one day he heard the guns of relief sounding nearer and nearer. I asked our friend if he thought that the world-famous story of a Scotch lass in her delirium was the first to hear the bagpipes. I decline to believe that story of a Scotch lass who would kill all the poetry of the world and banish all the fine sentiment. The Scotch lass did hear the bagpipes. I almost heard it myself as I stood inside the Residency while my escort told of the coming on of the Seventy-eighth Highlanders.

"Show us where the came in!" I exclaimed, for I knew that they did not enter through the gate of the Residency, but being backed up inside to keep the murderers out. "Here it is," answered my escort. "Here it is—the embrasure through which they came."

As we stood there, although the scene was 37 years ago, I saw them come in; Havlock, pale and sick, but triumphant; and Outram, whom all the equestrian statues in Calcutta and Europe cannot too grandly present.

"Then," said our guide, "the earth was reserved from the gate, and soon all the army of relief entered, and some of us laughed, and some cried, and some prayed and some danced. Highlanders so dashing and brave, and enough to keep the face of the world to make them unrecognizable, snatched the babes out of their mothers' arms and kissed them, and passed the babies along for other soldiers to kiss, and the women came crawling out of Havlock, pale and sick, but triumphant; and Outram, whom all the equestrian statues in Calcutta and Europe cannot too grandly present."

Next day about four miles from the Residency I visited the grave of Havlock. The scenes of hardship and self-sacrifice through which he had passed were too much for him. He arrived at the Residency which he had relieved, he lay in a tent dying. He had received the message of congratulation from Queen Victoria over his triumph and his escape and comforted him for 40 years so that my life that when death came I might face it without fear. To die is gain." He had in early life been immersed in a Baptist Church. He acknowledged in every victory, and says in one of his dispatches that he owes it to the power of the English rifle in British hands, to British pluck and to the blessings of Almighty God on a most righteous cause. He was courageous and a great soldier, every morning in prayer and Bible reading, and if the army was to march at 6 o'clock, and if the army was to march at 6 o'clock he was at 4.

A plain monument erected by his widow and family marks Havlock's grave, but the epitaph is beautiful and comprehensive.

Some audiences and some readers are so slow of thought that they say that they are a spoilsport made of every subject. But the people who get this sermon have made the application for themselves already. I challenge you to say whether or not I have kept my promise, when in the deepest of my discouragement I said I would show you four things: What an awful affair war is; what genuine Christian character is under bombardment; what is the coronation of Christian courage, and how splendidly good people die. And here, under my first sermon of the "Round the World" series.

A Notable Record.

The Great Life-Saving Lactated Food.

The past summer was a most remarkable season for Lactated Food. There was such a demand for this pure and nutritious infant food from every quarter of the Dominion, that the manufacturers were compelled to enlarge their producing capacity.

During the past summer thousands of mothers bought and used Lactated Food, and have been so thoroughly satisfied with the results, that no pleadings or arguments can ever induce them to use any other make of food.

Hundreds of thankful letters have been received telling what Lactated Food has done in saving little lives. Every letter proves strongly and conclusively, that "Lactated Food Saves Babies' Lives."

No other food can show such a series of successes and victories; no other food now in existence is so popular as the Lactated.

Mr. Moody in Hamilton.
HAMILTON, Nov. 26.—Dwight L. Moody, the world-renowned evangelist, conducted two meetings in the Central Presbyterian Church here this afternoon and evening, at both of which the spacious edifice was jammed.

A "Coasting" Casualty.
QUEBEC, Que., Nov. 26.—A boy named Plate fell from the fortification wall while coasting in front of Montcalm market yesterday, a night of 30 feet. He was picked up senseless and was bleeding profusely. He died this morning.

A Godsend.
HAMILTON, Nov. 26.—Dr. Edgar, of the Hamilton City Hospital, has received another supply of anti-toxine for use in diphtheria cases, and will treat all cases of not more than 48 hours' standing. So far the remedy has proven very satisfactory, and the doctor looks upon it as a regular godsend.

Charged With Shooting Her Husband.
MONRO MILLS, Ont., Nov. 26.—The preliminary hearing of the case against Mrs. Harkie, charged with shooting her husband, took place here on Saturday night, resulting in Mrs. Harkie being committed for trial at the spring sittings. She has been taken to Brampton jail.
