The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"The trouble with that woman is that she just makes too hard work of living."
 So the lady-who-a-l-w-a-y-s-who-a-l-w-a-y-s-how cleverly characterized a woman whose truly marvelous ability to find flaws in the most alluringly flawless project, and obstacles in the most apparently unobstructed path, and to create difficulties and alarms and worries out of thin air at any time, we had been discussing.

Don't you like the lady's characterization?
 Don't you think it is a very clever description of that large class of people whom we all know who are forever spoiling not only other people's but also their own happiness by this insistence upon thinking up disagreeable contingencies and possible difficulties at all times and under all conditions?

A spring holiday is close at hand. You—a member of a family whose happiness is lessened by one of these hard living persons—suggest that it would be a fine lark for the whole family to shut up the house and go out into the country to L—'s for dinner. Everyone is delighted with this scheme except, of course, the hard liver. While everyone else is enthusing she is silent, and inquiry soon brings out the fact that she does not think the house ought to be shut up because some weeks ago Aunt Maria said she might be in town on that day and what would she think if she came out and found nobody at house? She will stay and keep the house open. (This class of person is always eager to sacrifice herself for her whims, but the end usually is that the comfort and happiness of the rest of the company are the real sacrifices.) In vain you argue that Aunt Maria never visits you without sending some more definite word. The hard liver person bugs her obstacle to her bosom and the result is, that rather than leave her home alone, the excursion is given up. Needless to say Aunt Maria does not come.

Again this same overworked person comes home from a calling tour quite down in the dumps. The So-and-So's across the street are going to move and she is quite sure that some horrid people will get in there and spoil the neighbourhood. Needless to say Mrs. M. never thinks about the matter a second time.

If you go about it in a simple, natural, optimistic way, living is quite an easy business.

But if you really are bent upon doing so, you can make mighty hard work of living.

But please don't.
 Truly it doesn't pay.
 "The world is all dark or the world is all bright."
 Just as we choose to make it;
 Our burden is heavy, our burden is light.
 Just as we happen to take it;
 And people who grumble and people who groan.
 At the world and at every proposal.
 Would grumble and groan if the world were their own
 With the sun, moon and stars at disposal."
 —Harriet L. Hunting Swift.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system. THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of known composition. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most precious possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

Household Notes.

Save old kid gloves for ironing day. Sew a pad made from the left glove on to the palm of the right one, and you will find your hand is saved from becoming blistered, while the finger and the back of the hand will be protected from the scorching heat which is so damaging to the skin.

Keep three white-barred muslin curtains for each kitchen window for frequent changes. Have windows cleaned inside and out once a week.

Do not use soap. A tablespoonful of ammonia to a gallon of hot water will give quick polish. Use two cloths and finish with chamois or tissue paper.

After housecleaning I had left several partly used cans of paint, varnish, etc., which if put away would soon become dry and useless. I poured out these small amounts into small cans and covered each with melted paraffin. Treated in this way they keep indefinitely and can be used as needed.

Last year I was so fortunate as to get some oxalic acid on a tan chambray dress, which took out the color in many places. I fixed some strong saleratus water, dipped the spots in it, and the color was restored, so the spots do not show at all now. This is easily tried, and does not hurt the goods.

A piece of beatieking about a yard square, preferably old, will save your kitchen towels and many a burnt hand. This square should be hemmed and a loop of tape by which to hang it fastened at one end. It is the best kind of holder for handling hot utensils or taking pies and cakes from the oven.

Have you thought that rag rugs can be made things of, beauty by stencilling them? Take a rug woven all over of white rags, for instance; stenciled in some conventional designs in a queer blue or green, it becomes a fit covering for your bedroom floor, a really charming and unique bit of furnishing.

One girl, who is something of a traveler, has for her trunk a large sheet of blue muslin. This is put in the bottom of the trunk before the packing is started. When everything is in it is folded over the top of the clothes and firmly pinned with safety pins. With this precaution the girl is sure to find her garments as smooth at the end of a trip as at the start.

When making the bed make it a point to turn the mattress completely over so that the side which was uppermost the preceding night is now resting on the spring. If the mattress is in two pieces, turn the square piece over and quarter way around; that is, let the sides exchange places with the foot. Only by careful observation of this turning can a "humpy" and uncomfortable mattress be avoided.

Never starch lace. Wash it in tepid soapy water, and rinse thoroughly in several clear waters. The last rinsing water which is used should be quite cold. Never squeeze or wring lace dry, but pat it out between the hands, and then stretch out on some smooth surface, such as marble, glass or a mirror. Iron it on the wrong side after placing a thin sheet of paper over it on a heavy flannel pad. Press the lace heavily on the raised or heavy portion of the pattern, and work the small end of the iron into the various scrolls and designs. Finish by running the iron lightly over the right side of the lace with a thickness of paper laid between the iron and the lace.

We see no more heavy bouquets or clusters of flowers used as trimmings. Materials are so light and ethereal the trimmings must match them.

