Castoria is recommended by physicians for children teething. It is a purely vego table preparation; its ingredients are published around each bottle. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, regulates the bowels, quiets pain, cures diarrhora and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the children'spanacea—the mother's friend. 25 doses, 35 cents.

There is an English literary man who at the end of each year penetrates into the pub-lished fiction and extracts therefrom very lished fiction and extracts therefrom very often some exceedingly interesting figures. The results of his researches into fiction of 1889 are entertaining. Of the heroines portrayed in novels he finds 372 were described as bloudes, while 190 were brunettes. Of the 562 heroines 437 were beautiful, 274 wers married to the men of their choice, while 30 were unfortunate enough to be bound in wedlock to the wrong man. The heroines of fiction, this literary statistician claims, are greatly improving in health and do not die greatly improving in health and do not die greatly improving in health and do not die as early as in previous years, although consumption is still in the lead among fatal maladies to which they succumb.

Early marriages, however, are on the increase. The personal charms of the heroines included 980 "expressive eyes" and 792 "shell like ears." Of the eyes 543 had a dreamy look, 390 fashed fire, while the remainder had no special attributes. Eyes of brown and blue are in the ascendant. There brown and blue are in the ascendant. There was found to be a large increase in the number of heroines who possessed dimples, 502 were blessed with sisters and 342 had brothers. In 47 cases, mothers figured as heroines, with 112 children between them. Of these 71 children were rescued from watery graves.—Ledies! Home Lournel.

ever have noticed the weather dial that is cozily perched within a pediment on the Atlantic bank building.

Those who do notice the dial naturally inquire how it is that the arrow moves as the wind blows and indicates the direction of the breeze on the clocklike face marked with the letters N. E. S. W.

A careful examination from the street will reveal a big vane stationed several feet behind the pediment. As the wind blows the vane, the vane moves the arrow by means of cogs, one at the bottom of the pole to which the vane is attached, working on another connected with the arrow on the dial. This jumple machinery is located in the attic.

This dial has been on the Atlantic bank wildling them.

This dial has been on the Atlantic bank building about thirteen years, and the occupants of the building say it has given general satisfaction, although the arrow, when the wind is frolicsome, sometimes revolves with such velocity as to indicate a cyclone.

There are said to be about three of these dials in use in this city.—Boston Globe.

A Mother's Love.

Some years ago the visitor who went on Saturdays to the penitentiary at Fort Madi-son would see at certain times a lady in the office of the warden. She was always veiled and dressed in deep black. By her side there would be a convict, a boy hardly 17 years old, a slight, handsome lad, whose frank face seemed in striking disharmony with the degradation of the stripes he wore.

It was mother and son and he was indeed.

lowed by the prison rules for such interviews had expired. The mother lived at a distance, lowed by the prison rules for such interviews had expired. The mother lived at a distance, but every week, rain or shine, brought her to the place again to see, to cheer, and to help her boy, to wring her heart with a fresh agony, for she was a proud woman of high station in society, but to show that there was are friend in all the world to repumpher and one friend in all the world to remember and one friend in all the world to remember and to sympathize.

It has been years since that boy was released from the prison walls, and he is today a prosperous and honest man. The mother's love helped the boy back to better ways.—

For Cold in the Head.

There are a number of ways of aborting a cold in the head, but most of them are by the means of quite powerful drugs, which a person unfamiliar with their use is never justison unfamiliar with their use is never justified in taking on his own responsibility. The Swiss method of treatmest is one of the simplest and most efficacious. It is applied in this way: Half fill a jug with boiling water, and into that put a teaspoonful of well powdered camphor. Fashion out of writing paper a funnel, with which cap the top of the jug. The camphorated steam should be inhaled through the nose for ten or fifteen minutes, the inhalation being repeated, if required, every four or five hours. If, in spite of its unpleasantness, the inhalation is persisted in, it is said that three repetitions will usually effect a cure, however severe.—St. Paul Globe.

The National Flower.

A wonderful thing is clover. It means honey and cream; that is to say, industry and contentment; that is to say, the happy bees in perfumed fields, and at the cottage gate old boss, the bountiful, chewing satisfaction's cud, in that blessed twilight pause that like a benediction falls between all toil and sleep. This clover makes me dream of happy hours, of childhood's rosy cheeks, of dimpled babes, of wholesome, loving wives, of springs and brooks and violets, and all there is of painless joy and peaceful human life. A wonderful word is clover. Drop the 'c' and you have the happiest of mankind. Take away the 'c' and 'r' and you have the only thing that makes a heaven of this dull and barren earth."—Col. Robert G. ### The Hessian Fly.

Uncle Dabney Jones informed The Edge-field (S. C.) Advertiser that its account of the Hessian fly did not correspond with the generally accepted tradition concerning that little pest. He says that his father, who fought in the revolutionary war, told him that when the army was disbanded by Washington a number of Hessians remained in this country, and, being of a restless, nomadic temperament, distributed themselves pretty generally, some of them drifting down to Carolina. The next year they sent to the Faderland for wheat to plant, and when the wheat came up the fly appeared, so that the larvæ of the fly must have been brought over in the wheat. We suppose Uncle Dabney's account is the correct one. is the correct one

Beware of These Coins.

The British consul at this port is good enough to warn all those intending to visit Europe that the British government will not redeem English gold coins of a date preceding Queen Victoria, except at their bullion value. Tradespeople and the hotels in London are refusing to receive them, except with a discount of seven pence or fourteen cents on the pound. It will be necessary to avoid receiving any old British sovereigns or half sovereigns when buying money to take aboard ship, unless you are willing to stand the deduction of two or three cents on the dollar.—
