

As I intimated to you earlier in this letter, on the next occasion of the meeting of the Finance Committee I shall again recommend that you be granted the $4500. I should have been more careful in the wording of my letter of October 6th last year, when I might have said, rather, that I would recommend the $4500. I feel sure that had times been anything like they were, even last year, there would have been no hesitation about the implementing of my promise to you.

I hope the Finance Committee accept the recommendation, and I also know that if they do not you will be dissatisfied. Under these circumstances I shall not again offer any objection to your accepting another position if by doing so you feel that you will better yourself.

Ever yours faithfully,

Principal
