has raised a heated controversy. Some maintain that the prohibition is illegal, and measures are to be taken imme-diately to test the right of the council interfere with individual liberty to the town council cannot prevent wo-men from wearing trains, but only from dragging them along the ground. Trains are thus permissible if women will lift their dresses properly as they walk.

Advocates of female dress reform bestow unlimited praise on the Nordhausen council for its courageous action, and urge other municipal authorities to follow its example. They declare that the train is a public nuisance, and a danger to public health, and that as women refuse to abolish it voluntarily, the intervention of the public authorities to compel them must be warmly welcomed.
