There Am I.

They who tread the path of labour,
Follow where My feet have trod;
They who work without complaining
Do the holy will of God.
Where the many fall together,
There an Angel's My own,
When the tired workman sleeps,
There am I with him alone.
I, the peace that passeth knowledge,
Dwell amid the daily strife,
I, the bread of Heaven, am broken
In the sacrament of life.
Every day, however dim,
Sets the seal that does not fret;
Every deed of love and mercy
Gives me food for thought and rest.
I am with thee everywhere,
Keep the done and thou shalt find Me;
Kiss the wood and I am there!

Mr. Beckwith's Statement.

The following letter from Mr. E. M. Beckwith, of Canisling, appeared in the Halifax papers last week:—
SIR—The report in the Morning Chronicle of the 10th inst., of Mr. Wickwire's speech in defense of the government in its dismissal from the position of stipendiary magistrate and justice of the peace for Kings county, requires an answer from me, and as I have been denied an investigation by the government I know of no other way than through the public press.

Mr. Wickwire commences his address by stating that I am a near relative and political friend of the late Mr. Wickwire, and that he would do nothing to injure me and that nothing but his desire for justice and the public good would induce him to take the stand he has in this matter, and yet he is the one who takes the trouble to get the affidavits of Illey and Harris and attaches them to the papers in the King v. Rand matter, and sends them to the supreme court. Why not let the papers go forward as they came from my court, and be argued on their merits?

Mr. Wickwire does not give me credit for much intelligence if he really thought that I made the statement alleged in these affidavits and the would have abetted his near relative and political friend, and yet he was lacking in business from the public eye.

After judgment was given by the judges, on the strength of these affidavits, I was asked by the government to resign my commission, to which I replied both personally and by my attorney, declining to do so, giving as my reason that the affidavits of Illey and Harris were false and asking for an investigation that I might prove them so. This investigation is now denied me.

Mr. Wickwire also says that I refused to be sworn and give evidence in my own court as to my relation with the Kings County Temperance Alliance, which is quite correct. I was advised to do so by counsel.

Union of Canadian Municipalities.

ANNUAL CONVENTION.
The Union of Canadian Municipalities, which is the most representative and powerful civic body in the Dominion, representing officially over half its population and all its great cities and towns together with many other municipalities of all sizes, is to meet this year at Sherbrooke, P. Q., on August 4, 5, 6, and 7, when the following subjects among others, will be discussed:

The Housing Problem in Cities.
Playgrounds.
The City Manager Question.
Municipal Reference Library.
Public Libraries.
Motion Picture Theatres.
Street Lighting.
Street Cleaning.
Snake Abatement.
Building Laws.
Taxation and Finance.
The Wastes of Rural Municipalities.
Billboards and Posters.
Water Rates.
City Publicity.

For the last fourteen years the Union, under the careful management of its officers and executive, has not only built up for Canada a civic standard of purity and responsibility equal to that of any other part of the Empire, but has, by quiet, though solid work, protected the interests of the municipalities in the legislative halls of all the Provincial and Federal Parliaments, particularly from the encroachments of irresponsible charter sharks and greedy monopolies, while encouraging solid business bodies on the side of the people. This has had the effect of creating such confidence in the usefulness of the Union, that most of the active municipalities throughout the Dominion are members of it, either directly or through its splendidly offered Provincial Unions, and all the governments listen respectfully to its presentations.

The Annual Conventions are looked forward to with eagerness by those who would know the latest word in civic improvement; and the coming meeting in Sherbrooke will not be an exception. That always with you to the Convention which will be under the presidency of the Mayor of Halifax (P. P. Bligh) will be attended by many of Canada's mayors and aldermen, and by some of the most prominent municipal experts, who will discuss the subjects mentioned above.

Sherbrooke, the Convention City, is a modern progressive community of about 25,000 population, and beautifully situated in one of the most picturesque sections of the Province of Quebec. It has wonderful water powers, owns and operates several of its own public utilities, and produces hydro-electric power and light at rates claimed to be the lowest in Canada, and with its many advantages is attracting and building up a leading industrial community. It is within easy distance of Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa.

These annual conventions of municipal men afford the best practical means of learning at first hand, up to date methods of municipal government from men of experience, and at the same time they afford the only effective link of municipal union and cooperation against influences adverse to the interests of the people.

Drink and Disease.

According to A. Lams, in the cholera epidemic in Glasgow in 1848 the death rate among abstainers was 19.2 per cent, and among drinkers 91.2 per cent.
Prof. Lullien after investigating 15,000 families in 1848 the number of deaths during the first year among the children of moderate drinkers is nearly twice that among children of abstainers, while among the children of hard drinkers the rate is 32 per cent, as against 15 per cent, for those of abstainers.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

Cakes, hot biscuit, hot breads, and other pastry, are daily necessities in the American family. Royal Baking Powder will make them more digestible, wholesome, appetizing.

No Alum—No Lime Phosphates

Cheap.

Young men or young women, you are worth something. Don't sell too cheaply. Your strength, intellect, industry, application, morals, principles, and high character—all of these are assets. They are worth something if you have any of them. They are priceless if you have them all, for they are what make our foremost men and women. They make great creatures, workers, preachers, leaders, generals in war, captains of industry, managers of railroads, and heads of corporations.

Such men as these are not chosen for their good looks. Certainly not. Neither are they ever chosen because of their dishonesty, immorality, thoughtlessness, selfishness, or disbelief in the hand of a wise Providence. Some men of this kind succeed, but the exceptions are rare.

Remember this frivolous time that the one thing you really have as long as you live is your body. That is yours. That stays with you to the end. You must live with yourself. Where you go, it goes with you; when you pass away, it is in your basket. I this is true (and it cannot be denied) make the priceless gift to your Creator of a sanctuaries, clean, sweet, wholesome, spiritual as well as physical, living the life that you know you should live, putting a high value on the human frame in which you make your home.

Beautifully it with all the graces of deportment, courtesy, kindness and affection. Do not cheapen it with vice, licentiousness, greed, intemperance, rascality, and all the traits of sorrow and suffering that follow in the path of sin. Keep yourself worth all that you can. Hold yourself in the world's market at the highest price.

As the farmer seeks to win the prize with the best products of the soil and the breeding stable, as the manufacturer strives for the finest work of the loom, the forge or spindle, as the young housewife delights in the most delicate embroidery and the artist in the highest example of his art, so let every one, however humble, seek the best for what he has to offer, and he will get the higher price.

Children Cry for Fletcher's CASTORIA

"What is one of the principal products of the West Indies?" asked the teacher.
The class remained dubiously silent.
"Oh, come, think a little!" adjured the teacher, with patient encouragement. "Billy, tell the class where the sugar you use in your home comes from."
Billy pondered hashfully for a moment, then blushed, blurted out, "Sometimes we buy it at the grocer's, but I think we usually borrow it from the folks who live next door."

Men at work in a limestone quarry about six miles south of Preston, Idaho, found the skeleton of a man at a depth of forty feet. The exposure was made when a blast opened up a small cave in the limestone. The skeleton was found lying on sand, which appeared to have drifted into the opening ages ago by the action of the waters on some prehistoric lake. Measurement of the skeleton showed that the man must have been nearly seven feet tall. The teeth were intact, but ground down short by much usage, as if the owner had died at an old age.
