MEN IN THE TRENCHES

EAGER FOR NEWS

Editor of The Standard:

Dear Sir,—May I beg the favor of space in your columns to again call the attention of your readers to the patriotic service they can render at this time to the men of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces by giving their help to the "News From Home" movement.

This movement was originated by Mr. W. K. George early last September, and aims to provide the men at the front and the wounded in the hospitals with the contents of their own home papers arranged in a concrete, convenient and practically indestructible form.

The teachers and school children of Canada have helped most enthusiastically, as have many private circles in the making of these newspaper budgets for the last nine months. We appeal now more especially to the general public, during these hot days the inevitable shortage caused by the closing of the schools may not be felt at the front.

The budgets are made of five or more sheets of strong manilla paper about 11 inches when folded, and 15 inches long, fastened together by strong cord put through four holes. The newspaper cuttings should consist of Canadian and local news, sports, and yet more sports, jokes and funny stories, and something as well for the soldiers' leisure side. On the cover "News From Home" should be written, the locality the budget comes from indicated, and the inclusive dates of the clippings given. The budgets, if possible, should be kept up to date and forwarded once a week. The Canadian War Contingent Association and the Red Cross Commission in London have been since Christmas undertaking to see that those budgets addressed to their care have gone forward to their destination at the earliest possible moment. The budgets may be sent in any of three different ways:

1. To an officer or man at the front whose address is known, with the request that the budgets be read and passed on to others.

2. Addressed "News From Home" for the men of . . . (fill in name of Regiment) care Canadian War Contingent Association, Westminster Palace Hotel, London, England.

3. Addressed "News From Home" for Canadians in hospitals, care Red Cross Commission, 16 Cockspur street, London, England.

Brigadier General Mercer, Colonel Creelman, Colonel Morrison and numberless individual officers and men have expressed their appreciation of the pleasure and value these budgets are to the troops. Many hundreds of budgets have gone—many hundreds are required.

A soldier writes: "In the trenches one does not speak so complacently of dying and sacrifice and victory as do those who are behind there. One who is here makes the best he can of the bitter necessity of suffering and of death." To help to lighten, if even in the very smallest degree, this "bitter necessity" is the one wish of those who are behind at present. We would like to ask that many will consider this scheme in planning their summer's work. We would like to mention that many of our best budgets are made and sent in by men. Any further information that may be desired will be most gladly furnished.

Yours sincerely,

E. K. STRATHY,
Hon. Secretary League of the Empire,
71 Queen's Park,
Toronto.
