An intermediate league will, however, be arranged, and Sweeney thinks Victoria will be able to take charge of the new cup which it is intended to put up for competition. The association will, besides putting up a cup, provide also lockets for the individual players of the winning fifteen.

Most of the players in the Senior League have been professionalized by the C. A. A. U., and it is probable that this fact will lead to further trouble this coming season. The intermediate, the two leagues may be classed as professional and amateur. The seniors have asked Geo. Smith, the Vancouver representative of the C. A. A. U., to reinstate the men who last year were professionalized, but as they still declare their intention of playing against professionals it is improbable that he will do so.

In the intermediate series there will be two or perhaps three Vancouver teams.
