against the slight disappointment which, even in the best assorted unions, a woman must meet with."

On the 16th of December, 1816, Frances Brown was married to Thomas Alex. Stewart, and they immediately afterwards travelled to Wilmont, in the County of Antrim, where they lived for some time till their own cottage should be ready for them. But circumstances unforeseen changed all their plans, and part of the six years they remained in Ireland were spent at Lakefield and Whiteabbey. Three children were born during this period: Anna Maria on the 12th of September, 1817, Eleanor on the 10th of October, 1819, and Elizabeth on the 22nd of November, 1821.

In 1822, Mr. Stewart, owing to reduced circumstances, was obliged to emigrate, and chose the backwoods of Upper Canada as his future place of residence. He died on the 6th of September, 1847. Mrs. Stewart survived him twenty-five years. She died on the 24th of February, 1872, at the age of nearly seventy-eight years.
