

left, and was told that it was not convenient to post it just then. In other words there was no money for stamps. This year the appropriation for the salaries of Clergymen in that Diocese has been cut down ; so there will be no letter written, for the paper and envelope will cost too much. This is a case for the Woman's Auxiliary. If the Board of Management cuts down salaries, they come in with boxes of clothes and stores of all kinds, and sometimes send a boy or girl to school. One of those who spoke at the meeting last night referred to the liberality of the poor in England, who gave so much in proportion to their means to missions and to each other. Thomas Hood somewhere says : " When plenty gives to poverty it is human, but when poverty gives to want it is divine ; " and it was wonderful and beautiful to see how often that noble charity was exercised both towards their Church and one another, and how truly many felt it a privilege to help on the cause of missions. In view of this it was well to appeal to the working classes, and not pass them by ; though the individual contribution might be small, still the numbers would swell the sum, and their mites should be appreciated as representing great self-denial. In conclusion, I would say the fewer rules and the more elastic the better for the working of a society such as this. The great thing is the consecration by each individual of time, money and self to the service of Christ. It will deepen the feeling of what life is given for, and the more truly our work is in harmony with the divine ideal of love to our fellow-creatures, the more sure may we feel that our Heavenly Father will accept it and crown it with an eternal blessing."

Miss Emery's address, concluded and the Delegates from the Synod having left, the Rev. E. F. WILSON brought two Indian lads to present to the ladies, bright intelligent boys, who sang in English and Indian very sweetly, each a verse of a hymn. Mr. Wilson laid the needs of his Indian homes before the meeting in a short address, and then left.
