

These tables complete the first part of this work. Being made with the greatest accuracy they will be found of great utility and a great help for the persons not knowing the exact way to take the measurements.

With the measurements given here, any child of normal proportions can be dressed without the bother of trying on, but it must not be forgotten that the rules given in these lessons apply only to the making of the flat pattern, as for the trimming and ornamental part of the garment, this is left entirely to one's own taste.

The second part of this work is now in preparation. It will contain all that is necessary to know for the confection of any lady's garment. How to take the measurements, and explain the absolute necessity of each of them. A complete study of all conformations from the most perfect to the most irregular. Ladies' Bodices in all their forms, Blouses, Matinees, Bolero, etc., etc., also Cloaks, Jackets, Mantles of every description, and all the numerous details of ladies' costume.
