MURKIN SEE MURDERER?

NOVEL THEORY ADVANCED

Does Last Object Person Seen in Life Remain on Retina After Death?

Brantford, March 30.—It was learned today from the police that when James Quirk was buried the body was minus the head. At the autopsy performed by the coroner and Dr. Frank Quirk's head was severed from the body and placed in a glass jar containing alcohol. It will be preserved, ostensibly to be used in refuting possible medical expert evidence.

The police argue, and doubtless their information and opinions are drawn from Inspector Murray, that this action will help materially to shorten the trial when the murderer has been run down. They refer to the Sifton case, and declare that had the victim's head been preserved the Crown's case would have been greatly strengthened. In the Hendershot case the head of the murderer was kept, and justice was swift.

Another reason for the preservation in the case of Quirk is given by a local Sherlock Holmes, and it may have much bearing on the solution of the mystery. It came out at the inquest and from conversation with persons at the scene of the tragedy that open when he was found dead. The theory advanced is that the features of the murderer have been photographed on the retina of the victim's eye, and it needs only an expert photographer to have done so.

It is hinted that the rather unusual act of preserving the head, and hence of a series of experiments on the part of the police, should they be successful, it is obvious that the incontrovertible piece of evidence will have been obtained. The police here are greatly wrought up over the matter.

POPE SAYS HIS ENDS NEAR

His Easter Encyclical to the Bishops is a Testament to the Church.

HUMANITY NEVER MORE MISERABLE

His Easter Encyclical to the Bishops is a Testament to the Church. The Pope says he would encourage the Catholic Bishops throughout the world to continue vigorously to resist the persecutions which now afflict the Church. These persecutions will not affect the spread of the light of Christ among infidels. Never has humanity found itself in more deplorable conditions than at present. There is disorder in family relations, excessive drinking has been created which has fostered socialism and anarchism.

UNJUST WARS

Unjust wars, the encyclical says, are being waged by strong nations against weak and feeble peoples. There are exaggerated armaments among great nations, the effects of which are even more disastrous than war. All these things have created world-wide inquietude. Unprovoked wars are being waged, and the nations are being drawn into a vortex of violence. The Pope in his encyclical calls for a cessation of hostilities and for the peaceful settlement of international disputes. He maintains the necessity of upholding the temporal rights of the church and of the active spread of Catholicism among the people of the world.
