Sir Samuel Baker tells Briefly his Exploits in Extending Egypt to the Equator and Suppressing the Slave Trade.

The London Times of August 12 publishes the following interesting letter from the conqueror of the Soudan to a personal friend in England. Though short it gives a comprehensive glance over an arduous undertaking gloriously consummated by dauntless bravery and tenacious persistency under trials which would have appalled and vanquished most men:

ISMAILIA, April 29, 1873,
North Latitude 4.54

MY DEAR LARKIN—I returned here from the interior on the 1st inst., after an absence of fifteen months. I have been more than two years without European news. Egypt now extends to the Equator. The Albert Nyanza is one sheet of water, including the Tanganyika Lake. You may imagine the future results of steam navigation! But as to carrying Samuda's vessels in their heavy sections without carts and camels, you might as well move St. Paul's Cathedral in wheelbarrows.

The English shmen have constructed the 108 ton steamer here as the only class of steamer that can pass the Bahr Giraffe. This is a great credit to them and to Messrs. Samuda and Penn. The other steamers must wait until camels shall be sent up from Khartoom.

There must be a general reform in the Soudan before any great work can be accomplished; there are no boats fit for the long river voyage, and everything becomes ruined from exposure to the weather before it arrives here.

There are large quantities of ivory here that we cannot ship for want of vessels.

When I see the Viceroy I shall be able to manage matters for the future.

I have laid good foundations, and I have fought hard against many enemies with an absurdly small force, resulting in an vexation of all countries, including Unyoro, which extends to the Equator.

Not only have I had to contend with the natives, but the so-called traders broke into open rebellion and attacked the government troops treacherously, in force, when in the interior. These I routed with the loss of half their party.

My entire party was in danger of destruction by poison when in Unyoro. This diabolical attempt was made by the King, who attacked us with immense forces on the following morning at daybreak. I had only 105 men, but we gained the bottle of Masindi and annexed the country.

I have established stations and forts, and the countries are in the hands of the government.

The natives pay their taxes cheerfully throughout large districts. The officers and troops are in good health and spirits.

The slave trade of the White Nile is suppressed and my work is over.

Lady Baker has accompanied me throout the journey, with great fatigue, having had to march on foot for great distances, amid constant fighting for seven consecutive days. We have, thank God, been always in good health, and the troops have not suffered much loss of life, considering the exposure. In fifteen months I only lost one man from sickness out of 212.

The Englishmen are all pretty well, but I have to lament the loss of poor Mr. Higgenbotham, who was my able assistant.

We are now waiting for a rise in the Nile for the start to Khartoom, where I shall post this letter. With many kind regards from my wife, &c., very sincerely yours, SAMUEL BAKER.

Canadian Sentiment.

(Correspondence of the N. Y. Herald.)

ANNEXATION.

Returning to my hotel in the evening, and after meeting several prominent gentlemen there and at the select private resort known as the "Peninsular Game Club," I have arrived at the conviction that annexation to the United States is the last thing dreamed of by the sound thinking men of the Dominion. They say every reason of public policy demands that the Dominion should remain as it is. Its taxes are lower than in the States; it receives tribute both from Great Britain and the United States in the way of duties on imports; its manufactories flourish; its local commerce (via the Welland Canal) is almost a monopoly for the water transit from the interior to the seaboard; its financial condition and its credit are good; its currency is based on specie (upon which its traders demand a premium of fifteen per cent over American greenbacks), and from other "high and prudential considerations the idea of annexation to the United States is and of right ought to be now and forever abandoned."

INDEPENDENCE.

The independence of the Dominion from the mother country was considered. "What do we want independence for?" they argue. "Does not England provide us with a navy? So that if we get into trouble with any foreign Power there is the heaviest armament afloat to protect us. England lets us have our own Parliament, and only supplies us with a Governor General, which prevents us from getting into snarls and disputes among ourselves about selecting a head for the government. No people in the world are better off than we, the people, or the subjects if you will, of the Dominion of Canada. Hence, being satisfied with our condition, taking it from every point of view, all we ask is to be let alone by our cousins across the border."

And there your correspondent proposes to leave them for the present.

Steamboat machinery will give out occasionally, and there can be no worse time for such accidents than in running rapids. Friday evening as the Canadian Navigation Company's steamer Spartan was on her trip down the St. Lawrence, and had just shot the Lachine rapids, a sheave of one of her rudder blocks broke and the wheel chain jammed, leaving the boat unmanageable. Some excitement prevailed but the officers with considerable skill brought the steamer to still water. This operation delayed the boat so long that it was not considered safe to pass Victoria Bridge in the waning light, and the steamer anchored off Nuns' Island and remained until 4:30 a. m., when she went down to her dock, where her 250 passengers landed. If the break down had occurred ten minutes sooner than it did, the Spartan would in all probability have been lost.

NOTICE TO INVESTORS.

THE attention of the investing public is called to the limited remainder of the NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD SEVENTHIRTY LOAN. Of the $9,000,000 of this loan issued on the first of June last, less than $5,000,000 now remains, and this balance will soon be absorbed, after which the Company has resolved to issue only six per cent. bonds.

There are now between 500 and 600 miles of the road in regular operation, with a growing traffic; surveys and construction are progressing satisfactorily; the survey prosecuted the present season in connection with the Stanley military expedition has resulted in the location of an excellent line through Western Dakota and Eastern Montana, and the Company has advertised for proposals for grading and bridging the Yellowstone Division, extending 275 miles from Bismarck, at the crossing of the Missouri River to the crossing of the Yellowstone in Montana. The Company's lands (amounting to more than 20,000 acres per mile of road) are selling to settlers at an average price of nearly six dollars per acre, and the proceeds of land sales constitute a Sinking Fund for the repurchase and cancelations of first mortgage bonds.

The Company's seven and three-tenths per cent. gold bonds, the last of which are now offered, yield over 8¾ per cent. per annum at the present price of gold.

All marketable securities are received in exchange at current rates, and full information furnished on inquiry.