Avoid It

Leave this tremendous alcohol question to your doctor. The danger is too great for you to decide alone. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a tonic, entirely free from alcohol. Take it or not, as your doctor directs.

Wants Better and Cleaner Streets.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—We are hearing a great deal now about the need of cleaning our streets. Also, we hear general complaints of the dust and mud, according as it wet or fine—and it seems that for fully nine months out of every year we are almost bound to be annoyed with either mud or dust.

Such a state of things is unhealthy, uncomfortable and quite unnecessary, and the remedy is simple.

The time has certainly come when as an up to date city we should have up to date streets, either macadamized or made of tar and sand, such as are used greatly in England. With such streets there could be no mud and but little dust. Of course the initial cost would be rather large, yet the advantages to the public would be so great that we should welcome them at any cost.

May I be permitted to suggest the following scheme—

(1) Let all more or less level streets, those running east and west, be macadamized; those running north and south and in hilly districts be made of tar and sand, as safer for traffic; all well raised in the centre and sloping gradually to deep concrete drains on either side. All pavements, asphalt or tar and sand, sloping slightly.

(2) To raise money for the carrying out of such a scheme, I should suggest the imposition of a small tax (extending over 3 or 4 years) graduated according to the income or rent of each householder.

While people seem to have a horror of taxes, yet surely no objection could be taken to this, for each man would save at least double the amount of the tax in clothing, footwear, doctors' bills, carpets, etc., by say nothing of soap; and in a few years when the initial cost is paid the tax could be dropped and the city would begin to save money in repairs and cleaning.

Rain and water carts then instead of producing mud would flush the city.

The advantage of such a scheme as I have proposed are patent to all, and it could be carried out at once (if it is bound to come some time). And yet if that is impossible, if we have any regard for the health of the city, we should insist at the immediate removal of those rows of cobblestones which for convenience we call drains. Far from draining, they prevent water from running away and are nothing short of death traps, and on level streets are generally obnoxious. Let us have at least good drains.

Here we have a city possessing every natural advantage, built at the hill side, running to the water's edge—a city that could be and should be the healthiest and cleanest in the world, and yet we have filth and disease.

I am sure that all our citizens will welcome anything that is done to beautify the town and to improve it, especially with regard to the laws of decency and health.

Yours truly,
 CITIZEN.

Two Ways of Saying Grace.

The little daughter of a Philadelphia minister had invited a friend of the same age to take supper at the house. After they were all at the table the minister said a short prayer, which ceremony his little one whispered to her friend was known as "saying grace."

"That's not the way my pa says grace," ventured the child to the minister, when he had concluded.

"Isn't it?" asked he, smiling. "How does your pa say grace?"

"Oh, he comes into the dining room sits down, bangs his fist on the table and yells:

"Good heavens, what a supper!"

 Court mourning for King Edward VII. ended on Saturday, the first anniversary of the death of the late monarch. The occasion was commemorated by a memorial service at Windsor, which was attended by the Queen Mother, Alexandra, King George, Queen Mary, practically all the Royal Family, and also the members of the late King's Household. The occasion was celebrated with the customary military salutes, and dressing of warships.

 MEXICO CITY, May 7.
 President Diaz has rejected the demands of General Madero. The wild excitement was caused when the first rumours spread that the aged President had defied his enemies and decided to cling to the office which he has held for 35 years. Last night, 10,000 persons started a riot. After a struggle, the police restored order. From advices received here during the night, it is evident that the rebels are striking sledge-hammer blows in many sections of the country.

 Owing to the unprecedentedly large official delegations from the Dominions, it has been decided that no Peer's daughters will be admitted to the Coronation service in Westminster Abbey. Very few ladies will receive commands to attend. It has been found that after places have been provided for the Ministers of the various Dominions, the Parliamentary delegates, ecclesiastics, provincial premiers and public men of high colonial rank the number of seats available will be limited.

Indigestion & Dyspepsia

In all its Forms can be Cured.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything, I have no heart to exert myself and at times I care for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden."

Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a Bottle of Dr. Stafford's Prescription A. A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at

A New Departure.

Messrs. Norman Munn and H. H. Archibald when recently in the United States made arrangements with one of the largest fishery firms there to supply it with a large quantity principally of green codfish. They are fitting up the sch. "Arthur Jim" and will later fit out several others to prosecute trawling and to capture fish in any other available way. They have purchased the cold storage plant formerly belonging to Mr. W. A. Munn, housed in the Farrell bait house, lately sold to the C. C. C., and are installing it in one of the buildings on Bannerman Grounds to be used as a cold storage and bait freezing establishment. They aim thus to keep their craft well supplied with bait and hope to have a surplus for sale. The Arthur Jim will fish first on the grounds from this to the Straits, and later on will likely extend her operations to Labrador. The new firm seems to have anticipated and in some way improved on the plans suggested by the Board of Trade. We need hardly say we wish it abundant success.—The Standard.
