This, beyond a shadow of doubt, they will do. They know what is to be attempted. It is a definite move, not a date or be identified with a period, policy of futile opportunism, a waiting for something to turn up. The last vestige of old time lethargy may now be shaken off and all can rally round their appointed leaders to march on the position and carry it by stern assault or by a simple show of strength.

His Worship's speech was reported at length in today's news and so vivid is his presentation of the case that there is nothing to be added. The speech may be divided into four parts: firstly, an historical resume of conditions; secondly, a summary of existing conditions; thirdly, aims; fourthly, plans.

Under the first heading His Worship leader breathes from the sentences.

Lord Byng recognizes himself only as sketched a prosperous and self-supporting province with Saint John its great a servant of the State and so proclaims.

The Very Idea! By Ball Cochuma

MAN wants a girl with winning smile and wond'rous disposition; a girl who always togs in style, per-haps by intuition. He pictures eyes that twinkle bright and never shed a tear. He craves a miss with spirit light, that deals in naught but cheer.

His type of maid is one who lets the sadder things drift by; who laughs at them instead of frets—and never bats an eye. She looks the world square in the face, and stands above the crowd. The girl man wants will fill that place and kinda make him proud.

And that's just where the thing's unfair. A man's demands are high, but does he always seem to care or e'en pretend to try to make himself the self-made man who has good points to burn? To seldom does he stop to scan what she gets in return.
