

doc
CA1
EA720
P27
EXF
1987
Autumn

PEACE & SECURITY

THE UN AND THE MIDDLE EAST

Discredited and some would say decrepit, can the UN Security Council become a useful mechanism in the search for peace?

By Brian Urquhart

Robert Malcolmson
The American tendency to moralize questions of international relations has undermined the long-term security of the West.

Paul Létourneau
West Germany's debate about defence policy takes on renewed vigour with the possibility of a Soviet-American missile treaty.

Charles Doran
Canada's defence policy seeks to use the dispute with the US over the Arctic to drum up support for increased defence spending.

James Eayrs
The Defence White Paper looks pretty, but the commitment to build nuclear-powered submarines is unsound and unnecessary.

Also in this issue: