SOVIET HOPES TO SEE INDUSTRY NORMAL IN 1925
Moscow, Sept. 1.—(A. P. by mail.)—The Soviet government has set 1925 as the year when the production of Russian industries should be brought up to an output approaching the pre-war normal.

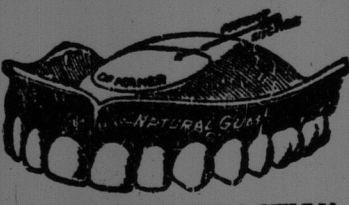

Transport and agriculture and all auxiliary industries connected with them are to be re-established first. Special attention and liberal expenditure are recommended for oil and coal production.

Oil, which in 1922 yielded 263,000,000 pounds (a good is thirty-six pounds) is expected to yield 497,000,000 in 1925, and coal, which in 1922 yielded 670,000,000 pounds, is expected to yield 1,670,000,000 in 1925, as against 87,000,000 pounds of oil in pre-war times, and 2,997,000,000 pounds of coal in 1914, the year of maximum production.

The metal industry, which in 1922 yielded 30,000,000 pounds, is expected to yield 120,000,000 in 1925 as against 287,400,000 pounds in 1913. In the textile industry, where 1,368,000 spindles and 86,000 looms are working in 1922 producing 600,000 yards of cloth, 8,000,000 spindles and 80,000 looms are expected to yield 1,400,000 yards of cloth in 1925.

This plan, however, cannot be accomplished without money, says a report to the recent Congress of the conference. Money is needed from the start, both as fundamental and working capital. And the sum to bring the various industries through till 1925 is fixed at $5,000,000,000 rubles.

As no such money can be found in the country, the report urges the necessity of attracting money from abroad, as otherwise the existence of Rural Route No. 1, Mascouche, Quebec. The Minard's Limestone People.

Sirs,—I feel that I should be doing a wrong if I neglected to write you. I have had four tumors growing on my head for years. I had them cut off by a surgeon about fifteen years ago but they grew again till about three months ago I had one as large and shaped like a lady's thumb, on the very place where my hair should be parted, and it was getting so embarrassing in public that it was a constant worry to me. About three months ago I got a bottle of your liniment for good for tumors. Well I tried it and kept it for exactly two months, with the result that it has entirely removed all trace of the tumor, and were it not for no mark would be seen. I have not been asked for this testimonial and you can use it as you see fit.

(Signed) FRED C. ROBINSON.
P. S.—I am a farmer and intend using Minard's Limestone on a mare for a strained tendon, and on her legs for some results.

TESTS DRYING PROCESSES.
Air and Kiln Dried Wood Equal in Strength, Says Forest Laboratory.

On the basis of some 150,000 comparative strength tests made by it on kiln-dried and air-dried specimens of twenty-eight common species of wood, the United States Forest Products Laboratory announces that there is nothing to choose between the two methods of drying so far as their effect upon the strength of the wood is concerned. These tests were made to meet the conflicting claims of wood users, some of whom maintained that the kiln-dried wood was harsh and not equal in strength to the air-dried, while others contended that the kiln-dried was much the stronger of the two.

The belief that kiln drying produces stronger wood than air drying is usually the result of failure to consider differences in moisture content," says a statement issued by the Forest Products Laboratory. "The moisture content of wood on leaving the kiln is generally from 2 to 6 per cent. lower than that of thoroughly air-dried stock. Since wood rapidly increases in strength with increase in moisture, higher strength values may be obtained from kiln-dried than from air-dried wood. Such a difference in strength has no significance, since in use a piece of wood will come to practically the same moisture condition whether it is kiln dried or air dried."

"It must be emphasized that the appearance of the dried wood is not a reliable criterion of the effect of the drying process has had upon its strength. The strength properties may be seriously injured without visible damage to the wood. Also, it has been found that the same kiln-dried process can not be applied with equal success to all species.

On the treatment of drug addicts in prison the commission reports: "The doctor does not approve of the reduction process. He cuts off the drug and gives substituted injections of sedatives and stimulants."

OIL ON RIVER ROUTS FIRST PITTSBURGH FOG
Pittsburgh, Sept. 30.—(Associated Press).—A large section of Pittsburgh fog was completely put out of business by local scientists, assisted by officials of the Weather Bureau and experts from the United States Engineering Department.

The initial experiment, conducted on the Monongahela River, was pronounced a "distinct success." The official fog confident that considerable "Pittsburgh gloom" will be avoided this fall and winter, provided moderate funds are available.

The experiment consisted of liberating the Monongahela River from Rice's Landing to a point one and one-half miles upstream early in the morning.

Notified by the Weather Bureau that a cold wave would sweep through the valley, scientists took the government boat Evelyn, a derrick and a barge fitted with sprinkling apparatus and proceeded to Rice's Landing. As the cold air and warmer water met and fog began to form, a thin spray of oil and organic acid was spread over a broad area of the river. The fog dissipated rapidly. The oil prevented union of the air and water.

Major J. Franklin Bell of the Federal Engineering Department, Dr. E. Ward Tillotson of the Mellon Institute and Dr. H. B. Meller, city smoke expert, were included in the party.

Another experiment, on a much broader scale, will be held as soon as the Weather Bureau forecasts another nice, thick fog, they said.

Anderson said. He wanted to be buried in that kind.

"The sides, corners and edges are bound with bronze that cost me a dollar a pound," Mr. Anderson is quoted as saying. "Every part is put together with brass screws. There are no iron parts to rust, nothing to decay. In the bottom I have put the finest moss mattresses on soft and restful coiled bed springs. Then I have put in pure woolen blankets." He admitted, though, that he did not know whether the bodies of his wife and himself would be conscious of where they were resting.

"Recently an aerial survey was made of the City of New York," Mr. Mercer continued, "for use in connection with the location of certain important railroad and tunnel properties. The same maps were used by the zoning commission, and for such work they are invaluable."
