BATTLE WITH BULL

Boonville, Ind., Sept. 9. — As the result of the going of an enraged young bull, belonging to August Schmickler, a well-known farmer, living near Chandler, in this county, Schmickler is dead, and his wife is in a dying condition.

Mr. Schmickler lived but fifteen minutes after being found. He had sustained numerous internal injuries, besides bruises on the head and the cavity of the bones of his breast.

Schmickler tried to transfer the animal from one pasture to another, and while trying to force it to go through the gate it became enraged and in getting the gate open, he was thrown down and killed. He was killed by a passing train, he resumed his way, he steps to plead for a dime, gets his money, goes on again and disappears in the distance.

Hoskin Liberman, a Hebrew, in the Lockup on a Serious Charge.

"Any Rags?" was the burden of Hoskin Liberman's song, but it got him into trouble.

Jacob Lierr's had gathered together a large shipment of rags, which he baled and stored in No. 2 Grand Trunk freight sheds, ready for shipment. They were there for some time, but after Labor Day several bundles were missing.

The police were notified and they began to work on the case. The bales were traced to St. Thomas, where they had been sold to the St. Thomas Rag and Iron Company.

It was learned that Liberman had sold the rags, and Detective Rider and Egelton soon had the alleged thief in hand.

The rags stolen amounted to 30 tons, valued at $205.

The case came up in the police court this morning, but it went over until Thursday as the defense was not ready. Bail was refused.

DEATH IN DELAWARE

Mrs. Jane Elviage Passes Away at Ripe Old Age.

SMALL HOUSES FOR MUSICAL COMEDY

"San Toy" Presented by Mediocre Company at Grand on Saturday.

"San Toy," the old time popular English musical comedy, was presented at the Grand Saturday afternoon and evening before very slim audiences.

The lyrics which were written by George K. Fortescue and others made famous were badly rendered. The chorus work was weak, though it could not be classified as poor.

Miss Florence Smith appeared in the title role. She is a vigorous little woman who works hard. Had she been supported by a first-class company she might have got along better.

The part of "Li," in which "Jimmy" Powers and Sam Collins have been seen in London, was taken by Mr. George E. M. Edwards. Begley was a poorly Yen How, and to give him his due while not as clever as Fortescue, he was far from being one of the weaklings of the cast.

His rendition of the ever popular song, "I Think I'll Introduce It Into China," made quite a hit with the audience.

Mr. Harry B. Burcher appeared as Capt. Bobby, the part formerly played by Melville Stewart. The way Mr. Burcher sang notes and fell down on others kept the audience guessing all the while as to whether he could or could not sing. The consensus of opinion went toward the latter.

In conclusion, it may be said that the production didn't look like $1.50 to those who paid it. This week it goes to Toronto and it's a dollar to doubt that the people of the Queen City will not be called to pay any more than a dollar to see the performance.

THIS WEEK AT BENNETT'S.
A vaudeville bill would seem incomplete without a legitimate sketch. This week a one-act comedy called "The Two Rubies" is to be presented by Miss Dean Edsall and Arthur Forbes at Bennett's. These sterling players who are among the cleverest farceurs in vaudeville, made their reputations upon the legitimate stage. Early in her theatrical career Miss Edsall was hailed as a second Margaret Mathers. She gave promise of becoming one of the strongest emotional actresses upon the American stage, but unfortunately the strain incident to long seasons upon the legitimate drama proved too much for her and she broke down. She took a long rest and entirely recovered her former health, but decided to forsake the regular stage for the lighter and less exacting work of vaudeville. With her husband, Mr. Forbes, Miss Edsall has been touring in this branch of the business for the past four or five years meeting with marked success. This will be her first appearance in this city.

Dean Edsall, she is called in vaudeville; Vivian Dean Edsall, she was called in the legitimate. Miss Edsall is an all round genius. She wrote the sketch, "The Two Rubies," and four other vaudeville sketches that are being played by other vaudeville stars. She has had one three-act comedy accepted by a leading New York firm of managers, and is just finishing another in which a prominent female star will be presented next season in Broadway. Between times Miss Edsall writes magazine articles for amusement and liberal monetary consideration.

Besides this sketch Manager Bennett will present six or seven other first-class acts, all of which will be found of a very high standard and thoroughly acceptable to his patrons. Performances every afternoon and night at 8 o'clock.

"Eben Holden" and his associates will appear at the Grand for the first three days of this week, commencing with this evening's performance, with its massive scenic production painted from photographs taken from the original scene as described in the book, Mr. Henry Horton will appear as

Mr. John Ross Stewart, who for four years has been the treasurer of the Grand Opera House here, on Saturday resigned his position. Next year Mr. Stewart, with his partner, Mr. J. In the four years in which Mr. Stewart has been in London, he has made many friends for himself. To the public he has been at all times open, honest and in his dealings. The care and comfort of the patrons of the Grand have always been Mr. Stewart's first aim. Coming in contact with some of the big showmen, he attracted the attention of Mr. Fitzpatrick and others, with the result that a proposition was made to him to enter into partnership with Mr. Fitzpatrick in establishing a new Canadian and American theatrical circuit.

After thoroughly considering the matter, Mr. Stewart decided it was in his interests to take advantage of the offer, and the result is that he has now a half interest in a circuit which will embrace five houses in Canada.

The Grand does not come into Mr. Stewart's hands until June of next year, and it is not probable that he may spend some time in New York. Those who know him best will be ready to wish him every success in his new venture, and it is conceded that if he applies the same business methods in his own affairs which he exercised in behalf of the Grand, he will be sure to find himself very shortly at the top of the theatrical ladder.
