Bright steel gleam through the land : 'Tis a a goodly sight, but it must be In the reaper's tawny hand.

The helmet and the spear Are twined with laurel wreath; But the trophy is wet with the orphan's tear, And blood spots rest beneath.

I love to see the field That is moist with purple stain ; But not where bullet, sword, and shield Lie strewn with the gory slain.

No, no-'tis where the sun Shoots down the cloudless beams, Till rich and bursting juice-drops run On the vineyard earth in streams.

My glowing heart beats high At the sight of shining gold; But it is not that which the miser's eye Delighteth to behold.

A brighter wealth, by far, Than the deep mine's yellow voin, Is seen around, in the fair hills crowned With sheaves of burnished grain.

Look forth, thou thoughtless one Whose proud knee never bends-Take thou the bread that's daily spread, But think on Him who sends.

Look forth, ye toiling men-Though little ye possess, Be glad that dearth is not on earth, To leave that little less.

Let the song of praise be poured, In gratitude and joy, By the rich man, with his garners stored, And the ragged gleaner boy.

The feast that Nature gives Is not for one alone-'Tis shared by the meanest slave that lives, And the tenant of a throne.

Then, glory to the steel That shines in the reaper's hand-And thanks to a God who has blessed the sod, And crowned the harvest land!
