speaker said.

"We accept the two theories concerning the origin of the universe in some degrees. Many believe the theory advocated in Genesis, the creation of the world by fire. Others believe the steep of the scientists. We believe these theories simply because we believe the writers, and it all rests on the final analysis that we believe the human evidence. "On Jan. 24 we all expect to see the total eclipse, which will be wightle in this part of the country.

"People sometimes say to us to accept things as they are. They advize us not to open up discussions on religious subjects. Although I am old now, I am still asking questions and Fil go a long way to have some one tell me what I do not know anything about. I like to think Moses was human. The psalmist, too, and Paul were intensely human. The most sublime declarations with regard to God that have filled the souls of men with an unquenchable hope have come to us from human lips.
