TANGLED THREADS

"Who sent it?"

"I cannot tell you, Mrs. North."

"Have you no idea at all?"

"Certainly not. How should I have?"

"Could you detect no resemblance in the writing to any one's you know?"

He shook his head.

"Not to—for instance—Alexander's?" she asked, looking at him steadily.

But Dr. Rane saw with a sure instinct that Alexander's was not the name she had meant to speak.

"I feel sure that Mr. Alexander did not write the letter than—than you did, Mrs. North."

"Does it bear any resemblance to Richard North's?" she continued, after a faint pause.

"To Richard North's?" echoed the doctor, the words taking him by surprise.

"No."

"Are you familiar with Richard North's handwriting?"

Oliver Rane paused to think, and then replied with a passing laugh. "I really believe I do not know his handwriting."

"Then why did you speak so confidently?"

"I spoke on the impulse of the moment. Richard North of all men, is the least likely to do such a thing as this."

The young lady, Matilda North, turned round from her book. An opera cloak of scarlet gauze was on her shoulders, as if she were cold; she drew it closer with an impatient hand.

"Mamma, why do you harp upon Richard? He couldn't do it; papa told you so. I did need to find fault with any one, or tell tales, he would do it openly."

One angry gleam from madam's eyes as her daughter settled to her book again, and then she proceeded to close the interview.

"As you profess yourself unable to give me information or to detect any clue, I will not detain you longer, Dr. Rane."

He stood for a second, expecting, perhaps, that she might offer her hand. She did nothing of the sort, only bowed coldly. Matilda North took no notice of his mother's own; she was content to follow her mother's footsteps, and they did not clash with her own inclination. Dr. Rane had ceased to marvel why he was held in disfavor by Mrs. North; to try to guess at it seemed a hopeless task. Neither could he imagine why she opposed his marriage with Bessy; for so Bessy and her interests she was utterly indifferent.

As he left the drawing room, Bessy North joined him, and they went together to the hall door. No servant had been sent for; it was one of Mrs. North's ways of showing contempt—and they stood together outside, speaking softly. Again the tears shone in Bessy's eyes; her heart was a tender one, she had loved her brother dearly.

"Oliver, is there any hope?"

"Do not distress yourself, Bessy. I cannot tell you one way or the other."

"How can I help distressing myself?" she rejoined, her hand resting quietly in both his. "It is all very well for you to be calm; a medical man meets these sad things every day. You cannot be expected to care."

"Can I not?" he answered, and there was a touch of passionate emotion in the usually calm tones. "If any effort or sacrifice of mine would bring back his health and life, I would freely make it. Good night, Bessy."

As he stooped to kiss her, quickly, with the news that his brother was dying.

The voice would have been pleasing to a degree if only from its tone of ready decision; but it was also musical as voices seldom are, clear and full of sincerity. From the voice alone, Richard North might have been trusted to his life's end. Dr. Rane gave a short summary of the illness and the state he was lying in.

"When spoke of a letter that had excited him," said Richard.

"True; a letter to Mr. North."

"A dastardly anonymous letter. Just so."

"An anonymous letter," repeated the doctor. "But the effect on your brother seems altogether disproportionate to the cause."

"Where is the letter? I cannot look upon Edmund until I have seen the letter."

Dr. Rane told him where the letter was, and went out. Richard North passed on to the parlor. Mr. North, sitting by the fire, and his face bent in his hands.

"Father, what is all this?"

"Oh, Dick, I am glad you have come!" and the tone there sounded an intense relief, as if he who came brought with him strength and hope. "I can't make top or tail of this; and I think he is dying."

"Who is with him—Arthur?"

"No; Arthur has been out all day. The doctors are with him still."

"Let me see the letter."

Mr. North gave it him, reciting at the same time the chief incidents of the calamity in rambling sort of manner. Richard North read the letter twice; once hastily, to gather in the sense; then attentively, giving to every word full consideration. His father watched him.

"It was no more than the letter itself that excited him, Richard, as the motion that Alexander wrote it."

"Alexander did not write this," decisively spoke Richard.

"You think not?"

"Why, of course he did not. It tells against himself as much as against Edmund."

"Edmund said no one knew of the matter except Alexander, and therefore no one else could have written it. Besides, Dick, where is Alexander? Why is he staying away?"

"We shall hear soon, I dare say. I have faith in Alexander. Keep this letter jealously, father. It may have been right to give you the information it contains; I say nothing at present about that; but an anonymous writer is generally a scoundrel, deserving no quarter."

"And none shall get from me," spoke Mr. North, emphatically. "It was posted at Whitborough, you see, Dick."

"I see," shortly answered Richard. He threw his coat back as if he were too hot; and moved to the door on his way to his brother's chamber.

Meanwhile Oliver Rane went down the avenue to the entrance gates, and took the road to Dalroy. He had to see a patient there; a poor man who was lying in danger. He threw his coat back, in spite of the chilling fog, and wiped his brow, as if the weather or his reflections were too hot for him.

"What a fool! what a fool!" murmured he, half aloud, apostrophizing, doubtless, the writer of the anonymous letter. Or, it might be, the unfortunate young man who had allowed fit to excite within him so fatal an amount of passion.

