

The entire yoke and sleeves may be underlined with silk or satin in a contrasting color. For evening wear the upper part of the yoke and the long sleeves may be omitted, with the stylish effect shown in small illustration. Perforated lines are given on the pattern for the proper shaping. To make the waist in the medium size will require one-half yard of forty-four inch material, with one and one-half yards of twenty-seven inch material for the yoke and sleeves. The pattern, No. 7850, is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inch bust measure.

rich background for the face. The border broadens over the shoulders and falls in long stole ends almost to the knee, each end being finished by a beautiful tail. The large muff is of Alaska sable to match.

Charming effects can be developed by the same model in less expensive materials. A combination of Astrachan or Persian lamb cloth, which comes in a splendid imitation of the fur, with trimmings of inexpensive fur, makes an attractive and stylish collarette, or seal plush can be used for the body of the collar and Astrachan for the trimming.

The stole may be cut off at the waist line or half way down, the pattern providing the correct shaping.

The collar may fasten high under the chin with two hooks, giving extra protection to the throat, or the top loop may be left open, if so preferred.

To make this collarette in the medium size will require three-fourth yards of material twenty-two inches wide for yoke and collar, and one and one-half yards forty-four inches wide for stole, flounce and collar. The pattern, No. 7807, is cut in sizes for a 34, 38 and 42-inch bust measure.

Child's Coat with Cape, No. 7852.

CHINA BLUE POPLIN is chosen for this comfortable coat, with lovely gray for trimming. It is lined throughout with an interlining of light-weight blue flannel, covered by delicate gray satin to match the fur.

The picturesque "baby hat" of plaited liberty satin is decorated by a huge blue bow, having strings of the same ribbon tied under the chin.

The coat is simply constructed, having a short body lining fitted with shoulder and under-arm seams, to which the fronts and back are joined.

The two-piece sleeves are slightly full at the shoulder, and finished with a band of fur at the wrist.

The dressy cape is lined with gray satin and edged with fur. It fits smooth over the shoulders, rippling gracefully at the lower edge. A comfortable rolling collar, fur-trimmed, finishes the neck. This cape can be made adjustable and worn separately in mild weather.

Dainty coats in this style may be made of velvet, conluroy, ladies' cloth, Bedford cord, cheviot, or any of the numerous cloakings. Fur, braid, gimp, or velvet may be chosen for garniture, and bright linings will make the garment attractive.

To make this coat for a child of four years will require two and one-half yards of material forty-four inches wide. The pattern, No. 7852, is cut in sizes for children two, four and six years of age.

HERE AND THERE.

SOME people give according to their means; others according to their meanness.

YOU cannot dream yourself into a character; you must hammer and forge yourself one.

AN Irishwoman who has just died in the Lisburn workhouse was born on the field of Waterloo. Her father fought in his regiment, and her mother made herself useful in the camp.

THERE are at present no fewer than seventy-one European princesses belonging to the reigning houses who are of marriageable age, while the corresponding princes are only forty-seven in number.

RESOLUTIONS in favor of Woman's Suffrage have been passed in both houses of the parliament of Western Australia, and a Woman's Suffrage Bill has been carried in the Legislative Assembly of Victoria.

A widow who resides on the slopes of a Welsh mountain has reached her 101st year. She is the mother of twenty-one children. Her eyesight enables her to make clothes for her great-great-grandchildren.

A LADY who has just died in Sydney, aged ninety-two, was married at the age of sixteen to a leading colonist. She leaves twelve children, seventy-two grandchildren, one hundred and forty-six great-grandchildren, and ten great great grandchildren—two hundred and forty in all. She herself was one of the first twins born in the colony.

TEA, coffee, and chocolate first became common in the reign of Charles II. The first coffee-house was kept by a Jew in Oxford in 1650. In 1657 the landlord of the Rainbow Tavern, close to Dick's and now adjoining The Christian World office, was fined by the magistrates for selling such deleterious new-fangled stuff as coffee. The price had been 2s 6d to 3s (80 to 84) a pound.

THE American tramp, or homeless vagabond, is regularly of the masculine gender; but a remarkable case has lately appeared of a female tramp, not homeless, who has regularly walked once a year from Bangor, Maine, to New York four hundred and fifty miles for the enjoyment of the thing, since 1824, when she was sixteen years old. The Marquis de Lafayette was then visiting America, and the girl, Mary Harley, being too poor to ride, walked to New York to see him, paying her way by selling pencils on the road. She enjoyed her trip so much that she has since then repeated it annually with never any molestation. She is now turned ninety, yet does not look so old, and seems to be a person of natural refinement. On her trip this year her sales of pencils proved inadequate for the first time to meet her frugal expenses, and on reaching New York she was obliged to apply to charity for aid, when her romantic history became public.
