College of Chiropractic graduate. Office, 321 Queen's avenue. Telephone Why Science Now Blames the Eyes for Some Common Fears

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG, A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins University).

The human eye cannot begin to take in the billions of real things in the universe. It may discern many more objects than the visual senses of lower creatures, more objects than the visual senses of lower creatures, but it is far from the powers of the spectroscope, readlo-scope, reentgeno-scope, telescope or microscope, which give us but an inking of what is read and material that the eye cannot see.

Next to the muscles, the eyes are the most essential sense structure. Unless they are symmetrical and healthy, all sorts of confusions worse confounded are possible. A sense of unreality in a person may be due to the eyes, especially the eye muscles. You may feel, believe or dream that you are drifting and special than the eight or ten little muscles fit of the inner and outer eye are strained outer eye are strained step down when you walk inclines or stairs.

The play of children and your experiments, lower and money is made plain at times from the use of broadcast they are symmetrical and healthy, all are possible. A sense of unreality in a person may be due to the eyes, especially the eye muscles. You may feel, believe or dream that you are drifting all that your friends did those ally the eye muscles. You may feel, believe or dream that you are drifting specially the eye muscles, which is given that your friends did these to believe or dream that you are drifting and ridiculed your timidity, all though it was due largely perhaps to things an motion receding from you.

Dreams of falling, drifting, "goneness" and a sense of unreality have, like sleeplessness itself, been benefitted by the wire, your eye muscles have as much to do with it as your other muscles, perhaps much more. When you are on a steel track which mean a death fall.

Finally, "agoraphobia," or the fear of crossing open spaces, open squares or a busy street appears to be a swift warning via the eyes that your muscles are not equal to an emergency.

After all is said, vision depends much upon the condition, training and discipline of the muscles. If you are an athletic, muscular, well-exercised individual your eyes will be helped, you will see more things to do and be better able to do them than if you are fat and THESDAY, AUG. 26. The sidereal operations for this day denote some active and interesting occurrences, though not of a startling nature or far-reaching results. It is noderately promising in a commercia under a favorable Lunar ercury. Mars semi-square to for initiative and enterprise and stimulates the energies generally.

Those whose birthday it is, while having a more or less active year need not expect a very eventful one. A child born on this day will be active and enterprising, yet may not have great career.

If I had not been secretly preparing myself to hear almost anything concerning the mysterious death of Milly Stockbridge I think that I should have betrayed what I knew at Alice Holcombe's astounding assertion. As it was, I repressed my start of dismay, simply asked the very natural question. "What in the world are you talking about"

"I know you think I'm as demented as poor Milly was," she replied, "but you must be patient with me. I've never in my life had such a shock as was mine when Milly's sister sent for me tonight."

I realized that I had made a blunder in trying to question her, that I had only confused her instead of aiding her, and I hastened to rectify my mistake, "Suppose you begin at the beginning and tell me the entire story," I said soothingly. "Then I can get the whole thing clear in my mind, and we can decide what is best to do."

"When I got there the house seemed flood!"

"I'm not going to—now." I finished the sentence under my breath. "I's moderness sake don't speak to me of food!"

Jimmy Coon and Teddy Possum and telling them that he had something little Peter Rabbit were standing on lovely for them to eat.

Jimmy Coon liked a joke—especially their hind legs and pushing the pork if it was on someone else—better than anything else in the world except somebarrel down the hill from the camp to anything else in the world except somebarrel and today with returning soldiers. Two barrel down the hill from the camp to the pond. I was hard work, for the barrel was heavy.

Jimmy Coon and Teddy Possum didn't was the matter that those two friends of his were working so hard. But he wanted to help because he had such a good disposition that he always wanted to help.

You can be sure that Mr. Porcupine was Adjutant-General Thacker, a brother of General Thacker, a brother of General Thacker, who is the general officer commanding this discount.

remember, he was inside the barrel.

The barrel was rolling faster and faster down the hill and only stopped trict. The Saxonia entered the harbor little when it came up against a bush soon after the Belgic had begun dea little when it came up against a bush or a stone.

Sometimes the barrel almost ran over Teddy Possum or Jimmy Coon or Peter Rabbit when it was rolling very fast. It was pretty hard to push the barrel and keep out of its way. Once it ran over Teddy Possum's tail, and then there was a how!

Chatterbox, the red squirrel, was running along the tops of the trees, and as he only came up when the barrel was rolling, he couldn't make out what the game was or what those rascal cals were up to. cals were up to.

Of course, Quilly Porcupine was making an awful noise all this time, but nobody heard him.

Teddy Possum and Jimmy Coon didn't want to hear him and little Peter Rabbit and Chatterbox, the red squirel, didn't know he was in the barrel. At last the barrel fell right into the water.
