SAYS RIVER RACING WAS THE CAUSE OF THE FIRE

Passenger on May Queen Writes to the Mayor Complaining That the Boat Was Overheated.

An American visitor who was on board the steamer "May Queen" yesterday when the blaze occurred which so seriously alarmed the passengers, is of the opinion that rivalry between the river steamers for speed supremacy was the cause of the trouble. He has written to Mayor Bullock giving his opinion of the matter, and protesting against endangering the lives of the passengers in this manner. The visitor states that shortly after he boarded the May Queen at Exandale the Elaine came in sight and caught up to the other boat. Immediately the May Queen was stoked to her fullest capacity, and in this way the smokestack became so overheated that the fire broke out. Mayor Bullock has referred the letter to the owners of the steamers.

STREET CAR COLLISION HOLDS UP SERVICE

A heavy sloop loaded with scrap iron, held up the car service on Main street for about twenty minutes this morning.

The wagon, which is owned by James Clark, was coming up the hill opposite the entrance to Long Wharf, with a big load of iron for the Portland Rolling Mills. Street car No. 23 was coming down the hill at the same time, and when the motorman attempted to stop his car the wheels slid on the slippery rails, and allowed the car to smash into one of the front vessels of the cart. The car then came to a standstill, and an appraisal of the damage showed one wrecked tender and one caved in wagon wheel.

The wagon was too heavy to be moved with the load still on, so the car service was held up while the iron was transferred to another sloop and the broken wagon removed.

In the meantime a string of street cars accumulated, waiting to get past the wreck.
