Everybody felt sure Andy would do something, and he did—he got hit by the pitcher. Little Keenan marched up to the plate with a set look on his face. He made a terrific swipe at the ball, and it went hurtling into center field for a two bagger. Sippi and Gunter came home with rush, and the roof of the grand stand was nearly lifted by the frantic cheers. Then Hickey came to bat and capped the climax by cracking a double into the same spot. Keenan started from second for home. Malott saw this and threw a trifle wild to-wards Roberts. It was a race between Keenan and the ball, and the boldest held his breath for a time. The ball reached Roberts, and Keenan time, but to the uproarious delight of the rooters, it glanced off Roberts paw and fell innocent to the ground.