The road was smooth and broad; a fine highway, well kept. For a short distance there were no houses, but they soon began. Dalroy was a bustling village, both poor and rich inhabiting it. The North Works, as they were familiarly called, from the fact of Mr. North's being the chief proprietor, lay a little further on, and Dalroy Church beyond. It was a straggling parish at best.

Amidst the first good houses that Dr. Rane came to was one superior to the rest. A large square, handsome dwelling, with a pillared portico close to the pathway, and a garden behind it.

"I wonder how Mother Gass is tonight?" thought the doctor, arresting his steps. "I may as well ask."

His knock was answered by the lady herself, whom he had so unceremoniously styled "Mother Gass." A stout, comfortable looking dame, richly dressed, with a face as red as it was good natured, and a curiously fine lace cap, standing on end with yellow ribbon. Mrs. Gass possessed neither birth nor breeding; she had made an advantageous match, as you will hear, and was popularly supposed to be rich enough to buy up the whole of Dalroy. Her late husband had been, uncle to Oliver Rane, but neither she nor Oliver presumed upon the relationship in their intercourse with each other. In fact they had never met until two years ago.

A Man Made Happy.—GENTLEMEN,—For five years I have been a great sufferer with Dyspepsia; the pain in the pit of my stomach was almost insupportable; I was only seemed a drag to me. When I would go to sleep I would have horrible dreams, and my life became very miserable, as there was no rest either day or night. But with the use of only two bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery this unhappy state has all been changed and I am a well man. I can assure you, my case was a bad one, and I send you this that it may be the means of convincing others of the wonderful curative qualities possessed by this medicine, that are specially adapted for the cure of Dyspepsia. A lady customer of mine had the Dyspepsia very bad, she could scarcely eat anything, and was troubled with pains similar to those I suffered with; and she cured herself with two bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I wish you success with your medicine, as I am fully convinced that it will do all you claim for it.

CHASE'S CHAPTER

1. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a combination of valuable medicines in concentrated form as prepared by the eminent Physician and Author, Dr. A. W. Chase, with a view to not only be an unfailing remedy for the Kidney and Liver troubles, but also to the Stomach and purify the blood, at a cost that is within the reach of all. The superior merit of these pills is established beyond question by the praise of thousands who use them—one pill a dose, one box 25 cents.

2. When there is a Pain or Ache in the Back the Kidneys are speaking of trouble that will ever increase unless relieved. We have the reliable statement of L. B. Johnson, Holland Landing, who says: "I had a constant Back-Ache, my back felt cold all the time, appetite poor, stomach sour and belching, urine scalding, had to get up 3 or 4 times during night to urinate, commenced taking one Kidney-Liver Pill a day. Back-Ache stopped in 48 hours, appetite returned, and able to enjoy a good meal and a good night's sleep; they cured me."

3. Constipation often exists with Kidney Trouble, in such a case there is no medicine that will effect a permanent cure except Chase's combined Kidney-Liver Pill, one 25 cent box will do more good than dollars and dollars worth of any other preparation, this is endorsed by D. Thompson, Holland Landing, Ont.

LIVELY SCRIMMAGE IN CHICAGO.

One Man Killed, Two Fatally Injured and Five Seriously Hurt.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—A desperate fight, which necessitated the turning in of a riot alarm and the calling out of three patrol wagons filled with police, occurred late last night in front of No. 4,177 Ashland avenue.

One man was instantly killed, two were fatally hurt and four men and one woman seriously injured.

Dead: Herbert Ray, neck broken with paving stone and stabbed in right breast. Injured: William Dunworth, left eye knocked out, skull fractured; Philip McGrath, skull fractured.

Seriously injured: Jas. Dunworth, right arm broken in three places; Patrick Cassidy, left arm badly cut; John Ring, head cut; Michael Donovan, head cut; Mrs. Lizzie Dunworth, right arm terribly cut.

At No. 4,177 Ashland avenue Mrs. James Cook has a saloon on the first floor, and the Dunworth family, with Cassidy, who is a brother of Mrs. Lizzie Dunworth, the wife of William Dunworth, live on the second floor.

The Dunworths had a lodger named John Marshall, who was too delinquent in paying his rent to suit the Dunworths. On Sunday Cassidy attempted to collect the rent by force and was badly beaten by Marshall.

Tonight Cassidy and Marshall resumed their fight, and the latter who had with him several friends, chased Cassidy into the street. The fight was warning up nicely when John Dacey, a friend of Cassidy, came along. He had a revolver and tried to shoot the entire Marshall crowd, but his weapon would not work. Mrs. Dunworth then came to the rescue and hit Cassidy with some paving stones.

Just at this time Ray and Donovan came along in a buggy. Just how they got mixed in the fight nobody knows, but they were in it as soon as they saw it. Mrs. Dunworth struck Ray at the base of the brain and broke his neck.

By this time a dozen men were in the fight on each side, and fists, knives, clubs, revolvers and stones were all in active operation.

A call was sent for the police, and just as they began to arrive a strange man, with Donovan's assistance, put the body of Ray into the buggy and drove away. After going several blocks they discovered that Ray was dead. They threw the body into the street and drove away. The police arrested half a dozen neighborhood, and carted the wounded to the hospital.
